Soviet Bloc To Boycott 'Watchdog' Commission

Vishinsky Scorns Balkan Inquiry; Yugoslavia to Bar U. N. Committee

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 9 (U.P.). Russia announced today that she would boycott the "watchdog" commission which the United Nations plans to send to the Balkans.

Yugoslavia, Poland and three other Soviet satellites also announced that they would ignore the commission. Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, one of U. N.'s most respected delegates, said in hushed tones that, "the gravity of the action can not be minimized."

Vishinsky Announces Decision

The Soviet bloc's stand was disclosed as the U. N. Political Committee set out to elect members to the new commission.

Soviet Delegate Andrei S. Vishinsky said it was being set up as the result of an insulting, American-inspired "horse trade" and that Russia could have no part of it.

Russia, said Vishinsky, would not even participate in the selection of the commission's members.

Vishinsky delivered a bob-tailed version of his now-familiar attacks on the whole idea of a Balkan commission, charging that it failed to get at the real source of Balkan trouble—Greece.

Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia praised Russia's boycott of a commission "hostile to Yugoslavia." The plan for the commission does not blame any particular country as a troublemaker. The commission was set up as the result of American charges that Greece is the victim of aggression by its Soviet-dominated, northern neighbors—Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

Bebler made plain Yugoslavia would not allow the proposed commission to operate within her borders.

The United States asked that all the Big Five powers and six smaller nations sit on the "watchdog" commission. But Latin-American nations promptly revolted against inclusion of the Big Five. Complaining that the United States, as chief prosecutor, and Russia, as chief defender, should not sit on the commission that will judge the evidence.

Solution Now in Doubt

Mexico, Colombia, Cuba and Venezuela all spoke out in favor of a little nation commission on grounds that it would be more neutral.

The Soviet bloc's snub of the commission—which still has to be set up formally by a two thirds vote of the General Assembly—practically wrecked its chances of bringing any permanent solution to the Balkan problem, which has haunted U. N. almost ever since it was formed.

Russia vetoed Security Council action on the Balkans, and the United States appealed its case to the full Assembly. The Political Committee voted 34 to 6 for the new commission yesterday, but it had virtually no chance of suc-

Take 'Military Precautions'

Arabs Will Send Troops To Frontiers of Holy Land

Beirut, Lebanon, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Arab world voted tonight to throw a ring of steel around Palestine to offset what was described as "terrorist organizations and Zionist forces which threaten the security of Palestine Arabs."

The Arab League Council adopted a resolution calling on Egypt, Transjordan, Syria and Lebanon "to take military precautions on Palestine boundaries." All four countries border on Palestine.

Further the resolution called for allocation of funds to Palestine Arabs.

Beirut, Lebanon, Oct. 9 (U.P.).—The Lebanese and Syrian governments have ordered various units of their armies to mass along the Palestine borders for a possible invasion of the Holy Land, and the first units already have started marching, it was announced tonight.

Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, secretary general of the Arab League council now meeting in nearby Alieh, announced the massing of troops along Palestine's northern borders and told Lebanese reporters that the Egyptian government also is ordering strong contingents of its army to move to Palestine's southern frontier.

Troop movements followed an official Arab League recommendation today that the seven Arab states take "military measures along the Palestine frontiers" in view of the British government's statement that Britain intends to evacuate the Holy Land.

Several top military leaders of the Arab countries joined Arab League leaders at the Alieh conference today, presumably to work out technical points connected with the possible invasion of the Holy Land.

It was understood, however, that Arab troops would not enter Palestine unless a clash between Arabs and Jews was imminent. In that event, it was said, Palestine Arabs would be joined by Arab

Rent Action By Creedon Is Approved

President Says He Must Follow Rulings Adopted By Local Boards

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday said Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon must rubber stamp any rent boost approved by a local board.

Mr. Truman spoke after Creedon slapped a 5 per cent raise on Louisville, Ky., a raise that came out of private conferences between real estate men and the local board, without public hearings or notice to the 385,000 people of Louisville.

When it did get out in the open, after the local board acted, the Louisville case touched off violent protests. Creedon brought out the rubber stamp theory to silence his advisers, who wanted to turn down the 5 per cent increase.

The Louisville board said low rents there were a hardship to landlords, and that the city's new sewer rent ran up their costs from 2 to 4 per cent of their gross rentals.

Matter of Form

If Creedon and Mr. Truman are right about Creedon being just a rubber stamp for the local boards, it is just a matter of form and a few days before rents go up 15 per cent in Dickinson County, Kans., 10 per cent in Klamath County, Oreg., and all controls go off in four counties in Kansas and New Mexico.

All these cases are pending in the expediter's office.

Mr. Truman did not comment on the fears of labor and consumer spokesmen that the Louisville raise would set a pattern for the country. He did say the expediter could not change the ruling of a local board, and that tenants would have to look out for themselves by seeing that board members were named to guard their interests.

Creedon's office said, however, that more than 400 of the 600 odd boards for the Nation already have been named.

The President referred those at his press conference to the rent control law, and to what he said about it when he signed it.

Expediter Names Boards

The law says the expediter shall name local boards, from lists given him by State Governors, and that the boards may advise decontrol or higher rents where the rents in force are not adequate. Such recommendations, the law says, shall be "approved or disapproved" by the expediter within 30 days after he gets them.

The law adds that, "any recommendation . . . appropriately substantiated" and otherwise lawful shall be approved.

Many of Creedon's staff took the view that it was up to the expediter to decide whether there was appropriate substantiation of a local board's finding that rents were not high enough, rather than to rubber stamp the findings as a matter of form.

As he signed the rent control act last summer, Mr. Truman said it did not protect tenants and that he was signing it because otherwise there would be no controls at all. He urged that public hearings be held on all raises, which was not done in Louisville, but has been done in most other areas.

The Louisville case came to Creedon's office without any publicity, and did not become public

Truman Calls Self-Denial More Than Mere Symbol

Indirectly Refutes Anderson Remark By Stressing Value Of Meatless Days

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Scrupulously avoiding comment on a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, President Truman yesterday stepped down hard on an idea attributed to Anderson—that meatless, chickenless and eggless days were of "little importance" in themselves.

Mr. Truman told reporters that the self-denial days were of "vital importance" in saving grain for a hungry Europe. Further, he authorized the reporters to quote him, an unusual dispensation.

About an hour and a half before the White House news conference, a United Press story came over the wires about what Secretary Anderson had said in Chicago. Evidently, it caused some eye-popping at the White House and in the office of Charles Luckman, chairman of the Citizens Food Committee.

Offers a Personal Reply

Anderson was quoted as saying that meatless, poultryless and eggless days were of little importance in themselves, but were designed to remind the public to save food for Europe. He was further quoted as saying that they were "symbols of sacrifice," designed to make the grain conservation program a success.

Mr. Truman, opening his own news conference, expected a question about Anderson. It came in a hurry:

"We'd like to get comment from you, Mr. President, on a statement made today by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson——"

Mr. Truman, not smiling, broke in to say that he had no comment. He had not read Anderson's statement, and therefore could not possibly comment on it. However, if the reporters wanted to put the matter in another way, he would try and answer from a personal viewpoint.

More Than Reminders

"Mr. President," a reporter asked, "do you consider meatless and eggless days of no importance of themselves but merely reminders to the people?"

"The meatless days and eggless days," said Mr. Truman, "are for the purpose of saving grain which is of vital importance because it is

Lovett, Harriman Agree Line Will Slow Drain On U. S. Reserves

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Three top Administration spokesmen yesterday went before the Senate Business Committee to defend shipments of steel to Saudi Arabia to complete the Trans-Arabian pipe line.

Secretary of National Defense James Forrestal termed development of the Saudi-Arabian fields "essential . . ., in the National interest."

"It should come ahead of (like) developments in the United States or the Western Hemisphere," Forrestal was quoted as saying.

Wherry Mollified

Wherry, who before the meeting charged shipments of steel abroad were hampering small businessmen and hindering oil and gas line development in this country, was less critical following the closed session testimony, but said hearings would be continued.

"It doesn't make any differences whether I concur or not," Wherry told newsmen. Wherry added that he believed Secretary Harriman was within his authority under the Export Control Act in licensing export of 20,000 tons of steel ship-

Lasting Peace Sole U. S. Aim, Truman Says

Describes Lovett's Stand on Red Bloc As Ample Comment

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The United States seeks to control no country or continent, President Truman declared yesterday while declining direct comment on revival of the Comintern in Europe.

He succeeded, nevertheless, in framing a concise answer to charges of American "warmongering" and "imperialism" by Soviet Russia and its satellites.

In answer to a question, the President told his news conference all this country has ever wanted was lasting peace and prosperity for all nations. He added that Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett had commented amply on the nine-nation Communist organization and its manifesto.

Lovett said Wednesday that formation of the Communist bloc would not deflect the United States from carrying out the Marshall Plan for aid to Europe. He described the organization as an effort of the governments concerned to prevent European economic recovery.

Used to Propaganda

Asked yesterday if he cared to comment on recently intensified Russian propaganda, Mr. Truman said Russian propaganda was just like propaganda at home. He added that he was used to that.

In the last few weeks considerable Soviet propaganda has been directed at the President himself, and has been of a personal nature rare in peacetime international relations. Russian publications have sounded a full scale of critical notes between likening Mr. Truman to Hitler and caviling at the length of the invective.

Shortly before the President reiterated the peaceable aims of the United States, Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton predicted that resumption of trade between western and eastern Europe was inevitable despite Soviet efforts to block the Marshall Plan. Clayton, just back from a five-month study in Europe, told reporters economic

2 Conditions On Aid Set by Congressmen

Good Administration, Cooperation Needed, Rep. Herter Declares

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.,
Post Reporter

New York, Oct. 9.—Two broad conditions of American aid to Europe were laid down today by 15 Republican and Democratic Congressmen, members of the House Select Committee on Foreign Aid.

The Congressmen returned on the Queen Mary after six weeks' study in 18 countries.

The first condition, stressed by Vice Chairman Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.), was "the proper administration" of any long-term program of American aid. This is "imperative," Herter said in a statement approved by his whole committee, "in order that the American people can be assured that their resources are not wasted."

Insists on Cooperation

He said the "only objective" of such help to Europe was "the restoration of an orderly, stable and free society, able to maintain institutions of its own choice and able in the shortest possible time to carry on without further assistance from us."

The second condition of American aid, he insisted, was that each European country "sets its house in order to the maximum of its ability, and cooperates with its neighbors in such a way as to obtain for all the fullest use of existing or potential resources."

The Herter committee will set still other conditions, but not until its next meeting, which has been fixed for November 5 in Washington.

18 Trunks of Data

At that time, Herter said, his committee hopes to report on a program of "limited interim aid" to tide western Europe over the coming winter. At the same time it hopes to report in greater detail how it thinks a long-term reconstruction program, under the so-

AFL to Drop Vice Presidents To Curb Lewis

San Francisco, Oct. 9 (AP).—The AFL executive council voted today to eliminate the positions of all 13 of its vice presidents—in order to circumvent Vice President John L. Lewis, whose refusal to sign a non-Communist affidavit has kept 300,000 workers outside the protection of the Federal law.

The workers in this group, members of about 1500 so-called federal locals, have no national officers except those of the AFL itself. The National Labor Relations Board cannot act in any case in which a union's officers have refused to swear they are not Communists.

The council, chief policy making body for the AFL's 7,600,000 members, will recommend an amendment to the constitution to bring about the desired change, President William Green told a news conference after a 3½-hour meeting of the council.

Lewis Refused to Sign

Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers and eleventh vice president of the AFL, refused to sign an affidavit disavowing communism in his unyielding opposition to the entire Taft-Hartley labor-management act. This stymied the executive council which requires unanimous consent.

Although the National Labor Relations Board and its general counsel, Robert N. Denham, on Tuesday ruled the vice presidents would not have to sign the affidavits in order to make the 105 national and international unions eligible to use the protective machinery of the act, approximately 300,000 workers in so-called federal locals still would have been without recourse to the board.

Ahe AFL convention cheered a denunciation of communism by Gen. Mark W. Clark, which he capped with a proposal for a "balanced" military program founded on universal military training and a strong army and navy.

Delegates Applaud Clark

Although the federation's position has been consistently opposed to peacetime military conscription, delegates rose to applaud Clark's inclusion of universal training in a program he declared was necessary "to serve notice that we intend to keep those freedoms" won by the war.

The commander of the Sixth Army, who acted for the United States in the unsuccessful Austrian Peace Treaty negotiations, was caustic and critical in his comment on Soviet dealings in Austria. He said Russia violated its Potsdam pledges on Austrian partition, economic reparations, handling of displaced persons, and war claims.

"Being in uniform," he remarked, "I can't say all I think. I might

Hotels Observe No-Fowl Rule, Cafes Ignore It

Some Restaurants Capitalize by Posting Of Chicken Specials

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

It depends on where you ate yesterday as to whether it was poultryless Thursday or not. If it was in a hotel or school cafeteria the chances are that it was poultryless; if in a restaurant, you probably had a choice of poultry dishes.

Spurred by a stand taken by the Hotel Association of Washington, on Tuesday, most hotels in the Greater Washington area followed President Truman's food-saving suggestions almost to the letter.

School Cafeterias Comply

Eggs, chicken and turkey were eliminated from the menus and plans were made for meat substitute dishes next Tuesday. In addition, several hostelries removed the traditional basket of rolls and served bread or rolls only on specific request.

School cafeterias began early this week to implement the conservation program and yesterday most of those checked were on a poultryless menu. A few said they would start the program next week after present food supplies were exhausted.

Many restaurants continue to feature breakfast egg specials.

There were a few exceptions, such as Bassin's, which offered pancakes and waffles instead; the 44 units of Government Services, Inc., which saved 300 dozen eggs and 800 pounds of chicken livers by the plan; the 18 Hot Shoppes; the Pentagon cafeterias, and the S & W Cafeteria. For lunch, many eating places featured fowl dishes. Some posted front window signs inviting patrons to enjoy chicken pie, a turkey sandwich, chicken salad, egg salad, chicken soup, ham and eggs, creamed turkey or baked chicken.

Truman Can't Tell One Man

In the evening, however, Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, announced that "members are being asked to observe meatless Tuesday and poultryless Thursday by next week, as far as possible."

Reactions to the poultryless menus in hotels and the few cooperating restaurants were mixed. One hotel man said a luncher had informed him that "Mr. Truman

World Learns October 1 Crop Report Today

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The eyes of a hungry world are turned on Washington today, where, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Government Crop Reporting Board will announce its estimate of the year's crops as of October 1.

Many Government officials and other crop experts were quietly predicting last night that today's report will show a marked improvement over last month.

Some even estimated that an over-all increase of 100 million bushels of grains may be indicated. This would be equal to the entire goal of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee, set up to conserve that amount for export to food deficit countries abroad.

One large group, ordinarily deeply concerned in the crop report, will view today's estimates with less interest than in recent months. These are the speculators who Government reports state were unusually active in grain markets during the summer and early fall.

Speculation in grain was virtually halted this week by the higher margins demanded Sunday night by President Truman, and put into effect by the exchanges Tuesday.

Catholics Plan Thanksgiving Aid To Hungry Europe

A "Thanksgiving Food Collection" for the relief of the hungry millions of Europe will be conducted in all Catholic dioceses in the United States during the week of November 23-30, the National Catholic Welfare Council announced last night.

Archbishop John T. McNicholas, O. P. of Cincinnati, chairman of the NCWC administrative board, in a special message to the Catholic hierarchy, said the collection will be conducted by the NCWC war relief service.

"The food situation in many of the countries of Europe is tragic," he said. "There is clear evidence that there will be great hunger in many countries this winter. Our holy father continues to make his appeals for assistance, particularly for the undernourished and sick children of the war-stricken countries."

At Budget Hearing

Overhauling of D. C. Tax Setup Predicted by Senator Cain

Post Reporter

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) yesterday ended a surprise visit to the Commissioners' budget hearing by forecasting a new overhauling of the District's tax and revenue setup by Congress next year.

Cain's prediction strengthened prospects that the plan to substitute a sales tax for the District's personal income tax will get serious attention at the Capitol in the next session. This substitution is favored by top District officials. Cain heads the Senate subcommittee that would study it.

From the Commissioners came assurances that the 144-million-dollar budget estimates of District agencies for the 1949 fiscal year will be cut sharply. All three Commissioners said they were most impressed by demands of civic and business groups to keep the budget low enough so that more taxes will not be needed.

The economy bloc was one of three main groups into which the 28 witnesses divided. A second group urged increased budgets for schools and health, and particularly for welfare. A third group included sponsors of special neighborhood projects.

Cain said he went to the hearing "to see where these things start." He was the first Senator to make such a visit, District officials said. He stayed about an hour, one of about 50 who showed up for the 2½-hour hearing.

Cain showed special interest in the testimony of Mrs. Ralph H. Dwan of the District League of Women Voters, who said her organization opposed a sales tax "unless all other means of raising revenue have been exhausted."

Cain stopped her as she walked away from the hearing table and told her he recalled her testifying several months ago at the Capitol in outright opposition to the sales tax. Mrs. Dwan told the Senator that if it came to a choice between having inadequate city services and having a sales tax, her group would prefer the sales tax.

All three Commissioners expressed satisfaction at the economy advice that came to them across the hearing table.

"I am impressed at the preponderance of persons asking for economy," said Commissioner John Russell Young. "I think the people realize that however much we may want these things they have to pay the bill."

Commissioner Guy Mason said he, too, was impressed with the testimony of those who wanted to keep the budget within the city's income and to avoid new taxes.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, said "there was less of a tendency than in previous years to make exorbitant de-

New Audit Plan Worked Out For Police Welfare Funds

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A new system for checking funds collected in police stations for the support of wives and minor children will be set up by the District Auditor's Office.

Operation of the new system was worked out at a conference between Juvenile Court Judge Fay Bentley and District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton yesterday.

Discontinuing the present system of paying money to the police stations would be a "disservice to the community," Pilkerton said.

He added that the new system would require the prenumbering of receipts to be given by police station clerks to the payors. Setting up of a "control record" to account for the amount of money due from each precinct station each week will also be necessary.

Judge Bentley informed Pilkerton that the majority of the people who pay support money are not able to come to Juvenile Court to pay the money directly. Because the stations are open 24 hours a day, it is not necessary for payors to take time off from work to comply with the court order.

The Washington Post disclosed on September 27 that the auditor's office had ordered an investigation of all funds in the Fourth Precinct after learning that a shortage of $145, in "support funds" had been made up at the station.

The story also revealed that Pvt. Oscar L. Fisher, Fourth Precinct station clerk who committed suicide September 18, was behind in

3 Children Hurt by Gun Blast Of Man 'Angered by Curses'

Angered by taunts of three children, John M. Gatling, 53, of 204 16th st. se., wounded them yesterday afternoon with a blast from his shotgun.

The shooting took place near 16th st. and Massachusetts ave. se. The children, a block away when Gatling fired, were not seriously injured.

The children, all Negro, were:

Barbara Kyler, 10, of 1622 B st. se., struck in the head.

Henry Russell, 11, of 1617 B st. se., struck in the arm.

Algernon Thomas, 10, of 201 17th st. se., also struck in the arm.

The children were allowed to go home after treatment at Gallinger Hospital.

Gatling, who was booked at the Fifth Precinct on three charges of assault with a dangerous weapon, said:

"I got mad when the kids cursed me and went into the house and got my gun. I fired at them as they went down the street, almost a block away, at what I thought was over their heads.

"I'm sorry now that I shot them. I'm glad that I didn't hurt them any more than I did.

"The kids have been a constant nuisance to me in the past, jumping on my property and breaking bottles in the back alley. They have even come up on my front porch and tipped over a cement flower pot I have on the railing."

According to police, the children were on their way to Payne School,

Injunction Asked Against Mine Union

Third Suit Under Taft-Hartley Act Alleges Secondary Boycott Against Kentucky Firm

The United Mine Workers Union found itself the target yesterday of the third injunction suit under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The suit was filed in the Federal District Court at Owensboro, Ky., by Jack G. Evans, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board. He asked an injunction and the court issued an order for UMW District 23 to show cause why it should not be issued.

The charges, alleging a secondary boycott and the forcing of an employer to cease doing business with another person, were filed with the NLRB regional office in Cincinnati by the Jackson Construction Co. of Beaver Dam, Ky.

Petition to Court

The company's complaint, which Evans investigated and repeated in part in his petition to the court, recited this history:

The Jackson Co. contracted with a coal firm, the Sentry Coal Mining Co. in Ohio County, Ky., to do some preliminary construction work preparatory to the beginning of strip-mining operations.

In April of this year officers of UMW District 23 asked the Sentry concern to grant a contract to the union. Mining operations had not begun and no miners were yet employed. The company refused to grant a contract.

Early in July, union representatives appeared at the construction site and informed the workers that they would not be allowed to continue to work for the Jackson Co. until the Sentry firm recognized the UMW.

Mass Picketing

There followed, according to the Jackson and NLRB complaints, a two months period in which UMW members conducted campaigns of mass picketing, "encampments" at the construction site, repeated threats of physical violence, refusal to permit either employes or officers of the companies to enter the work area, and the actual beating up of a company superintendant.

The union was charged with telling workers that the Taft-Hartley Act would not apply in Ohio County, "because the UMW makes the law" in that area.

The union also was reported to have stopped other suppliers from entering the construction site; to have called a county-wide mine holiday on a day when the Jackson firm proposed to resume work and to have blocked off the site with more than 300 men.

Company officials, it was alleged, were threatened by the union with "physical violence, viz: hanging." Union members also were said to have warned a company foreman to leave the area. Prudently, the employe packed up and moved out, with his family.

Under the new law, the NLRB regional attorney is required to seek injunctive relief if, after his investigation, he believes that charges of a secondary boycott or other restrictions on doing business are true.

Accordingly, the regional office asked an injunction, but it did not seek a temporary restraining order to be applied immediately.

Chattanooga Petition

Last month, the NLRB made a similar petition with respect to an alleged secondary boycott in Chattanooga, Tenn. Last week, it obtained a temporary restraining order against longshoremen in Albany, N. Y.

An interesting aspect of yesterday's case is the fact that the union involved is the UMW. Its president, John L. Lewis, is among the most vehement of labor leaders who have denounced the Taft-Hartley Act. In fact, his refusal to execute an affidavit disavowing Communist connections precipitated a fight in the AFL Executive Council and a battle in the NLRB over interpretation of the law.

Lewis has indicated he will refuse to sign the affidavit, thus denying his union the right to make use of the services of the NLRB or the processes of the labor law.

His boycott, however, does not run both ways. Failure of Lewis to make use of the law does not, as yesterday's injunction suit illustrates, relieve him of its penalities or its application against his union.

CIO to Let Each Union Decide For Itself on Using NLRB

Boston, Oct. 9 (AP).—Some CIO unions will make use of the National Labor Relations Board, others will continue to ignore it—and the CIO convention probably won't try to change the minds of either group.

That was the way things were shaping up today as CIO leaders worked on arrangements for the convention which starts Monday.

Ever since passafe of the Taft-Hartley labor law on June 23, three has been an unofficial CIO boycott of the NLRB.

This boycott is crumbling fast. Four CIO unions—the Wood Workers, Textile Workers, Brewery Workers and Toy Workers—already have made their own local unions eligible to use the NLRB. They did this by filing non-Communist affidavits and financial statements with the Government.

Last night the top leadership of the CIO—president, secretary and vice presidents—agreed on a policy statement that will go before the executive board tomorrow and later to the convention.

The agreement was not announced, but the overwhelming opinion of other CIO leaders is that the policy statement will say that each CIO union must decide for itself and there can be no uniform CIO policy at this time.

The Taft-Hartley Acts forbids unions to use the board unless they file certain information with the Government and unless their officers swear they are not Communists.

CIO President Philip Murray is reported to have told the CIO executive board yesterday that about 10 or 11 unions have either filed the necessary papers or let it be known that they could do so if it didn't run contrary to CIO policy.

There are 41 CIO unions in all.

Left-wing unions generally fall into the group that won't sign non-communist affidavits.

But some unions without a hint of communist leadership also have refused—so far—to file papers. The prime example is Murray's own steelworkers union.

The unions which are filing the papers so far gneerally those which need the NLRB the most. The textile workers and woodworkers, for example, are in the midst of big organization drives.

Canada Seizes $4,000,000 Opium Cargo

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 9 (U.P.).—Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced today that they had seized more than four million dollars (underground price) worth of opium on a Dutch steamship. They said it was the largest dope seizure ever made on the North American Continent.

Police officials said the opium was taken from the SS Monoeran, owned by the Dutch SS Nederlands Co. It was reliably reported the cache was found in a winch.

The seizure amounted to 373 pounds.

The mounted police were withholding details of the seizure, but said their investigation was continuing. They said no arrest had been made.

The Monoeran left Calcutta, India, July 1. She made calls in Javanese ports and in Los Angeles and San Francisco before docking here.

Steel Shortages Expected to Idle 37,000 in Detroit

Detroit, Oct. 9 (AP).—Approximately 37,000 Detroit area automotive plant workers will be idle next week as two more plants will close their final assembly lines because of sheet steel shortages.

Chrysler Corp. announced this afternoon that assembly operations will be halted tomorrow night until October 20, by its Dodge and De Soto divisions and that its Chrysler division will reduce to about 30 per cent of normal output.

Meanwhile the Plymouth division and two Briggs Manufacturing Co. body plants closed on October 3 will remain down another week.

Approximately 20,000 Chrysler Corp. and 8000 Briggs workers are affected by the shutdowns. Another 9400 Hudson production workers will remain idle pending the reopening of assembly lines on October 20, for the production of new models. The Hudson assembly lines have been down since Sept. 19 for the model change-over.

Mrs. Roosevelt Won't Speak on Red Charge

Lake Success, Oct. 9 (AP).—A spokesman for the United States delegation said today Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt would not speak in the political committee of the United Nations Assembly on Russia's charges of "warmongering."

In the political committee, the spokesman said, Mrs. Roosevelt will assist and advise permanent United States Delegate Warren R. Austin, who will deliver the United States speech. Mrs. Roosevelt has spoken twice on the "warmongering" charges in the social committee.

Mayor Deputizes 50 Farmers, Townsmen 'To Keep Order' at Struck Maryland Plant

Ridgely, Md., Oct. 9.—Mayor Martin L. Sutton deputized 50 farmers and townsmen today "to keep order" at the Excelsior Pearl Works plant, where 25 workers are on strike for union recognition.

Ridgely is on the Eastern Shore, across Chesapeake Bay from Annapolis, Md.

The union said it would ask Governor Lane for protection against the "deputies."

AFL Organizer Arrested

Irvin Jaffee, organizer for the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, AFL, was arrested at the start of the walkout Tuesday and released on $500 bail for a disorderly conduct hearing tomorrow in Denton before Justice of the Peace William Rickards.

Approximately 175 more workers at the company's Federalsburg plant also are on strike, union officials said. That plant employs 340 men and women and the Ridgely plant employs 50.

Company officials declined to talk to reporters.

Thirty pickets here mingled with the 50 deputies as 25 workers went through the lines to work at the button manufacturing company.

10% Offered, Union Says

In Baltimore, union officials said the company president, Bernard Rifkin of New York, had promised the workers a 10 per cent wage raise and told them union recognition would be illegal without certification under the new Taft-Hartley law.

The union spokesman said the company had refused to sign a contract without anti-Communist affidavits and an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board.

Company spokesmen declined to comment on the NLRB's ruling Tuesday that unions are not required to sign the affidavit.

Efforts to Settle Pilots' Strike Dropped

The national mediation board yesterday suspended, temporarily at least, its efforts to settle the 10-day-old strike of pilots against the American Overseas Airlines, which operates routes to Europe.

Francis A. O'Neil, member of the board announced the action after conferring separately for four days with David L. Behncke, president of the Airline Pilots Association, and C. R. Smith, president of American Overseas.

O'Neil told reporters no progress had been made because the company refused to enter direct negotiations with the union until the striking pilots returned to work and because the union balked at sending them back.

He said, however, that he did not consider the mediation efforts a failure since both sides had expressed willingness to return to the board in the event either develops a formula for breaking the deadlock.

The strike began September 30 as the result of a dispute over working rule provisions in a new contract which has been under consideration for several months. O'Neil said the two sides are in agreement on major issues, including pay.

He referred to Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet delegate to the United Nations, who recently called 11 prominent Americans "war mongers."

"Our Soviet colleagues love to use the word democracy on every occasion," Clark said. "It's too bad we didn't get a definition of democracy at Vienna, because their definition is 100 per cent different than ours."

Assails Russia

Russia, Clark charged, "does not want a return to normalcy because by keeping conditions upset they have a better chance of forcing their philosophy of government upon others."

Clark's address was the principal business before the general convention, still stunned by the sudden death of Joseph A. Padway, the federation's general counsel.

The English-born attorney, who for 10 years had represented the AFL in its legal battles, suffered a stroke yesterday as he flayed the Taft-Hartley labor law in a convention address. He died last night.

His body will lie in state in the hall tomorrow morning when memorial services will be conducted with the 700 delegates in attendance.

President Green read to the delegates a message of condolence President Truman sent to Mrs. Padway, in which the President voiced himself as "shocked and saddened by the death under tragic circumstances of your husband and my faihtful friend of many years."

West Grove, Pa., Oct. 9 (U.P.).—Two bandits, carrying sawed-off shotguns, help up and robbed the West Grove National Bank and Trust Co., today and escaped after exchanging gunfire with a mail clerk outside the bank. Officials of the bank estimated that the pair got away with nearly $10,000.

The mail clerk, Harry Griffiths, was wounded in the head, although not seriously, during the gun play.

Pugilistic Cab Company Row Results in Three Court Actions

Friction between two factions of the Suburban Cab Co., Bethesda, producing fistfights on numerous occasions, was revealed yesterday in three resultant co[illegible] actions.

Attorneys for both sides explained the present disagreement grew [illegible]t of an incr[illegible] [illegible] socalled "lot fees" which approximately 20 of the 28 drivers refused to pay and pulled out of the association to organize their own.

One of the three legal actions is an assault and battery charge against Claude E. Rogers, 31, of Rockville, Md., to be heard in Bethesda Police Court today at 9:30 a. m.

Police said the warrant was swo[illegible] out by James A. Miller, 24, of Rockville, who claimed Rogers was one of the disgruntled drivers who withdre[illegible]. was quoted by police as alleging Rogers entered the Suburban Cab office on Wisconsin [illegible]ve. at the District Line and assaulted him.

Another legal action scheduled for Montgomery County Circuit Court November 7 is a suit filed by Richard M. Phelps, owner of the company, alleging that the disgruntled faction applied for permission to use the trade name of Suburban Cab, a name which he claims rightfully belongs to him.

The third legal action is a warrant sworn out by Phelps charging the disgruntled group illegally organized its own association in violation of the county's taxicab ordinance.

Andrew W. Phelps, manager and son of the owner, said yesterday the lot fees were increased from $8 to $10 per week to defray expen[illegible] of installinig a two-way [illegible] system in the cab.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that Montgomery cab operators were still "charging whatever rate they want" despite the fact that the county's taxicab ordinance providing for uniform rates was adopted July 15.

Albert E. Conradis, county public utilities agent, said enforcement of the ordinance had been held up pending printing and advertising of the new zones and rates.

'Flying Stovepipe' Sets New Record

Ramjet Missile Launched From B-29 Reaches Speed Almost Twice That of Sound

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics officials said yesterday that a ramjet missile had been flown at a speed nearly twice that of sound after being launched by an airplane.

Milton B. Ames, chief of the NACA aerodynamics division, declared that the wingless missile was dropped from a B-29 over their research station at Wallop's Island, near Chincoteague, Va. The ramjet engine fired, picked up speed and traveled at a speed over 1200 miles an hour, it was stated.

This was the first successful test of the "flying stovepipe"—which was developed for the Navy by the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratory at Silver Spring, Md.—launched from a plane.

New Experiment Planned

Previously, the ramjet missile—or more strictly—test vehicle had been flown many times at 1500-miles-an-hour speeds when launched from the ground by rocket assist. Ramjets do not begin to operate until traveling at a high rate of speed, as combustion depends upon air compressed by the speed the engine is traveling through the air.

Ames said that another test with the ramjet missile is planned for the near future at Wallop's Island which, if successful, will mark a significant achievement. The "stovepipe" will be dropped by a B-29 and then guided by remote control from the plane or ground. It will have control surfaces but no wings.

During the latter part of the war, both sides introduced guided missiles, but except for the present-guided V-2, these were bombs or pilotless airplanes traveling at subsonic speeds. The speed of sound is about 660 to 750 miles an hour, depending upon temperature.

Piloted Tests Ahead

Public interest in the high speed missiles and pilotless planes was aroused by a British announcement that a rocket-powered research plane was dropped from a Mosquito bomber into the Atlantic attaining a speed of 900 miles an hour. The craft was pilotless.

Similar American pilotless planes have been flown at speeds twice that of sound during the past two years. They were built as forerunners of the Bell XS-1, designed to "crash the sonic barrier" with a pilot at the helm.

The XS-1 has been conducting tests at Muroc Lake, Calif., for months, but has not attempted to push past the "sonic barrier." Goeffrey de Havilland, British research pilot, was killed on a high-speed run. It was believed that compressibility and other largely unknown factors involved in the transsonic region wrecked his plane.

Barrier Is Major Step

When man first makes a piloted flight which crashes the sonic barrier, it will be a major event in the history of aviation.

In the pilotless tests to date with test vehicles, the greatest problems have arisen with pilotless aircraft—models with wings—rather than missiles—finned vehicles more nearly resembling projectiles. The two, however, grade into each other. Some test missiles have small wings, and others, described as pilotless planes, have little more than stabilizing surfaces.

Testing Navy's Revolutionary Ramjet

IT'S FASTER THAN SOUND—In this picture made in June, 1946, seamen are carrying the Navy's ramjet engine to a launching platform for a test flight at Fort Miles, Del. Supersonic speeds in excess of 1400 miles an hour have been recorded by this 70-pound "flying stovepipe." The missile scoops up oxygen from the air while in flight.

2 Yugoslavs Face Ouster By Argentina

Buenos Aires, Oct. 9 (AP).—A high government official said tonight that two Yugoslav diplomats expelled from Chile would be asked to leave Argentina as well if they did not do so voluntarily.

Andrej Cunja, Yugoslav charge d'affaires at Santiago, Chile, and Dalibor Jakasa, secretary of the legation in Buenos Aires, were ordered out of Chile on charges of "Communist agitation" and escorted last night to Mendoza, Argentina. The Yugoslav legation here said they were expected in Buenos Aires by train late today.

The Argentine official explained that "even if they have diplomatic passports recognized by a foreign government, they are not accredited to our government" and for that reason had been "practically expelled." He ddi not make clear how Jakasa, attached to the Buenos Aires legation, was not accredited. The official apparently considered, however, that the man had lost his status when he went to Chile.

Expulsion of the two from Chile was accompanied by Chilean charges that a Communist network, operating under the new "Communist international organization" and directing a campaign against the United States, had headquarters in Buenos Aires.

The Argentine cabinet held a long session with President Juan D. Peron today. Informed sources said it was believed to have discussed the Yugoslavs' case and possibly Communism as well.

There was no official Argentine comment on the Chilean government's statement that Communist operators in Latin America were being directed from here. However, one official said privately that "such a charge is not true."

The Yugoslav legation also withheld comment. (In Belgrade, the government denied the charge.)

A three-man Argentine police mission, headed by Military Police Chief Jorge Osinde, reached Santiago, Chile, by air tonight to see Chile's evidence against the two Yugoslavs. The men were taken to the office of President Gabriel Gonzalez Videla.

Gonzalez Videla said recently that a "satellite of Moscow" had fomented a coal strike in the Concepcion district of Chile in which about 16,000 miners have been idle since Saturday.

Unofficial reports from Santiago today said some of the miners were beginning to report for work as the result of a military draft which followed the arrest of two score of their leaders.

The Communist-headed Fedlration of Workers last night rejected the Chilean government's proffered 30 to 40 per cent wage increase for the mine workers as "not meeting the high cost of living." The Federation presented new emands, including a provision that the government offer be extended to workers other than miners in the coal zone.

Don't Wipe Dishes, Health Expert Says

London, Oct. 9 (U.P.).—Housewives and—in many homes—their husbands found a real friend today in Sir William Savage, an expert of bacteriological diseases.

Savage told a health conference here that washed dishes should be left to dry and not wiped as a method of preventing disease.

Greek Prêmier Scoffs at Red Threat

Athens, Oct. 9 (INS).—Premier Themistocles Sophoulis made light tonight of a Greek Communist report of formation of a rebel "mountain government" aimed at overthrowing his regime and expelling Anglo-American aid missions.

"If the Communists want to establish a government they must secure permanent control of one are," he said. "Without that control any proclamation of a separate government only makes them ridiculous."

Nikolas Zachariades, the Moscow-trained Greek Communist leader, claimed such a government under his purported signature yesterday in the Communist press. He has been hunted by Greek police since last July.

The American Embassy, meantime, announced that the U. S. Mediterranean fleet cruiser Juno is due to arrive off Athens October 14 on another "good-will visit." The aircraft carrier Leyte and the destroyer Massey will put in an appearance October 18.

Italian Reds Stone Socialist

Rome, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Socialist newspaper l'Umanita said today Communists stoned —(?)— Matteotti last night and forced him and other speakers to abondan the stand from which he was addressin ag rally of moderate-wing Socialists.

Matteotti is the son of Giacomo Matteotti, Socialist deputy who was slain by Fascists in 1924.

The attack, the second against Matteotti in two days reported by the newspaper, followed an appeal by the party to the government "for urgent measures" to assure freedom of speech in Italy.

Giuseppe Saragat, leader of the moderate Socialists who bolted the left-wing parent party last spring, was denounced as a "traitor" in the manifesto issued at a meeting of Communists in Poland recently who announced the formation of a new international Communist organization to combat "United States imperialism."

Coincident with the reported stoning of Matteotti last night and a beating administered to him the previous night, the moderate Socialists reported an intensification of the Communist propagadna campaign against them in connection with Rome's municipal elections to be held Sunday.

Palmiro Togliatti, Communist chief, in an interview with Corriere Della Sera of Milan, said today Russi was offering ten million tons of grain for sale. He declared Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrat government was ignoring the offer "because that would be against the Marshall Plan."

Togliatti did not amplify the statement.

U. S., Belgium U. N. Members Plan Java Flight to Seek Peace

Lake Success, Oct. 9 (AP).—U. S. and Belgian members of the Security Council's three-nation committee of "good offices" planned today to leave by air next Tuesday for Australia and the East Indies to seek means of settling the Dutch-Indonesian conflict peacefully.

The departure date was announced as the 11-nation Council continued debate on a Russian demand that Dutch and Indonesian troops in Java and Sumatra be ordered to withdraw to positions held before the armed conflict began in July.

T. G. Narayanan of India, a U. N. employe serving as the "good offices" committee's secretary, said the party would fly to Sydney by way of San Francisco. The two committeemen, Frank P. Graham of the United States and Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium, will be joined there by Justice Richard Kirby of Australia, and they will plan there the committee organization and program.

Narayanan said committee headquarters may be in Singapore.

The Soviet troop-withdrawal proposal was opposed before the Council by U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin, who questioned the legality of such action because of doubts as to whether the Dutch-Indonesian conflict was an international dispute.

(In Batavia, Java, the Dutch announced six Dutch "clearing sweeps," in which Indonesian Republicans said tanks and motorized infantry were used, were launched yesterday against Indonesian units behind Dutch lines in Java.)

Greek Refugee Problem Hard One to Solve

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Salonika, Macedonia, Greece (by airmail).—Coming from Athens to Macedonia, the problem of the refugees strikes you more than anything else, for it is the first visible sign of the devastation and ruin brought about by the Russian-sponsored civil war.

Two hundred thousand refugees, housed in miserable, small apartments, often with 12 people living in one room, or living without any roof over their heads, strikes you as a problem with no possible solution.

Indeed, to reporters lacking previous experience in Greece, this refugee problem appears to be colossal and unmanagable. Yet what a difference between 250,000 refugees all over Greece (200,000 in Macedonia and Thrace alone) and the million and a half 25 years ago, when the defeat of Asia Minor brought all these Greeks into this small country.

Let's go back to the dark reality of the new wave of refugees which has poured in all over Macedonia and Thrace. The methods of the Andartes, carefully worked out by some "unknown" experts, are adopted largely from the methods of the Germans. They try to intimidate the populace of the villages lying within the reach of their raids by killing people whose ideas differ from theirs, by looting the well-to-do, by indiscriminately killing many innocent people, and by burning a number of houses before withdrawing into the mountains. Each guerilla raid creates a panic and to spare their lives and some of their property, these unfortunate villagers pack their belongings on carts, attempting to reach centers they believe to be safe from Andartes raids.

It appears that public works initiated by the Griswold mission are the answer to the plight of these people. If they can be used for road building in and around Salonika, if they can be utilized for port construction or for repairing the railroads, their potential unrest would lose its fangs.

Russian Cotton Grown in Color On Way to U. S.

Moscow, Oct. 9 (U.P.).—The first naturally grown colored cotton shipped from the Soviet Union is now on its way to the United States. Cotton Merchant Beryl Lush of Philadelphia said today.

Lush said a five-ton sample of khaki cotton linters was aboard the Marshal Govarov, which sailed from Leningrad October 1. The ship is due in New York October 16.

The Philadelphian said he was "convinced there are commercial possibilities in this Soviet development of naturally colored cotton." He said he had been shown green cotton and understood that other colors were being produced in commercial quantities.

Lush said the Russian five-year plan could boost the cotton output in 1950 to 12 million bales, which is "more than the United States produces."

Inverchapel to Retire, London Paper Suggests

London, Oct. 9 (AP).—The left-wing Weekly Tribune today reported "indications that Lord Inverchapel intends to retire as Ambassador to Washington." It gave no amplification, and there was no government confirmation.

President Laughs Off Comment on Buttons

President Truman yesterday laughingly declined to comment on the appearance of Truman-for-President lapel buttons. Asked about them at his press conference, he said he hadn't seen them—even on his White House guests at a Democratic Women's Day rally the previous day.

He had seen pictures of them, he admitted, even including some fashioned into earrings. But, he observed, it was not within his province to disapprove of any sort of wearing apparel.

is not going to tell me what to eat. I pay for what I order."

Max Bassin, manager of Bassin's, said a male breakfaster informed him that he had never eaten there before, but decided to do so yesterday after reading a sign, reading "No Eggs Today."

Another restaurateur who posted table cards explaining the lack of poultry items on the menu and asking cooperation, reported that a customer handed it to a cashier with penciled notation that he would "cooperate by not eating here on Tuesdays and Thursdays."

Jack Haje, president of Haje's Inc., operators of six chicken dinner restaurants, announced last night that his shops had stopped serving poultry on Thursday and were offering customers chicken livers instead. He said consideration is now being given to the sale of sea food on Thursdays in the future.

The Chicken Hut, which eliminated poultry dishes, reported business "as usual" and no complaints.

Steak Houses May Close Tuesday

Operators of two steak houses reported no particular gains in business. They said they were considering removing steak from their Tuesday menus. Others, who normally close on Monday, were pondering whether to change the shutdown day to Tuesday and remain open on Monday.

One G st. owner, queried on whether he was serving eggs, replied that he was "and will continue to do so." An F st. lunch counter official reported "people were ordering eggs today more than ever."

A manager of one of a chain of cafeterias said that he saw little gain in the program. He declared that customers who passed up meat dishes on Tuesday ate them on Thursday and that those who boycotted poultry on Thursday probably ate them on Tuesday, so that he felt there was little over-all saving. The official recommended, instead, cutting down of portions by larger establishments and reduction of wastage.

Another restaurant man, shrugging his shoulders, said frankly: "Many people don't know what this food program is all about."

Restaurant Program Suggested

Last night the Washington Restaurant Association, whose 1200 members serve 1,250,000 meals a day, distributed copies of a conservation program intended to provide restaurateurs with "the machinery to meet the requirements of President Truman's food conservation program."

The program emphasized limitation of portions to "the amount which will be eaten," substitution of margarine for butter and use of leftovers. In addition, the association recommended:

In menu planning, use less expensive meats and fewer scarce food products; use plentiful products; use alternates for wheat cereals whenever possible.

Revival of the "clean-plate clubs," serving only the amount which patrons are likely to eat.

Training programs for production and service employes, emphasizing conservation suggestions.

Several hotels began contacting sponsors of banquets scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays asking permission to make substitutions on menus to meet the presidential recommendations. In Baltimore, hotel managers declared they were following a similar policy.

The Air Transport Association of America announced that all scheduled airlines would cooperate on the Tuesday and Thursday menu suggestions and were considering withdrawing bread from menus entirely.

Man Charged In Shooting

The Washington Post
JOHN M. GATLING
"I'm sorry that I shot them"

Man Shoots 3 Children

at 15th and C sts. se., when the shooting occurred.

Detectives William W. Friel and Ralph M. Shoemaker of the Fifth Precinct were nearby when the shooting happened. Rushing to the scene they found a truck had been peppered with shot. Near the truck were four children, three of them injured. A man, a passerby, told police he too had been struck by a pellet but that it had not penetrated his jacket.

The detectives went to Gatling's home and found he had reloaded his shotgun. They said to told them the children had been "tormenting" him, had been going on his porch and "bothering things."

AVC Will Fight Any Move for Sales Tax Here

Local chapters of the American Veterans Committee "will fight all attempts to introduce a sales tax to the District," Joseph A. Clorety, jr., chairman of the Greater Washington Area Council of AVC, announced yesterday.

He scored the tax as "one of the most unfair taxes that was ever invented. It hits those people who are least able to pay." Noting that the present tax structure required revision, Clorety recommended:

Extension of personal income tax to cover all persons who live in the District seven months of the year; increased Federal contribution to the District to a level commensurate with its position as the major real estate holder; repeal of personal property tax, and an increased inheritance tax rate.

Reno Protests Listing as 'Noisiest' City of U. S.

Reno, Oct. 9 (AP).—Reno residents arched their backs today and demanded to know "where do they get that stuff" when informed that a national survey shows this city of 30,000 persons is the noisiest in the United States.

"Noisest town in the country—why, hell, they're crazy!" roared gambling club operator Raymond I. Smith.

Smith had to cup his ear and holler "What?" twice before the reported could get the question across. In the center of his casino the clanking of slot machines made conversation all but impossible.

The rest of his comment was drowned out by a giant locomotive thundering through the center of town with a string of 70 freight cars.

Quiet spoken George Southworth, senior member of the city council, agreed pretty much with the survey.

"We are one of the few cities with 24-hour entertainment, a transcontinental railroad runs smack through the middle of the city, two national highways intersect at a downtown street corner, and all traffic is funnelled through the downtow narea because of the lack of arterial highways," he explained.

World Learns October 1 Crop Report Today

Chicago Board of Trade dropped from 30,836,000 bushels Monday to 20,017,000 Tuesday (the day the new margins went into effect), and to only 14,488,000 on Wednesday.

The biggest drop, however, was in corn, in which most of the type of trading that President Truman referred to as "gambling" has been going on since last spring.

Corn dealings dropped from 12,920,000 bushels Monday to 11,887,000 Tuesday and to only 7,580,000 on Wednesday.

This was the smallest amount of corn futures dealt in in any full day's trading since April 23—six months ago—when the total was 6,698,000 bushels. Wednesday's wheat dealings were the lowest since August 26, when they were 13,934,000. However, on that date, corn trading was at its height, totaling 20,997,000 bushels—a vast figure for the yellow grain.

Wild Trading at Chicago

Most of the wild trading in grain has centered in Chicago. In July and August 77.3 per cent of all future transactions in wheat, and an enormous 95.7 per cent in corn, took place at the Chicago Board of Trade.

The growth in trading in futures on the Chicago market is shown in the following figures recorded at the Commodity Exchange Authority of the Department of Agriculture:

Wheat, for the first quarter (January to March inclusive) 861,201,000 bushels; for the three months, April, May and June, 825,422,000 bushels, and for the last three months, July, August and September, 1,519,569,000 bushels.

(The entire wheat crop, by long odds the largest in history, was estimated September 1 at only 1,408,602,000 bushels.)

Corn trading involved 681,431,000 bushels in the first quarter; 1,112,380,000 in the second quarter, and 1,326,743,000 in the last three months.

Because of the shortage in the corn crop that started developing last May, there has been more speculation in that grain than in wheat.

Seeking Out Culprits

The Exchange Authority is now engaged in finding out who took part in the recent wild speculation in wheat.

It recently asked for a statemen of all positions—which means everybody's acount in which as much as 1000 bushels of wheat is involved—at the close of trading September 17. It also ordered all exchanges to report all transactions in those accounts September 18, 19 and 20.

A similar demand was made by the CEA on dealings in corn as of July 1. That report divulged, according to CEA that "of 4351 traders, 3932, or 90.4 per cent were indicated as speculative."

It is thought that early reports on the recent call for wheat data, and the reports on the July 1 corn trading, were behind Secretary of Agriculture Anderson's remark in Chicago yesterday that:

"I can call names—some of them public figures—who are speculating in large quantities of grain."

Anderson added that speculation in grains "jeopardizes our economic stability, and when the Chicago exchange alone shows trading of 666 million bushels, or half the entire crop in one month, I know there is speculation."

Wheat Dealings Sixfold

CEA figures show that wheat dealings grew to 666 million bushels in September, from 387 million in August, 465 million in July, 254 million in April and as low as 104 million in January.

In the meantime corn dealings grew from 158 million bushels in January to 501 in June, 487 million in July, 460 million in August and 378 million last month.

Many fortunes were made and lost in the markets, reliable reports at CEA say, and many prominent names, some of them in the Government, are listed as among the winners.

Today's crop estimate is regarded as the most authentic of the year. After October 1 little can take place to alter materially the harvest of this year's grain. Many experts predict it will show considerable improvement over last month's estimate of only 2,403,913,000 bushels of corn and a whopping 1,408,602,600 bushels of wheat. It was the indicated drop of 885 million bushels of corn, America's basic crop, bringing this year's total grain production to a dangerously low figure in view of world commitments, that precipitated the Nation-wide food conservation program.

Yesterday, in spite of reduced trading due to high margins, wheat was again leading a rising grain market. December futures reached $2.92½ a bushel, with a day's trading of $3, and from one to three cents above Wednesday. Corn was steady.

Inspite of the voluntary embargo on eggs, egg futures moved up slightly, gaining almost 1½ cents a dozen.

Strengthening the grain market was the announcement by the Agriculture Department, printed in The Washington Post October 4, that 50,812,054 bushels of grain had been exported in September.

So far this year, the release said, 192 million bushels have been shipped abroad, compared with only 94 million at this time last year.

The exports totaled 1,335,000 tons; of which 441,000 went to zones occupied by American armed forces (and paid for by the United States) and 294,000 tons to the United States Foreign Relief Program.

British Won't Cut Own, But Will Boost, Distilling

London, Oct. 9 (AP).—Philip Gee, official spokesman for the Scots Whisky Association, said tonight British distilleries not only will not follow the lead of American whisky makers in cutting production, but are looking forward to higher production and a large increase next year in barley allocations.

"The industry is worth more than 30 million dollars a year to Britain—in dollars—and we need dollars as everybody knows," Gee explained.

Truman Stresses Need for Self-Denial

expensive to feed grain to poultry and livestock.

"When you save meat and save poultry products you save grain and grain is what is necessary to meet the hunger situation in Europe. It is the most economical way to meet it."

Ordinarily, the President is never quoted after a news conference. However, in response to a request yesterday, he gave reporters permission to quote him, saying that what he had said was just a statement of the facts.

Thus, although Anderson had escaped a direct rebuke, the statements attributed to him had been strongly disavowed as Administration doctrine.

Associates of Anderson said last night that the quotations ascribed to him might have given a distorted view of his real meaning. They recalled that he has frequently remarked here that he didn't expect meatless days and eggless days to save much grain in themselves. He did expect that they would be valuable as a "daily reminder" of the need to conserve food.

Anderson has often remarked that the constant hammering on meatless Tuesday and eggless Thursday, by newspapers and radio, would have a decided effect in impressing farmers with the need to save grain. He has preached that the real savings in grain must come at the farm, where, "after all, more than 75 per cent of all the grain raised is consumed."

Congressmen Astounded

Several members of Congress professed amazement at Anderson's Chicago remarks. Among them were Senators Lucas (D., Ill.), and Ellender (D., La.) and Representative Pace (D., Ga.). They said they understood the purpose of the individual sacrifices was to save food.

Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) said he thought the meatless and eggless days were "primarily for bringing home to everyone the necessity for saving food."

In Chicago, Secretary Anderson said that meatless days were "like going to church on Sunday."

"It's a reminder," he said.

Chairman Luckman of the Citizens Food Committee took that as his theme for a statement on Anderson's Chicago remarks, saying:

"I feel that we have undertaken a solemn obligation to humanity, and I agree with the Secretary of Agriculture that meatless days are like going to church on Sunday. I believe that going to church is profoundly important—more important than ever before in these troublous times.

Distillery Unemployment Seen

"From all the facts made available by the State Department, the War Department and the Cabinet Food Committee, the conclusion is that we are facing an immediate world food crisis.

"It was agreed by all concerned that there is no better or faster way to solve this crisis of hunger than the three-way conservation program outlined on the radio Sunday night, which provides for the mutual participation of farmers, industry and the public. No one of these alone can do the job."

At yesterday's White House news conference, a reporter said that claims had been made that from 30,000 to 100,000 persons would be thrown out of work if the distilleries shut down for 60 days.

Mr. Truman said that he didn't know about that. What he was after, he said, was 10 million bushels of grain.

Petroleum Council Won't Help Draft Bill

The National Petroleum Council yesterday refused to help the Interior Department draft legislation permitting the Government to lease the country's oil-rich submerged tidelands off the California Coast.

Walter Hallanan, council chairman, said his organization could not assume that the Government "owns or should own these lands," despite a Supreme Court ruling giving Federal authorities sole control. He said the decision "is not final" since a motion for rehearing is pending.

Soprano Sued for $75,000

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP).—Vivian Della Chiesa, opera soprano, today was sued for $75,000 by Mrs. Adrienne Ellis, 34, who alleged the singer was responsible for the loss of her husband's love. Mrs. Ellis and George Ellis, New York publicity and advertising man, were divorced in 1946.

until it was pried out by newspaper men.

The Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, charged yesterday that this policy was practically an admission that the acts of the local boards could not stand public opinion.

At least one member of the press gallery wrote a protest against suppression of the Louisville and other cases. Creedon's aides refused to give out this letter, but late yesterday announced a policy which they said removed all ground for complaint. Here's the new policy:

"Recommendations of local advisory boards to the expediter are to be publicized locally before they are transmitted to Washington. When received in Washington they are public documents and may be inspected by interested persons. On recommendations which are transmitted to Washington without local publicity it will still be our policy to make them available for public inspection in this office when they are received. In general, our desire is to have the recommendations publicized in the community or area directly affected."

Harvey W. Brown, president of the machinists union, began fighting the Louisville rent raise some weeks ago. Yesterday Brown called on President Truman to fire Creedon before he lets the country in for "a cruel rent inflation."

Brown pointed out that the Louisville rent board is composed of two real estate men, two real estate lawyers and the manager of a bank real estate department.

When did U. S.-Soviet trouble really begin? James F. Byrnes tells the facts—starting Oct. 15 in The Post

Chinese Reds Gain Control In New Drives

Nanking, Oct. 9 (AP).—New Communist gains in Manchuria and raids deep behind government lines in China proper were reported today as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek declared "we will not lightly yield one single inch of our northeastern (Manchurian) territory to the rebels."

Chiang

Chiang charged that the Communists were seeking to "undermine the nation's progress toward full democracy by posing as friends of democracy." He urged his people to "discard all bad habits such as laxity and extravagance, superfluousness and opportunism."

Chiang mentioned that "even a nation of the wealth and strength of the United States has asked its people to conserve food" and "the thoroughness with which Britain is enforcing its austere economic program."

News from the battlefronts continued unfavorable to the government.

Dispatches from Manchuria said the Communists had broken into Yingkow, important entry port for government supplies and troops, and were attacking Tiehling, 40 miles northeast of Mukden.

The railroad running northeast from China proper through Mukden and Changchun had been cut at so many places that the government's Manchurian "corridor" was described as a series of "islands."

The behind-the-lines raiders of Communist Gen. Liu Po-Cheng were reported active again just north of the Yangtze River.

Lasting Peace Sole U. S. Aim, Truman Says at Conference

channels were centuries old in that area and could not be dammed by politics.

Sees Trade Resumption

He said, in answer to a question, that he felt interzonal trade would be resumed no matter what Russia might think of it.

He added that the 16 western participants in the Marshall Plan counted on revival of European trade when they drafted their aid requirements at Paris. The validity of these assumptions, he said, would be determined not by politics but by production.

The Marshall Plan and reduction of trade barriers, Clayton said, were mutually dependent and tariff negotiations at Geneva should result in greater exports to the United States, which should increase Europe's ability to get back on its economic feet. Tariff reductions resulting from these negotiations, he warned, would have little immediate effect because of money difficulties.

He said the dollar position of France and Italy constituted an emergency requiring urgent attention.

Mr. Truman told his news conference in answer to a question that although everything possible was being done to aid France, no way had yet been found to send money at once. Asked if revival of the Comintern had made aid to western Europe more urgent, the President replied that it always had been urgent.

Questioned further, he said there had been no resurvey of sources for stopgap aid pending organization of the Marshall Plan, that such a search had been going on since the question came up. The Government, he added, was still looking for every dollar it could find.

The State Department, meanwhile, confessed it was stymied so far in its efforts to bolster France's dollar purchasing power. Herve Alphand, chief of economic affairs for the French Foreign Ministry, warned Wednesday that his country's dollars would run out by October 15.

Alphand pointed to three possible sources of immediate financial help:

1. Return of 37 million dollars of gold looted by the Japanese from French Indo-China.

2. Return of 80 million to 90 million looted by the Nazis and recovered by Allied troops.

3. Payment by the United States of 50 million to 60 million dollars due for support of American troops in France.

Only the item for troop expenses could be paid by the United States acting alone. Payment of either of the others would require international action.

On Capitol Hill Chairman Eaton (R., N. J.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday came out for "some kind of emergency relief" for France and Italy. He expressed hope for action by a special session of Congress "by December".

"Time is of the essence", Eaton said. "There can be no dawdling over this thing. If it is true that on December 1 France and Italy won't be able to buy fuel to keep from freezing this winter, we're going to have to do something by December".

He said he had received information which convinced him that the situation in western Europe was so serious that the United States could not escape providing aid "as speedily as possible".

ments to the Trans-Arabian Pipe Line Co. in the current quarter. He said he was pleased that this was cut from the 40,000 tons originally considered.

Forrestal's quotes were read to newsmen by the Nebraskan, who declined to amplify what the National Defense Secretary meant by "National interest."

Will Save U. S. Oil

It was pointed out, however, that development of Saudi-Arabian oil resources would obviously relieve the drain on American oil supplies. Wherry said he thought it "tied in to the Marshall Plan."

The Small Business Committee chairman said Acting Secretary of State Lovett agreed with Forrestal's conclusions that development of Middle East oil resources is essential to the National interest. He said the State Department was also interested in the "social and economic developments in the area."

In approving the steel shipment to Saudi-Arabia the Commerce Department recently noted that "the strategical, political and economic interests of the United States made such action desirable."

Pipe Line to Extend 1140 Miles

The Commerce Department had added:

"The construction of a pipe line which would permit a more competitive transportation cost will greatly increase the incentive for more rapid development of Middle East crude supplies for world markets and thereby permit earlier relief of the present drain on Eastern Hemisphere reserves of petroleum.

"At present this drain is a seriouh and alarming one from the viewpoint of the conservation of our natural resources."

The pipe line will extend 1140 miles from Saudi Arabia to the Mediterranean Sea near Sidon, in Lebanon, and will have a maximum capacity of 400,000 barrels of crude oil a day.

Wherry said he is informed 480,000 tons of steel will be required to complete the entire installation by January, 1950. He said 305,000 tons of this would go into the actual piple and the balance into maintenance facilities.

Spanish Duke Set To Spend $370,000 On Wedding Fete

Sevilla, Spain, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Duke of Alba was reported today to have set aside the equivalent of $370,000 for the marriage ceremony and wedding feast Sunday of his daughter, the Duchess of Montor, to Luis Martinez Irujo, fourth son of the Duke of Sotomayor.

The wedding feast in the duke's Palace de las Duenas for 2200 guests will cost $70,000 alone, it was learned. About $4400 worth of lobsters and shellfish were provided for one course and 1000 chicken breasts will be served.

The duke has donated $4400 to the poor of Sevilla and made a multitude of other gifts in connection with the wedding.

The duchess, 21, will wear jewels valued at about $1,300,000 at the rites. These will include a diadem of precious stones and pearl earrings in the shape of pears and a collar of diamonds.

Washingtonian Named Dean at New College

Erie, Pa., Oct. 9 (AP).—Dr. Maurice M. Hartmann, Washington, D. C., today was named dean of faculty at Erie's new Gannon College.

Dr. Hartmann, former assistant director of public relations for the National Catholic Community Service and a former English teacher, will begin his new duties Wednesday. He is a native of St. Louis, Mo.

FISH vs. MEAT!

In these days of high meat prices why not make your dollars go farther by eating more FISH, particularly HADDOCK FILLETS?

The HADDOCK is the best known and the BEST of all varieties of FISH caught in the cold waters of the North Atlantic. In its filleted form, clean slices of meat free from bones, it is in great demand all over these United States. Like Beef, it can be eaten as a steady part of your diet, without losing its wonderful taste and appeal.

And just like Beef, there are various grades of Haddock: "choice," "good" and "commercial." Try GOLD BOND HADDOCK FILLETS. No finer HADDOCK FILLET can be bought anywhere at any price.

Audit Plan Is Changed

collection turn-ins for three police benefit associations.

Annual reports of Juvenile Court show that more than a quarter of a million dollars a year is paid into financial clerk of the court each year. Judge Bentley pointed out that 90 per cent of the $320,769.52 paid into court last year came through the police station houses.

The Non-support Act of 1912 provides that the court can order money paid through the police precinct stations.

There are two types of funds they can collect for the Juvenile Court:

1. Payments ordered by the court for the support of wives and minor children.

2. Money to be paid by agreement between husband and wife at pretrial hearing for the support of a wife and children.

West Virginian Buys Into San Diego Paper

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 9 (AP).—Fifty-one per cent interest in the San Diego Daily Journal was acquired today by John A. Kennedy, West Virginia newspaperman and radio station owner, Clinton D. McKinnon, founder and publisher, announced.

Kennedy, who will become editor and president of the corporation, formerly owned the Clarksburg, W. Va., Exponent, and founded that city's radio station WBLK. During World War II he was a Navy captain on the staff of Admiral Frederick Horne, Chief of Naval Operations, and after Japan's surrender was an assistant to the then Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal. McKinnon, who founded the paper in March, 1944, will remain as publisher.

Arabs to Send Troops to Holy Land Border

military forces from the Arab States of the Middle East.

The Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, Haj Amin el Husseini, arrived here yesterday from Egypt to consult with Arab leaders.

Display Military Strength

Dispatches from Palestine said Jewish Agency leaders had called on Jewish veterans of the North African and Italian campaigns to join a Jewish army for a "life or death showdown" with the Arabs.

Talk of an Arab invasion of Palestine came amid a display of Arab military strength staged by members of the Palestine Arab Higher Committee attending the council meeting.

Food and cavalry troops paraded past members of the committee at Camp Elish, situated on the Lebanese plains and ringed by mountains. It was noted that flag bearers carried emblems of all the seven Arab countries as well as crescents and crosses to symbolize the unity of Arab Moslems and Christians.

It was reported that Saudi Arabia has obtained permission from Egypt to send its army, which probably could be expected to conduct a guerilla type of campaign, across the Sinai Peninsula to Palestine. The Sinai Peninsula, east of the Suez Canal, borders the entire southern frontier of Palestine where many Jewish settlements have been established.

Fawzi El Kaukji, the Arab leader who led the 1936-1939 uprising has been reported gathering an army in Lebanon which would cooperate with the regulars in any Palestine action.

The decision to mass troops along the Palestine border was considered to be one of the most important ever taken by the Arab League.

"This time we mean business," a league source said. "If the British abandon the country and the Jews lift a finger, we will be ready to enter Palestine and defend Arab rights."

These sources said that any attempt to enforce a solution which does not establish Palestine as an independent Arab nation will be opposed by the united Arab forces.

1000 Librarins Attend Meeitng At Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 9 (AP).—Approximately 1000 librarians arrived in Baltimore today for the first regional library conference to be held in the East since the war.

A three-day program with emphasis on "the education of this generation" got under way with addresses by Dr. Helen Dwight Reid, of the American Association of University Women, who spoke on "Social Energy versus Atomic Energy," and Mark Starr, educational director of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (AFL), who discussed "Resolving America's Problems."

Delegates represented libraries in Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and the District of Columbia.

Bacon Ration to Be Cut

London, Oct. 9 (AP).—The bacon ration will be cut to 1 ounce a week, the Ministry of Food announced tonight. The ration now is 2 ounces per person. The cut, effective October 19, was ascribed to packing house strikes in Canada.

Junior Chamber Asks D. C. Schools To Train Drivers

The Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday urged District School Superintendent Hobart Corning to make use of American Automobile Association facilities to further a high school driver training program.

James S. Beattie, president of the JCC, pointed out that the program was at a standstill because no instructors are available although the automotive industry has offered eight cars to be used in driver training.

Beattie, in a letter to Corning, pointed out the AAA has offered to give courses for instructors in order to relieve the situation.

The JCC president also requested that Dr. Corning "give official circulation to the AAA's offer and solicit volunteers from the teachers in the school system to further this program."

Denny Quits FCC, Giving Pay as Reason

Charles R. Denny, of Washington, has resigned as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, the White House announced yesterday.

Denny

The youthful chairman was one of the authors and the promulgator of the controversial FCC "Blue Book", the government's sharply critical document on the radio industry. During his term of office he was known as a champion of more vigorous competition in radio.

Denny refused yesterday to disclose his future plans but according to widespread and apparently reliable reports will shortly accept a position in New York with the National Broadcasting Company.

Denny in his resignation wrote to President Truman that "from a financial standpoint it is not possible for me to remain longer in Government service.

Mr. Truman said he accepted his departure, with "exceeding regret" and complimented him on his "high quality of public service."

The President also praised him for his four-and-one-half etaoin for his 4½-month work as head of the United States delegation to the series of international telecommunications conferences at Atlantic City, N. J.

Mr. Truman gave no hint of Denny's successor but it has been reported that if, and when, he departed, the President would go outside the present commission membership to pick a new chairman who will be a Democrat. The other commissioners are Paul A. Walker, Robert F. Jones, Clifford J. Durr, E. K. Jett, Rosel H. Hyde and Edward M. Webster.

The post pays $10,000 a year.

Denny told Mr. Truman that he would submit a report on the international meetings to Secretary of State George C. Marshall. He added that he was confident the new international telecommunications treaty and radio regulations, signed by 78 countries, would prove "satisfactory in every respect."

Denny, 35, took over the chairmanship last December. He had been appointed a commissioner in March, 1945, and became acting chairman a year later when Paul Porter, then chairman, was named price administrator.

Marine Killed, Man Injured In Truck Collision

A 22-year-old Quantico Marine was killed and another man injured seriously yesterday morning in a truck collision on U. S. Route 1, about 12 miles south of Alexandria.

State police identified the dead man as Pfc. Kenneth D. Tracy of Tioga, W. Va. In serious condition at Alexandria Hospital with several fractured ribs and a possible skull fracture was Samuel W. Lacey, RFD 2, Alexandria.

Police said Lacey's southbound truck, in which Tracy was a passenger, rammed a slow moving lumber truck going in the same direction and drove in under the truck trailer. The men were crushed as the tail of the larger truck crashed into their windshield.

Students Escape Blaze

Philadelphia, Oct. 9 (AP).—Fire swept through the upper stories of the 50-year-old Benjamin Franklin High School today but 2200 students filed out safely in what they thought was just another drill during Fire Prevention Week. Three firemen were injured in the hour-long blaze. Traffic along congested Broad and Spring Garden sts. was rerouted.

Truman Urges National Health Insurance

Atlantic City, Oct. 9 (AP).—President Truman tonight expressed hope that the Government would soon adopt a system of national health insurance and give greater support to medical research by passage of a suitable national science foundation bill.

His message praised the "devoted and unselfish service" of five scientists and two groups who received the 1947 Lasker Awards at the association's annual banquet.

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon-general of the United States Public Health Service, a special award of $2500 for outstanding contributions to national health and the world health organization.

Dr. Oswald T. Avery of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research for studies on antigenic constitution of bacteria, especially the pneumococcus.

Dr. Thomas Francis, jr., University of Michigan School of Public Health for his contribution to knowledge of influenza

Dr. Homer Smith, New York University College of Medicine, for studies on the heart and blood vessels.

Dr. Alice Hamilton, 78, Hadlyme, Conn., for her life of public service in prevention of occupational diseases.

Doctors Avery, Francis, Smith and Hamilton received $1000 awards.

Britain Seen Giving Up Italian Ships

London, Oct. 9 (AP).—An authoritative government source said today Britain also will renounce her claim to some of the Italian warships awarded her by the peace treaty, in keeping with the western powers' policy of supporting the non-Communist government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

The British Foreign Office declined to comment on the reported move, which would be similar to the step taken by the United States. American officials said the U. S. was renouncing an Italian battleship and all other war vessels awarded that country by the treaty.

The British informant, like the American officials, emphasized that Italy would have to scrap any combat ships not claimed by Britain under the disarmament clauses of the Italian peace treaty.

Country Fair Planned

A country fair sponsored by the ladies' auxiliary of the Hillandale (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department will be held tomorrow beginning at 2 p. m. at the Hillandale Recreation Center. The auxiliary will serve dinner at the firehouse in the evening. The center is on New Hampshire ave. extended, about five miles from the District line.

Soviet Bloc Vows to Boycott U. N. 'Watchdog' Commission

ceeding if Greece's northern neighbors refuse to cooperate with it or refuse to let commission investigators enter their territory to obtain evidence.

With Slavic criticism of the commission reaching new heights, there was no apparent possibility that the Soviet satellites would cooperate in any stage of the proceedings.

This sobering realization was offset partly as far as the American delegation was concerned — by word from New Delhi that the Indian delegation would "stand fast" in its campaign to defeat the Soviet-backed Ukraine in a race for election to the powerful Security Council.

The United States strongly backed India's candidacy in an effort to strip the council of all Soviet sympathizers, despite U. N. practice which has allowed Russia and one of its satellites to sit on the council.

The General Assembly went through nine ballots on the India-Ukraine dispute last week without being able to give either candidate the two-thirds vote necessary to elect. Tremendous Soviet pressure was put on India to drop out of the race, and the Indian delegation went so far as to consult its government. But New Delhi's reply was that India would "stand fast."

More Name-Calling

The Political Committee debate, for the third consecutive day, rapidly degenerated into another session of name-caling.

Oscar Lange of Poland protested that U. N. was being used "for ganging up against one group of nations, or, rather, against one big power associated with these nations." Certain little countries, Lange said, were the real victims.

Spaak, speaking with one of his rare displays of emotion, lashed at the Soviet satellites' previous refusals to cooperate with investigating commissions, and challenged the accuracy of statements made by Yugoslavia's wide-swinging Bebler.

Bebler shot back: "Spaak, just before this meeting, told me the true cause of the troubles in the Balkans was not the border incidents, but could be found within Greece."

Bebler turned on Spaak and asked: "Well?"

Spaak did not reply.

U.S. General Urged 'Action' in Greece, Rep. Bishop Says

By The Associated Press

Representative Bishop (R., Ill.), writing to his office from Europe, quotes an American general in Athens as replying "yes" when asked if "the only way out" of the Greek problem is "direct military action" against Russia.

Bishop, whose diary notes were made public by his office, told of his arrival in the Greek capital and of being briefed by Dwight Griswold, head of the U. S. aid mission, and "members of his staff, including the military."

"I talked to a general who expressed himself that the give-away program wasn't getting us anywhere except future trouble," wrote Bishop, who did not identify the officer.

"I asked him," Bishop continued. "If he thought the only way out was direct military action against the Soviets and his answer was 'yes.'"

3 Frenchmen Injured In German Sugar Riots

Nance, France, Oct. 9 (U.P.).—Three persons were hospitalized today after a mob of workers, protesting sugar shipments to Germany, attempted to storm police barricades guarding Nancy's city hall.

Labor leaders voted to call a one-day general strike tomorrow throughout the department of Meurthe-St.-Moselle, to protest police use of tear gas to disperse the rioters. The riot was the latest of a series of outbreaks inspired by the shipment of large quantities of French-refined American sugar to occupied Germany.

Europe Aid Speed Urged by Dirksen

Illinoisan Differs With Taber on Hunger, Warns of Soviet Advance to Atlantic

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, Oct. 9.—Representative Everett M. Dirksen, Republican, of Illinois said here today that unless the United States gives a "decent amount of help" to western Europe the Soviet union will push its influence to the Atlantic, thus threatening America's security.

Dirksen

Dirksen is making a survey for Representative John Taber, Republican, of New York, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, of which Dirksen is a member. He said he had reached this conclusion after an intensive five-week study of conditions in Europe. His tour, he said, also has convinced him that there is need for a special session of Congress to provide aid for Europe as soon as possible.

He said that as soon as he arrived back in the United States—on October 24—he would do his best to reach congressional leaders, and in conversations with them, would draw from his experiences abroad to document the case for swift aid to Europe.

Dirksen made a point of saying he had found much undernourishment in Europe. Specifically, he said that in the Ruhr a lack of vitality among the people was the main reason why coal production was hot increasing satisfactorily.

His views are in contrast with those of Taber, who said here last week that he had not seen any underfed people in Germany, or elsewhere in Europe. When he made this statement, he had been in Germany only three days.

In the opinion of Army aides, and of officials who have worked with him, Dirksen has been one of the most energetic of the visitors in the pursuit of facts.

He has used his knowledge of German to question people of all kinds. By contrast with some of the visitors, who have contented themselves with statistics, he has insisted on going into homes, mines and factories.

Taber Calls for Action Against Communism

Paris, Oct. 9 (AP).—Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, called tonight for United States action against communism, but declined to comit himself on the Marshall program for aid to Europe.

"There is little difference between Stalin and Hitler, except that Stalin is a little slicker," Taber said after his arrival here from a tour of Germany. He was accompanied by committee members Richard B. Wigglesworth (R., Mass.) and Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.).

Golden Gate Eateries Reject Truman Plan

San Francisco, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Golden Gate Restaurant Association of San Francisco, to which most of the city's eating places belong, today rejected President Truman's program for meatless Tuesdays and eggless Thursdays.

Instead, they offered a 15-point program of their own which included elimination of scarce items, reduction of menu items "wherever possible," and banning of bread and butter except on customer request.

Congressmen Set Two Conditions on Aid

called Marshall Plan, should be administered.

Committee members brought back 18 trunks full of data they had collected in European countries. They agreed that they had been too "stuffed" with information to agree at this time on how much short-term help would be needed, how much the United States could provide, whether it should be made as a gift or a loan, and what mechanisms would be needed to make it effective.

Guarded comments of individual members showed that some would have different ideas from others, and that the committee might produce majority and minority reports. The group has not yet tried to iron out differences, and will not try apparently until the November 5 meeting.

No Decision on Session

Representative August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), who studied agricultural conditions in 11 countries, said: "Most of us were surprised to find the Europeans living so good." He conceded, however, that they were suffering from a bad drought "and may need some imports to keep going." The food situation was worst, he said, in Austria and Germany.

He said the committee had made no decision about the need of a special session of Congress, but he did not think Commodity Credit Corporation funds could be used for relief purposes outside the United States.

Representative Francis Case (R., S. Dak.) was asked what he thought of his fellow Republican, Representative John Taber, (N.Y.), that he had seen no underfed people in Europe.

"Well, I saw some underfed people in the Ruhr and Berlin," said Case.

Other committee members declined to comment on European conditions, although many of them praised the job done by Herter as chairman.

Another passenger on the Queen Mary was Sir Oliver Franks, president of the 16-nation conference which recently drew up a European reconstruction program at Paris. Franks was on his way to Washington, where he will be at the disposal of American officials who are working on a changed version of the Paris program for eventual submission to Congress.

Rites Today For War Dead At Arlington

Arrival of the first shipment of American war dead in San Francisco today will be marked by a 21-gun salute at Fort Myer and the Army War College and lowering of flags to half staff at all local Army installations.

Later this month, the Army will hold solemn rites at Arlington Cemetery in honor of those war dead whose bodies are being returned to the United States from overseas.

Remains of 36 Washington area war dead are among the 3000-odd bodies of fallen servicemen from the Pacific theater docking today aboard the Army transport Honda Knot. Arriving at New York about October 26 will be a shipment of approximately 6000 war dead from the European theater.

The 21-gun salute at Fort Myer and the Army War College will be fired at noon today and at the same hour on whatever date the European shipment arrives in New York.

Besides Army and Navy personnel, solemn rites for the returning war dead will be observed in Arlington Cemetery ceremonies later this month by local veterans' organizations.

Dr. Hervey Named To Head Blood Bank Program

Dr. George W. Hervey, former chief administrative analyst for the director of plans, Army Surgeon General's Office, has been named head of the statistical division, American Red Cross National Blood Program.

The Red Cross headquarters said Dr. Hervey will establish methods for collection and analysis of data related to the program. Dr. Ross T. McIntire, former surgeon general of the Navy is director of the program, which plans to provide free blood and blood derivatives.

A veteran of both World Wars, Dr. Hervey has been doing statistical research for the government and organizations since coming here in 1925. Before that, he was a staff member of the New Jersey and Missouri State Agricultural Experiment stations.

Gen. Keyes Reduces 5 Austrians' Sentences

Vienna, Oct. 9 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes, American high commissioner for Austria, announced tonight he had "sharply reduced" prison sentences recently given five Austrians for inciting antisemetic riots.

The Austrians had been convicted by an American military court of inciting hunger demonstrators to throw rocks at Jewish displaced persons' billets at Bad Ischel last June. Two were released and the others' sentences were reduced six months to a year.

Tenor Gafni Began Career In Nazi Camp

Concentration camps are not generally thought of as places where great tenors are discovered.

Gafni

Yet Miklos Gafni, interned in a Nazi camp, and three times lined up with others to be shot, was started on the road to vocal fame by his fellow prisoners. The system of shooting was to take every fifth man from the line and finish him off immediately, Gafni said, "then those of us who were left dug the graves and buried them."

But in his room at the Raleigh Hotel, the 24-year-old tenor, who is singing at Constitution Hall on October 23, no longer shows the signs of his imprisonment. His camp weight was just 90 pounds but today he is well over 200. With a new movie contract, he has taken on a diet with which he has no sympathy. He can eat no bread, butter, sugar or other filling items.

In the midst of his first long American tour, Gafni is eager to acquire citizenship here as soon as possible. Hardly less important to him is the matter of a wife. Asked if he liked American girls, Mikki laughed and said, "No, I don't like them, I love them."

Miklos Gafni has been singing for only three years, but after hearing him in recital early this week, it is easy to see what the New York critic meant who said he had "the most purely beautiful tenor voice this reporter has heard in years."

Va. Barter Players To Appear Here In 'Twelfth Night'

The Barter Players of Virginia, the only State-subsidized stock company in the country, will appear in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" at Western High School on Monday night at 8:30 p. m.

The performance, first appearance of the Barter Players in Washington, is jointly sponsored by the Washington Arts Center Association, Inc., and the D. C. Recreation Department.

The 15-year-old theater group first received State aid in 1946, when it received a grant from the Virginia Conservation Commission. This year three Barter companies are touring the United States to present "decentralized" theater to communities and States.

Tickets for the Washington performance go on sale at the Snow Concert Bureau, 1108 G st. nw., today.

Flanders Urges Food Price Control as Va. Hearing Ends

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) at the close of his congressional subcommittee's price hearings here today declared "we have not yet found any alternative to some measure of controls at least on the basic items of food."

The committee ended a three-day session with Senator Flanders' comment that he was impressed by the greater impact of higher prices in this area because of low wages for workers generally and particularly with the wage differential against Negroes.

Senator Francis J. Myers (R., Pa.) and Representative Edward J. Hard (R., N. J.) took sharp issue with a statement from R. S. Reynolds of Reynolds Metals Co. that production and more production is the answer to higher prices.

Aluminum was a tight monopoly before the war, and the lower prices now, they asserted, were merely the result of breaking up that monopoly which kept prices artificially high.

George S. Harris, president of Dan River Mills, Inc., told the committee prices of his goods were only 1 2/3 per cent higher than levels which would have been allowed under OPA regulations.

He said his company would make up to 10 million dollars this year, or about 13 per cent on sales. He said, however, that the mill's profit on three yards of cloth worth $1.35 to $1.55 at the mill was only 18 cents, although the dress made from it might sell for as much as $14.95.

Lowered prices at mills would not be reflected in consumer prices, he said, adding that some low-priced goods from his mill had gone into the market at greatly inflated prices after he had sold it.

3 Hearings Set On Pleas to Raise Price of Milk

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Three hearings on petitions for increases in the retail price of milk are scheduled in Virginia for next week, as John W. Owen, secretary of the State Milk Commission, said today he predicted further requests for price boosts.

A hearing on a petition from Danville milk producers will be held in Danville October 15. Milk now retails there for 20 cents a quart.

Producers in the Alexandria area will present their case for an increase over the present price of 19½ cents a quart at a hearing in Alexandria October 17.

A hearing will be conducted in Fredericksburg October 18 when producers of that area will ask authorities to raise the price of 19 cents a quart.

Episcopal Women Of Southwest Va. Elect Officers

Staunton, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—The Woman's Auxiliary in the Episcopal Diocese of Southwestern Virginia closed its twenty-eighth annual convention today with the election of new officers and heard a report on the Covington Boys Home.

The delegates selected Christ Church in Roanoke as the site of the 1948 convention and voted to hold future annual meetings in May instead of October.

The officers elected follow: Mrs. F. G. Carrington, Lynchburg, second vice president; Mrs. O. B. Barker, jr., Lynchburg, secretary, and Mrs. William Charles Lukens, Roanoke, treasurer.

Officers whose terms extend through 1948 are Mrs. H. Powell Chapman, Roanoke, president; Mrs. Julius Goodman, Christiansburg, first vice president; Mrs. R. H. Lee, Amherst, third vice president, and Mrs. Lewis Yates, Roanoke, correspondent secretary.

Florida Grapefruit Arrives

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

Florida grapefruit began arriving on the Washington market this week.

They're the first of the crop and some of them are a bit sour, but their arrival means grapefruit is plentiful here for the first time in many weeks. Priced around 9 cents a pound, they're considerably lower than the Puerto Rican grapefruit, the only one on the market lately.

Other changes were evident yesterday in the local picture on fruits and vegetables—about our most abundant foods now and among the few it doesn't take grain to produce.

More winted squash, both Hubbard and Acorn, is reaching the market. Lettuce, celery, spinach, kale and other leafy greens are the most plentfiul of all vegetables, and the price on lettuce has dropped slightly.

Few snapbeans are coming in due to frosts in New York State and storms in Florida. Lima bean supplies also are on the wane. Fine, big tomatoes are arriving from California. They are higher in price but sounder than Eastern tomatoes, which have been hit by frost and blight. Peppers and radishes are still abundant here.

Most of the Eastern apples on the market this week are seconds, with first quality apples going into storage. Many varieties are available, however, and prices are moderate. Western box apples, more expensive but of finer quality, also are found on the market, as well as many Bosc and D'Anjou pears.

Such fruit as damsons, sickle pears and crab apples are now available to the housewife interested in making preserves. Quinces are just beginning to come in. Pickling onions are plentiful and inexpensive.

Lower prices on chicken and lamb await the shopper this weekend. Frying-sized chickens are selling at 45 to 47 ents a pound, compared with 49 cents last weekend. High grade leg of lamb can be purchased for 49 cents a pound in some stores, with the price ranging up to 59 cents in others.

Spastics Find Hope At Institute Here

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

As you walk into the Kabat-Kaiser Institute for Neuromuscular Rehabilitation at 2633 16th st. nw. you brush by a man of about 37.

He is a patient. He wears a bathrobe. His features are strong and intelligent. You notice that his gait is unsteady.

Later you are told that he is a spastic—one of this country's 500,000 victims of spastic paralysis.

You also learn that while his is a "fairly severe" case and he has been under treatment for a year, he holds down an important mechanical engineering job with one of the Nation's biggest industrial firms.

"The vast majority of spastic patients are of normal intelligence," says Dr. Kabat, "and many of them are of superior intelligence."

You have seen spastics. Sometimes their heads jerk uncertainly. Or it may be their arms. Or their legs. Or perhaps their speech is delivered with great difficulty.

This is National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week. What about the spastics, Dr. Kabat?

At least 10 per cent of the 500,000 spastics are employable now. With proper treatment between 25 and 50 per cent of all spastics could be rehabilitated for employment, Dr. Kabat believes.

He sets a ceiling of 50 per cent because: (1) an estimated 30 per cent of the cases could not be rehabilitated, and (2) another 20 per cent are not bright enough (probably because of a brain injury at birth).

In connection with National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, the institute is holding an open house for the public tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Dr. Kabat has two patients whose cases bear directly on jobs and the physically handicapped. Both of them are young men. Both have been spastics from birth. Both have been under treatment for six months.

One of the patients is 28 years old. His treatment is being paid for by the District Vocational Rehabilitation Service. Although he has difficulty in walking, noticeable difficulty in his speech and trouble in the finer use of both hands, he got a job during the war sorting mail for the Postoffice Department.

Capable of Better Job

"He is still working for the Postoffice," says Dr. Kabat. "We are trying to improve his level of function in employment. He is capable of holding down a better job."

The other patient is 34. He is employed by the Federal Government and the cost of his treatment is being borne by the Maryland Vocational Rehabilitation Service.

His supervisor has told him he will be given a better job if he improves his speech and handwriting. After six months his speech is improving. He writes perfectly, but slowly.

Both of these young men report early every morning at the institute and receive their treatment before going to work.

There are two factors, one major and one minor, which make Dr. Kabat's estimate of 50 per cent employability among spastics only statistics at this time.

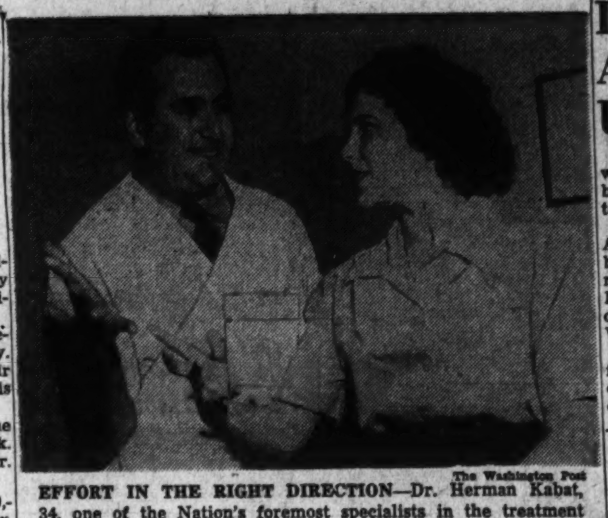
The minor obstacle is the resistance of employers to hiring of spastics. Even more important a barrier is the lack of sufficient physical therapists in this country.

Dr. Kabat says there are only 3500 physical therapists in all of the United States, only a fraction of the real need. There are 20 at the Kabat-Kaiser Institute.

The institute also employs four full-time physicians (including Dr. Kabat), three speech therapists, one occupational therapist and three gymnasium therapists.

Therapy Plays Big Part

Therapy plays a big part in treatment of spastics. As Dr. Kabat says, "The greatest effort is placed on muscular reeducation." Actually, what must be accomplished is the shifting of control to a part of the brain, an uninjured part, which was intended for that function. But it can be done.



The Washington Post

EFFORT IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION—Dr. Herman Kabat, 34, one of the Nation's foremost specialists in the treatment of spastic paralysis, and research, instructs a patient, Alice, 14, from Alabama, in manipulation of the right hand. She has been under treatment for about three months at the Kabat-Kaiser Institute, 2633 16th st. nw., and has made excellent progress

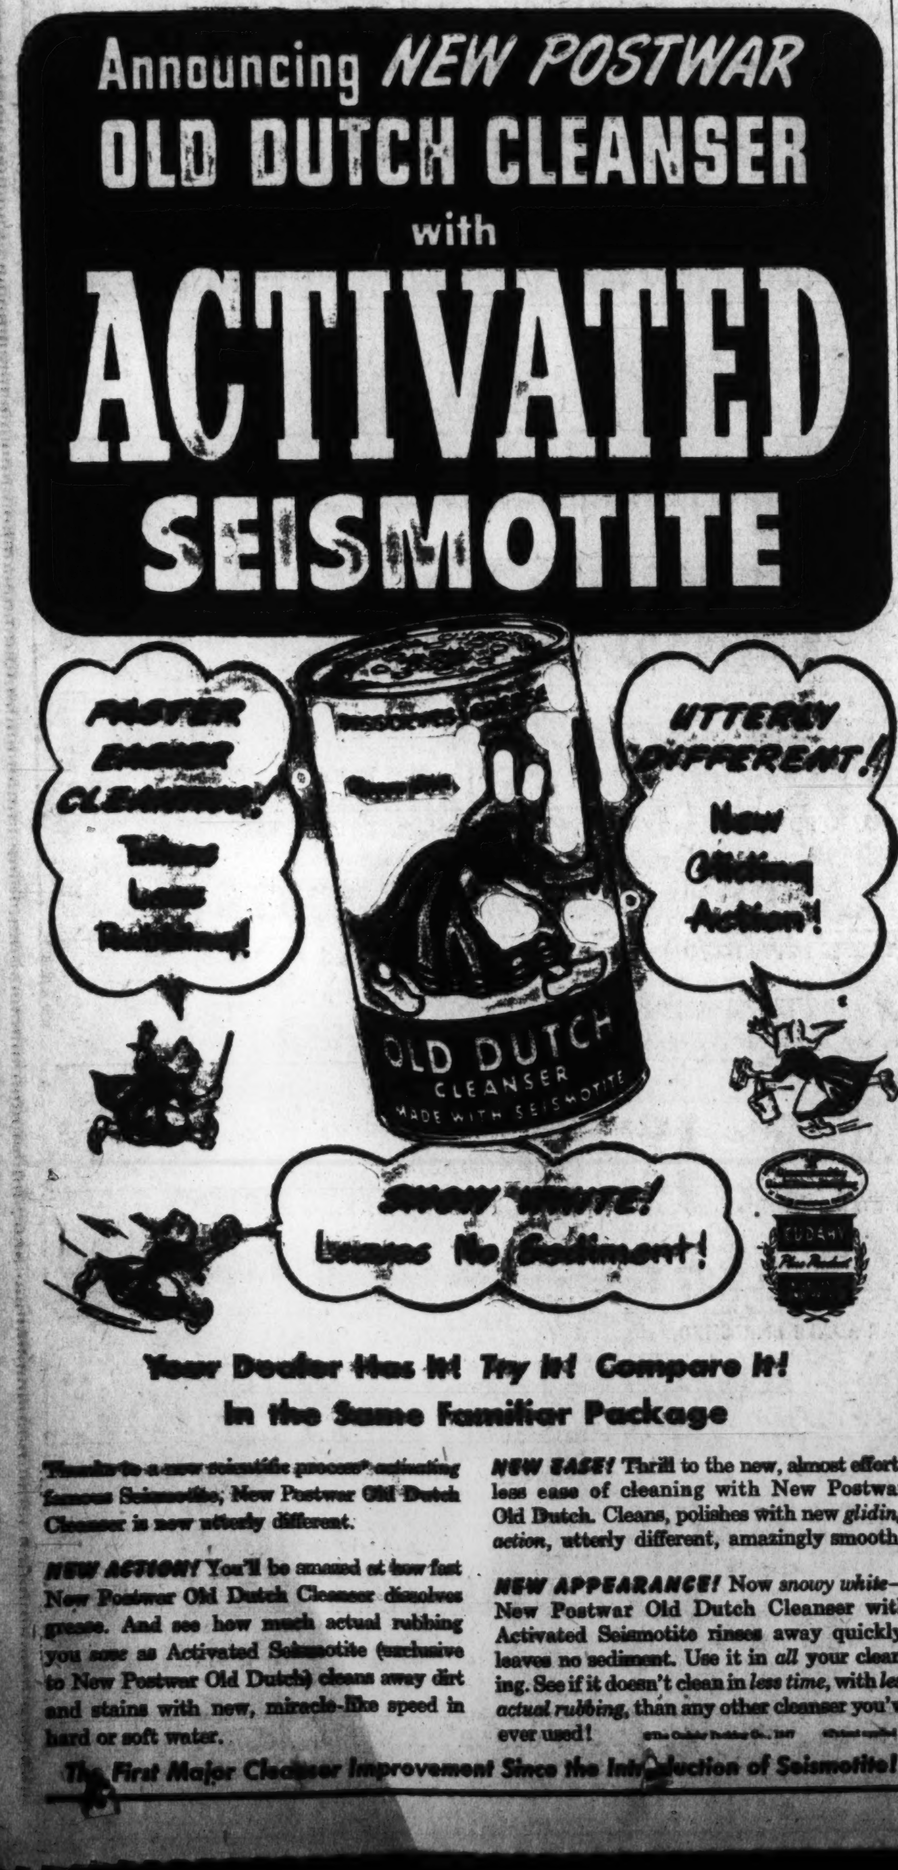
Indian Woman Asks Better U. S. Movies

Americans are not the only ones who don't like American movies, but it takes a woman from Asia to do something about it.

On her first trip to America, Mrs. Ahalya Shrinagesh, from Hyderabad, India, is in Washington urging more documentary films be sent to India. "As a mother," she said, "I object to these murder and Wild West films."

A delegate to the triennial conference of the International Council of Women, which met in Philadelphia last week, Mrs. Shrinagesh flew from India last month without sleeping accommodations. She will remain in the United States, visiting friends, for about three weeks or a month longer, she said.

In Hyderabad, Mrs. Shrinagesh does extensive social work and is an honorary member from the people on the Hyderabad government committees on food, scholarship and social welfare.



Poultrymen Hit Truman Plan

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Representatives of Virginia's 90-million-dollar poultry industry today asked President Truman to lift the ban on poultryless Thursdays because it has "caused dangerous speculation."

In a telegram to the President the Virginia State Poultry Federation said the poultry plan would not work because:

It will not result in immediate saving of grain.

It has "placed undue hardship on the growers."

It has created "a situation which can jeopardize the economy of the whole poultry producing and marketing industry."

It has "caused dangerous speculation."

Federation President Howard S. Zigler said the objectives of President Truman's poultry-saving plan were reached "many weeks ago" when the production of poultry was reduced at the farm level, thus reducing the feed requirements of the industry.

"It is more unfortunate," the telegram said, "that your announcement, by creating uncertainty and chaotis market conditions, accompanied by discriminatory prices, is causing producers extreme financial hardship without more fully achieving the objectives of the grain conservation program."

The reaction to the President's Sunday voluntary rationing plea has resulted in "speculation harmful to the producers, because market men, with an eye on cold storage supplies, about double those for the past five years, and noting a drop in consumer demand, were reluctant to add to present heavy holdings except at substantial price discounts," the telegram said.

Pilot's Story

Lucky Bump Saved 53 in Plane Loop

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 9 (AP).—Capt. Charles Sisto of Los Angeles today said 53 persons in a looping airliner missed death by only 500 feet yesterday and that the margin was because his head bumped a button and shut off three engines.

Capt. Sisto

The 36-year-old pilot told reporters that a terrific dive into which the craft plunged yesterday otherwise would have been speeded up so that the ship would have hit the ground instead of looping.

The 48 passengers and 5 crew were tossed about and bruised, but none was seriously injured. Most continued on another plane to Los Angeles.

Sisto said he did not know what caused the American Airlines DC-4 to dive as it was cruising at 238 miles an hour west of El Paso over Mount Riley, N. Mex., en route west from Dallas.

The nose dropped suddenly as he was switching to automatic control.

"The plane went into an outside loop," he said. "It was traveling at a terrific speed. I was thrown against the feathering button. That was a factor in saving us because it shut off three engines."

He and Capt. John Beck of Memphis struck the top of the cockpit. Capt. Melvin Logan of Los Angeles, copilot, fought the controls. Finally the three rolled it back into normal position, got all engines going and made an emergency landing here.

"We did the right thing, I think, by instinct," Sisto said. "I can't remember everything that happened."

He estimated it was all over in 30 seconds.

Man Falls 55 Feet From Bridge, Gets 6 Years in Theft

Frederick, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—Melvin G. Gilbert, Woodsboro, plunged 55 feet from a bridge into water today, but managed to arrive at Circuit Court in time to be sentenced to six years in the penitentiary for the theft last February of hams from a Woodsboro butcher shop.

Gilbert suffered only minor bruises from the fall.

Judge Patrick Schnauffer suspended sentence on another charge of burglary to which Gilbert pleaded innocent. After he pleaded guilty to grand larceny of the hams, the State abandoned two other charges of receiving stolen goods and breaking and entering.

At the time of the burglary, which occurred last June, Gilbert was shot in the leg by Sheriff George Crouse. He was hospitalized for some time afterward.

Authorities said the defendant was out on bond until today. He said he was "waiting for a friend" on the bridge when he became dizzy and fell.

Md. Eastern Shore Airmail Route Asked

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) and Representative Miller (R., Md.) asked Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan yesterday to extend airmail service to the Eastern Shore of Maryland and several cities in Delaware.

They told a reporter that Hannegan promised a "careful study" of the request. Service was asked for Salisbury, Ocean City, Cambridge and Easton in Maryland and Reheboth Beach and Georgetown in Delaware.

Md. 4-H Club Members Invited to Contest

Maryland's 4-H club members and other youths have been invited to participate in the State's first junior vegetable growers' contest at the University of Maryland October 18.

The contest will include identification of pests and diseases which attack vegetables. The two winning contestants will represent Maryland at a Nation-wide contest in Jackson, Miss., December 10-13.

Cigarettes at 10 Cents a Pack Envisioned

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Cigarettes to sell for 10 cents a package were envisioned today in the testimony of T. F. Flanagan, chairman, Associated Tobacco Manufacturers, presented before a congressional subcommittee on the economic report as it brought its htree-day hearings here to a close.

Flanagan said this sale price would be possible under terms of a bill now before Congress which would provide a gradauted tax in place of the present straight 7 cents a pack.

The bill provides a Federal tax of 3½ cents a pack on cigarettes that can be sold at retail for 10 cents before State taxes. It proposes two classes: Class A to B cigarettes on which the manufacturers' net price after discounts and Federal excise taxes is not more than $2.25 per 1000, with a proposed tax of $1.75, or 3½ cents a package and Class B on which the manufacturers' net price is more than $2.25 per 1000, with a proposed tax of $3.50, or 7 cents a pack, the present rate.

"The Department of Agriculture and the Federal Trade Commission are both on record as favoring the graduated tax," Flanagan said, "the former to foster more competition and more demand for the leaf growers' crops in the auction leaf markets, and the Trade Commission in an effort to introduce more competition in an industry in which 98.5 of cigarettes are sold at the same standard price."

The industry can make good on the 10-cent pack of cigarettes, he said, by using the technologies developed during a period of high demand. He suggested that this would save theconsumer 150 million dollars a year and result in increased tax collections by the Government of 100 million dollars a year.

Sheriff Imposes Curfew on Youths

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—The Washington County sheriff's office will impose a midnight curfew on youths under 16 years of age found roaming the streets.

Deputy Sheriff Lester Isanogle said youths would be taken into custody unless accompanied by adults.

Isanogle said the decision came after police learned that juveniles had been responsible for a number of recent depredations and cases of breaking and entering during the early morning hours.

The teenagers will be brought to the County Jail to explain their presence on the thoroughfares, he said.

Greenbelt Charges Due By Midnight

Formal complaints against the administration of Greenbelt, Md., target of a "full investigation" authorized by the Town Council 10 days ago, must be filed with the council no later than midnight tonight.

Mayor Thomas J. Canning pointed out that the deadline had been established by the council when it authorized the probe.

The mayor disclosed the only formal charges received to date center on allegations that Town Manager James T. Gobbel has mismanaged town funds by paying salaries in excess of amounts approved by the council.

The charges originally were filed by former Mayor George F. Bauer, who declared in his withdrawal from last month's council election that he wished to be free of political implications in pressing his complaint.

The mayor said the council, since authorizing the investigation, has received a formal complaint from Mrs. Mabel Kandler, town treasruer, containing charges essentially the same as the allegations made by Bauer.

Although the charges against Gobbel set off the investigation, the council has invited residents of the community to file complaints against any town official deemed incompetent or negligent.

The investigation will be conducted by a committee composed of the five council members and four other residents of the community. The additional members have not yet been selected, Mayor Canning said.

Warrenton Adopts Restaurant Code

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 9 (Spl.).—An ordinance regulating restaurants here and providing an inspection and grading system was adopted by the Town Council at its monthly meeting. The ordinance, which provides fines from $5 to $500 for violations of its provisions, will become effective December 1.

Small Group Wins Most Prizes at Md. Fair

A small group of exhibitors dominated proceedings in livestock judging which featured the fourth day of the annual Marlboro (Md.) Fair yesterday.

In the dairy cattle competition for Ayrshires, all the prizes in 15 classes went to W. H. Hill of Woodbine, Md., who exhibited the only entries. In the Jersey division, the ribbons were divided, about equally, between B. H. Labrot's Holly Beach Farm, Annapolis, and N. C. Stiles, Rockville.

Draft horse prizes were more equally distributed although a majority of the first prize ribbons went to Charles W. Stultz of Smithburg. First place winners in the Belgian class follow:

Stallions 5 years and over, Ulmstead Point Farm, Arnold, Md.; stallions 2-3 years old, Charles W. Stulz, Smithburg; stallions 1-2 years old, George Nutwell, Annapolis; stallion foal, Charles W. Stulz; senior champion stallion, Ulmstead Point Farm; junior champion stallion, Edwin Nutwell, West River; mares 5 years and over, George Nutwell; mares 4-5 years old, Charles W. Stulz; mares 3-4 years old, Charles E. Schaefer, Hagerstown; mares 2-3 years old, Charles E. Schaefer; mares 1-2 years old, Charles W. Stulz; mare and foal, Charles W. Stulz; senior champion mare, Charles W. Stulz; junior champion mare, Charles W. Stulz; group consisting of stallion and three mares, Charles W. Stulz; group of three mares (any age), Charles W. Stulz; group of any three mares sired by the same stallion, Charles W. Stulz, and group of two produced by same mare, Charles W. Stulz.

Md. Republicans Brand O'Conor's 'Surplus' as Phony

Baltimore, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Maryland Federation of Republicans said today the more than 11 million dollars in State funds designated as surplus by former Governor O'Conor couldn't be called a "surplus" in the "common accepted sense."

Replying to the Senator's pronouncement a few days ago that he had left a treasury surplus on leaving office last December, the federation asked in a statement of its own:

"What good is the surplus which O'Conor claims he left if Governor Lane indicates it has either been spent or pledged so that it is now unavailable?

"The situation does not conform to the definition of 'surplus' in the common, accepted sense which led people to believe that a surplus would mean tax reduction, not tax increases."

The federation said the "O'Conor administration had managed to enact an income tax and the tax rate jumped to 2½ per cent on earned income and 6 per cent on unearned income."

Hagerstown Adopts Employe Pension Plan

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—A pension and retirement system for all city employes except police and firemen went into effect today, Mayor Richard Sweeney announced.

He said the participation of 250 workers in the plan would cost the city $35,000 during the first year of its operation. The system provides that under certain conditions employes may retire after a minimum of 10 years' service. Policemen and firemen have their own systems.

Dr. Johnson Named to Head Staunton State Sanatorium

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Dr. C. Earle Johnson, jr., of Alabama, has been named superintendent of DeJarnette State Sanatorium at Staunton, succeeding the late Dr. Hugh Page Newbill.

Appointment of Dr. Johnson, who retired from the Navy on August 1 of last year with the rank of commander, was announced today during a meeting of the State Hospital Board here by Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, State commissioner of mental hygiene and hospitals.

Dr. Johnson received his public school education in Alabama and studied later at Emory University, Atlanta, and Birmingham Southern College. He received his medical degree from the University of Colorado in 1931 and after a period of private practice in Alabama joined the staff of the Veterans' Hospital at Little Rock, Ark.

He remained with Veterans' Administration until 1943, when he was inducted into active service at the United States Naval Hospital at Oakland, Calif. Since he left the Navy he has been associated with hospitals in Alabama.

Dr. Johnson, who is married and has one daughter, is a fellow of the American Psychiatric Association, the American Medical Association, a member of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene and a diplomate of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology.

The post at the sanatorium has been vacant since Dr. Newbill's death last July.

Most of the other matters discussed by the hospital board today were routine and much of the time during the 3½-hour session was was devoted to examination of preliminary plans for construction work projected at Western State Hospital at Staunton, Eastern State at Williamsburg and Southwestern State at Marion.

In commenting upon personnel problems at the various mental institutions, Dr. Barrett told board members that the situation was "a little better" than it was. The board meeting was presided over today by H. Minor Davis in the absence of State Senator Morton G. Goode.

Trial Over Dog's Ownership Settled By Veterinarian

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—The fifteenth witness, a veterinarian, tipped the scales today in favor of the plaintiff after seven witnesses testified they could "positively identify" a coon dog as belonging to the defendant. Seven others said the same for the plaintiff.

Trial Justice J. L. Landram of Hanover County, ordered the consultation with the expert after the defendant, Carl Bowles of Hanover, said the dog was a litter mate of a female he also owned.

The judge, litigants and two dogs went to a veterinarian who observed that the dog in question was considerably older than the female, excluding the possibility that they were litter mates.

The dog was awarded to the plaintiff, Floyd Wash of Hanover.

William and Mary Enrollment Is Record

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—The College of William and Mary announced today a record enrollment of 1938 students for the current academic year. Dean of Men John E. Hocutt said 1305 of the students—including 850 veterans—are men. Last year 675 veterans were enrolled at the school out of a total of 1264.

Male attendance in the prewar era averaged 600. The figure sank to a 20-year low of 281 in 1943.

Va. Reports Widespread Apple Thefts

Verginia apple growers in the Winchester area prepared yesterday to patrol their orchards during the remaining nights of the harvest season as widespread thefts of fruit were reported.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), one of the country's largest apple growers, offered a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone stealing apples from his orchards at Winchester and in Jefferson County, Va.

The reported thefts, believed carried out with trucks, were said to be on a larger scale than ever before.

Byrd Orchard Raided

A raid on Byrd's 1200-acre orchard in Jefferson County, about 16 miles from Winchester, was discovered about a week ago, said Miss Meda Dick, his secretary. She said the thieves apparently came in trucks and carted away apples that had been picked, crated and left overnight. A "considerable" amount of the Delicious variety was taken, she said.

Many of the orchards in the Winchester area are without fences, Miss Dick explained, and vehicles can be driven in close to the trees.

No arrests have been made, but Winchester police said they had a "few clews."

Storage Peak Expected

Meanwhile, storage of apples in the Winchester area headed for an expected peak by weekend. In the face of a slow market, growers were moving considerable fruit into storage in anticipation of greater demand later. A spokesman for the Winchester Cold Storage Co. estimated that his firm already has about 225,000 bushels on hand.

Packers were finishing up on Stayman and Yorks. Roman Beauties are starting to come in, with Ben Davis, Gano and Winesaps due shortly to wind up the season.

At Martinsburg, W. Va., harvesting was reported slow. Much of the stock was going into storage or to processors.

New High Set In Teachers' School Rolls

Baltimore, Oct. 9 (AP).—Enrollment at Maryland's four teachers colleges has reached a 10-year high, indicating a revival of young peoples' interest in teaching careers, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State superintendent of schools, reported today.

The "trend toward increased interest in educational work began last year," Dr. Pullen said. He declared it was "undoubtedly" furthered by salary increases granted to teachers throughout the State in the past two years.

If the trend continued, the educator declared, Maryland's teacher-training institutions will be able to supply the needs of the State's school system within several years.

Lack of interest in teaching as a profession shown in past years had given rise to alarm among school officials, beset as they were by an ever-mounting turnover of instructors.

Enrollment figures at the four State teachers colleges were reported as follows to the Board of Education:

Towson, 609; Frostburg, 239; Salisbury, 306, and Bowie, 150.

These figures include junior college students at all these institutions with the exception of Bowie.

Dormitory space for girls in all four colleges is filled, with students on the waiting list.

Facilities must be prepared at the colleges to provide for an eventual capacity for 1200-1500 students at Towson; 350-500 at Frostburg; 400-500 at Salisbury, and 300-500 at Bowie, Dr. Pullen said.

He will make a survey of present and future needs and make a report to the Board of Education later.

Rescuers Watch Man Burn to Death in Car

South Norfolk, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—An automobile accident late yesterday pinned Norman Lee Dale, 57, in his overturned car and jammed its doors so spectators rushing to his assistance could not open them.

Rescuers turned the vehicle on its side—but a short-circuited battery cable ignited gasoline and Dale, warehouse manager at the South Norfolk plant of the Texas Company, perished as his car went up rapidly in flames.

In Lottery Case

Warrant Too General, Is Defense

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—The question of how specific a search warrant must be for evidence collected in a police raid to be admitted in court was before the Court of Appeals today.

Rose Davis, convicted of operating a lottery in a second-floor apartment at 1905 E. Chase st., Baltimore, last January, raised the point in an appeal from a Baltimore criminal court verdict.

Her attorneys asserted the warrant police carried when they combed Davis apartment failed to state which of three apartments in the building was to be searched and thus was invalid. They asked that Judge J. Abner Sayler's judgment be reversed.

In reply, a brief for the attorney general and Baltimore State's attorney's office, cited numerous opinions, among them one of the Supreme Court, to argue that the warrant was not "too general."

The high court's much discussed ruling held that a search, even without a warrant, might be legal if incidental to a lawful arrest.

Mistaken for Squirrel, Hunter Is Wounded

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 9 (Spl.).—Because a hunting companion mistook George E. Hill for a squirrel, Hill is presently in a hospital here recovering from buckshot wounds to the hands, arms and legs.

District Game Warden W. W. Parsons said Hill was accidentally shot by William H. Mowrey in the western part of the county. Parsons said the accident was the second of the current squirrel hunting season.

William Loker, Jr., Named to Court Post

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—William M. Loker, jr., of Leonardtown, son of Chief Judge Loker of the seventh judicial circuit, became law clerk to the court of appeals today for a term of one year. Loker has passed his law examinations and will be admitted to the State bar in the next class.

Leviness Tax Evasion Case Goes to Jury

Baltimore, Oct. 9 (AP).—A Federal court jury of 10 men and two women deliberating late today the evidence in the case of Charles T. Leviness, 3d, Baltimore attorney and former State official charged with evading almost $9500 in income taxes for 1943 and 1944.

Each of the two counts in the indictment carries on conviction a penalty of up to five years imprisonment and/or a $10,000 fine.

United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn, in closing the Government's argument in the case, said with obvious feeling that he had known Leviness for many years but that his conduct "in this case, was that of a dishonest man."

Defense attorneys told the jury that the charges against Leviness had been "magnified" in importance.

Leviness, who had been on the witness stand the greater part of two days during the trial, had testified that discrepancies in his income tax reports for the two years were due to "inadvertence."

Assistant U. S. Attorney Anthony Purcell told the jury the defendant "wants you to believe he overlooked about half his income for 1943 and more than half for 1944. Does any businessman forget the largest fees he ever earned in his life?"

Leviness is a former assistant Maryland attorney general and at various times headed the State prison system, the Baltimore Liquor Board and the Baltimore Better Business Bureau. He is 44.

Shooting Wild Turkeys Causes Man's Arrest

Buckingham, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—County Game Warden Charlie Spencer announced the first arrest on charges of hunting out of season in recent months here today.

Spencer, assisted by Sheriff Y. G. Johnson and State Trooper F. W. McSwain, searched the home of Raymond Guthrie in the Salem Church neighborhood this morning and found three wild turkeys killed, dressed and ready for cooking. He arrested Guthrie's brother-in-law, William Sloan, and said he expected to find others before the season opens November 20.

J. Rush Baldwin Named To House of Delegates

Bel Air, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—The Democratic State Central Committee for Harford County has named J. Rush Baldwin, prominent farmer living at Street, to become one of the county's four representatives in the House of Delegates.

He was nominated to succeed John E. Clark (D., Harford), who was named chairman of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission and chairman of the Board of Natural Resources.

Baldwin's nomination must be acted upon by the State Central Committee and Governor Lane, but nomination by the county committee usually is tantamount to appointment.

Joint Meeting Set On School Budget

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—How to keep the Anne Arundel County tax rate "within reasonable bounds" and still meet the financial needs of the school system will be the problem before the county commissioners, the board of education, and the county legislative group at a joint meeting next Tuesday.

R. Cleveland Logue, budget supervisor, has suggested that a long term serial bond issue to take care of construction needs may make it possible to keep the school tax rate down to $1.29—the figure tentatively proposed for the 1948 budget.

Saving Grain

The distillers of the country are to be commended for the cooperation they have promised in answer to President Truman's request for a two-month shutdown. To be sure, only half the industry has yet agreed, but it is hard to imagine any holdout, in view of the favorable sentiment expressed at Mr. Luckman's meeting with the industry. The savings of grain, if all the distillers suspend operations, may run as high as 20 million bushels, or one-fifth of the goal of the present food conservation drive. Perhaps the figure will be higher if stocks are likewise released, as promised. This was done for Mr. LaGuardia last year when he made his appeal to the distillers, and a similar pledge has been given to Mr. Luckman.

It has been asked whether the holiday will involve joblessness in the distilleries. The answer is: not necessarily. The high degree of mechanization in the distilleries is responsible for a very low labor force—4000, according to the latest figures available. And the workers will be withdrawn only from actual distilling, leaving them available for bottling and rectifying and other work connected with selling. The dislocation will thus be minor, though this does not imply any diminution in the service that the industry is giving to the food conservation drive.

The only sour note is the propaganda circulated by one or two distillers that the Marshall Plan envisages the consignment of wheat for European distilling. The fact is that there are many non-spirit-drinking countries among the 16 Marshall Plan nations and that spirits in the rest are distilled from other sources than wheat. Moreover, the suggestion leaves out of account the fact that there is still no Marshall Plan. It did not require official assurances to the industry that supervision is assured lest the purpose of the Plan be frustrated in this or any other way. Immediate exports of wheat will, of course, be for human consumption only.

Open The Archives

Prof. Charles A. Beard has raised a most pertinent question concerning the disposition and custody of the official documents which relate to American foreign policy before and during the recent war. Dr. Beard is especially alarmed by the desire on the part of persons intimately connected with the policies of the Roosevelt Administration to limit access to these documents to historians and journalists who can be trusted to place a sympathetic interpretation on them. In an editorial article in the Saturday Evening Post of October 4, Dr. Beard cites as an example the grant of $139,000 given to the Council on Foreign Relations by the Rockefeller Foundation for a three-volume history of the Second World War to be prepared by Prof. William Langer of Harvard.

Professor Langer, it will be remembered, is the author of a work called Our Vichy Gamble, which is in effect an apologia for the French policies of Mr. Roosevelt and the Department of State in the years between the Franco-German armistice of 1940 and the British-American invasion of French North Africa in November, 1942. It will be recalled that these policies were at times subject to a great deal of vigorous criticism in many American newspapers, including The Washington Post. Professor Beard, of course, does not contest Professor Langer's right to take what view he pleases of these policies; what disturbs him is that Mr. Langer, who undertook the project at instigation of Former Secretary Hull, was provided with "secret documents or digests of such documents by President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, Admiral Leahy and the War Department," which remain unavailable to other historians.

Professor Beard presumes that in the preparation of his three-volume history of the war Professor Langer "will again enjoy special favors . . . from the State Department, the War Department, Admiral Leahy, President Truman and the guardians of the Roosevelt and other papers." In other words, Professor Beard is afraid that hereafter a form of political or ideological clearance will be necessary before any student of history is permitted to even examine important state papers. The purpose, he believes, is to make certain that "the policies and measures of Franklin D. Roosevelt will escape in coming years the critical analysis, evaluation and exposition that befell the policies and measures of Woodrow Wilson and the Entente Allies after World War I."

If Professor Beard is correct, we can expect nothing better for the next generation at least than "slanted" history, or, to put it bluntly, propaganda. The inference to be drawn from Professor Beard's accusations is that the practice by important Government officials upon retirement of stripping the departmental files of relevant materials amounts to a conspiracy against truth in the interest of the historical reputations of the personages concerned. Such an inference may be unwarranted; but it is a matter in which Mr. Roosevelt's executors and Mrs. Roosevelt's familiars need to place themselves beyond even suspicion of reproach. We concur in toto with Professor Beard's demand that all official documents, whether in public or private possession, should be "open to all citizens on equal terms, with special privileges for none," and that "the competition of ideas in the forum of public opinion must be free from political interests or restraints."

Moscow's Tactics

Whether the revival of the Comintern was good tactics on the Kremlin's part must be left for time to determine. Judging from the initial reactions, however, the effect has not been as favorable as the Politburo may have imagined. Undersecretary Lovett says the intention was to kill the Marshall Plan, that is to say, to dragoon western Europe into nonsupport of any common recovery scheme that is decided upon, if not, out of sheer fright over the threat of war, to pull the waverers into the Soviet fold. Success for such a maneuver would seem to be impossible in the circumstances of Europe's needs. As the London Observer, anticipating a successful outcome of the Marshall initiative, puts it, "In the whole history of the world no continent has ever offered to save another from economic catastrophe."

What the Russians have done is to sharpen and formalize the division in Europe at a time when the non-Communist Left was trying to keep a timid foot in the Eastern camp. In words that will be widely read abroad Mr. Lovett stresses the point that the Warsaw manifesto is underwritten by nine governments under Soviet leadership. He goes on to say that they, and not the signatories, must take the responsibility for the defamation of America contained in the bellicose manifesto. It is a blunt exposure of the true inwardness of the event. Now the Socialists, whom Moscow had been trying to make fellow travelers by raising the ghost of American warmongering, will have to choose, and they are showing signs of making a choice in favor of the west.

In Italy such a reaction is being influenced by the choice of Belgrade as the headquarters of the new Comintern. All Italy thinks of Tito as an aggressor, actual as well as potential, and the Warsaw manifesto must make fellow traveling look like an act of treason to Italy. Of course, nobody can tell what will happen when food runs out, especially if the Soviet makes a spectacular gesture of help, similar to the gesture of two years ago to France. But it is said to have been a tactical mistake to imagine that Italian Socialists other than the Nenni brand, who are confirmed fellow travelers, would heed a call from a body to be located in Belgrade. Much the same push to the Right is said to have been felt in other countries, notably France. Close at hand there are the municipal elections, and any prospect that Socialists would be frightened into the Communist camp is dimmed by the manifesto. And a return to a Popular Front, let alone a coalition of Left and Right, is rendered more problematical. Indeed, the eventful manifesto may be a godsend for the De Gaulle school.

Perhaps there was no intention back of the manifesto other than to call on Communists in all countries to take overt action—whenever the circumstances warrant—against the existing order, as well as to intensify covert opposition. At any rate, it looks to some observers as if the Communists are becoming impatient with the fellow travelers. Soviet imperialism may, indeed, have entered upon what the New York Times calls its Napoleonic phase. But Soviet timing has not always been perfect. There was the case of Finland before the 1939-40 war, when Moscow fully expected the Finnish workers to welcome the Russians as liberators, only to find Finland mobilized to a man against the Russian intrusion. In spite of postwar successes, there are blind spots in the Russian intelligence system, and the emergence of an international Communist offensive may be an instance of one of them. That, at any rate, appears to be the sum of general comment. Certainly the announcement, as Mr. Lovett shows, has not frightened America. We hope it may have made up the minds of many Americans to back the policy of the Marshall Plan on which they had hitherto been uncertain.

Taft On UMT

Senator Taft's position on universal military training, reiterated in his remarks last week at Casper, Wyo., may be described as a prescription for having our cake and eating it, too. He believes that we should have "the most expert, best-trained, best-equipped Army in the world," yet he is unwilling to adopt compulsory training as a backstop. His alternative is, in our opinion, utterly futile. He acknowledges the necessity for a strong reserve, but holds that this can be obtained on a voluntary basis through a more closely integrated National Guard. But how?—that is the question. We submit that this is precisely what the Army has been trying to do, with notably little success. Not only is the National Guard in a pathetic state; Regular Army enlistments themselves have been lagging, despite radio appeals and higher pay.

There are other serious holes in Mr. Taft's arguments. For example, he says that universal military training would "encourage war rather than discourage it." That comment, we think, shows Mr. Taft standing on his head, where he remains when he says that the United States, by adopting UMT, would force the same policy on every other nation in the world. Our own experience with aggression ought to be convincing proof that war is certain if we show inability to defend our responsibilities. It was our hasty demobilization that encouraged the Soviets in the thought that all Europe, not to say the British Empire, could be picked up without challenge. Moreover, the possibility when an aggressor goes on the rampage of buying time at other nations' expense has gone, and gone forever. As for forcing other countries to conscript armies, there is only one country that in this respect counts. That is the Soviet Union, and it has compulsory military service.

Army experts have stated that without UMT we will need regular forces at least twice their present size. One would think that, since he does not believe in universal training and at the same time wants a strong Army, Mr. Taft would espouse this view. But no. Mr. Taft says, "if we cannot maintain adequate armed forces with an expenditure of 10½ million dollars a year, then we must have inefficient management of the Army and Navy," as if appropriations were the gauge of security. The clew to Mr. Taft's thinking is his statement that we should not need a 10-million-man reserve unless we were forced to invade Europe or Asia. How else would we carry a war to the end, once we were in it? No return to the convenient isolationist theory of insular defense can obscure the fact that in order adequately to protect our own shores, we should need the ability to meet the enemy outside our shores.

VA Successor

Ordinarily we do not champion a particular candidate for administrative office, and we are skeptical, moreover, of soldiers in civilian posts. However, in the case of a successor to Gen. Omar Bradley as the next Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, the need for a man of high caliber and broad ability is so compelling, and the qualifications of one man are so exceptional, that we join enthusiastically in the move to draft Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley. We hope that when General Bradley leaves to become Chief of Staff, President Truman will persuade General Hawley to take over the administration of the program which as VA medical director he has had such a large part in building.

General Hawley's ideas are summarized in his statement that he thinks of hospitals not as buildings but as people. That has been the key to his magnificent record of service to the veteran. He has raised the quality of VA medical service from the low level in which it languished before the war to a position where it has obtained the respect of the entire medical profession to such a degree that doctors are clamoring to participate in it. Today the medical care a veteran receives through the VA is on a par with that available in the finest hospitals. This is a tribute to General Hawley's insight and initiative, coupled with the understanding support of General Bradley. A not inconsiderable factor in providing better care for veterans has been General Hawley's courage in resisting political patronage. He has recommended that veterans' hospitals be located near large cities, rather than in rural areas, so as to take advantage of the facilities of civilan medical centers and universities.

A measure of the admiration in which General Hawley is held is the fact that numerous doctors of eminent standing, who are now aiding the Veterans' Administration program have threatened to withdraw if he should retire. Moreover, one of General Hawley's own statements is a cogent reason why his continued services are essential. If the VA medical program can be continued on the present basis for another year, he has said, it will be firmly established for the future. While the medical department is by no means all of the program for veteran care, it is the core. General Hawley has the advantage over an outsider of having been associated with the VA for two years, a period during which General Bradley has solved many of VA's knottiest problems. The most important thing in choosing a successor to a person of General Bradley's stature is that he have the confidence of veterans. It takes a big man to fill a big job. In our opinion General Hawley is the man.

Royal Gifts

It looks as if Princess Elizabeth might be spared a part of the usual deluge of problem merchandise that befalls public personages when they wed. At any rate, in this country a movement to send the princess food packages for her people instead of knick-knacks for herself is gaining ground. A quarter ton of food in the form of CARE packages, each containing 22 pounds, has been consigned by the Washington Chapter of the English Speaking Union, and similar projects are under way throughout the country. Toronto has been collecting a mass shipment of food as a wedding gift. It is understood the idea meets with Elizabeth's expressed wish.

Since the average Briton now spends only $2.23 a week on food, including only 20 cents for meat, and must sacrifice greatly on tea, marmalade and other small luxuries that mean so much to him, it would seem that the well wishers of the princess would get their greatest sense of satisfaction out of enlivening the drab diet of her subjects. In fact, the problem of the world's hunger suggests that possibly some brides who are not public personages might find a way to translate into food packages some of their duplicate salad bowls, pickle forks, bridge luncheon sets, bonbon dishes, candlesticks, ash trays and doorstops.

"Young Man's Game"

Your editorial, "Young Man's Game" of October 4, brings up a cogent and interesting point. Students of military history are well aware that the great military leaders of all-time and all nations have been, with very few exceptions, young men by the standards to which World War II has accustomed us. But your statement that "The new heads of the independent Air Force are . . . definitely the youngest top-level military staff the country has seen," could do with some qualification.

In fact, if General Vandenberg had been functioning in the Revolutionary War at his present age (48), he would have had the distinction of being the oldest general officer on active duty. George Washington, the "father of his country," assumed the chief command at the age of 43. And among his most able and active top-level key men were Major Generals Nathaniel Greene (33), Benedict Arnold (34), "Mad Anthony" Wayne (31), and Henry Knox (27), scaling down to Lafayette, who was commissioned a major general at 19—because, some cynics said, he agreed to serve without pay. Even that ambling antique, Horatio Gates, known to the enlisted men by the self-explanatory sobriquet of "Grandma," was two years younger than General Vandenberg when the war started.

In the War of 1812, Winfield Scott was made major general and second in command of the Northern Army at 28. His commanding officer at that time, Jacob Brown, was 41, and his associate commanders were E. W. Ripley (32), E. P. Gaines (37), Alexander McComb (32), and George Izard (37).

In the Civil War (or War Between the States), U. S. Grant was commissioned lieutenant general and chief commander of all the Union Armies at 42, while his key subordinates at that time, Sherman, Sheridan and Meade, were aged, respectively, 44, 33, and 49, bringing the over-all average age to 42; and his troop commanders in the field included such near-adolescents as George A. Custer, who made his second star at 25. By these standards, the Confederacy's great leader, Robert E. Lee, might be judged an old man (58 when the war ended). This would seem to make him one of the exceptions to the rule; but it should be remembered that Lee's brilliance had been demonstrated nearly 20 years before, and he was generally recognized by both sides as the ablest officer in the United States Army at the outbreak of the war.

All that this adds up to is further substantiation of your basic point. Let's not, however, lose all perspective on what you refer to as our "historical military policy."

DP Record

It is about time someone wrote a reminder to the American public such as the article in The Washington Post of October 5, by Alfred Friendly entitled "Let's Set the Record Straight about DPs."

The current intensity of the Palestine question has put the Jewish element of Europe's displaced persons in the limelight. We tend to forget the four non-Jewish DPs for every one that is Jewish.

From my own experience as a Displaced Persons Officer attached to an occupation unit in Germany, I can corraborate Mr. Friendly's remarks about the DPs. Many of them have been through the best schools of democracy in the world: the experience of having known it and then having had it taken away and even now not having it returned to them. This is expecially true of the Estonians, Latvians and Lithuanians. I have talked with many Balts and have been surprised to find the genuine appreciation they have—better than many Americans who take it for granted—of the meaning of democracy. The DPs include some of our bravest and most sacrificing Allies.

Potatoes To Europe

It is stated no doubt on qualified authority that potatoes do not stand shipping in the conventional manner as other food products such as wheat and apples. Why not try the unusual method, since we have such a problem, by shipping them above the waterline so they may secure the air that they need?

As a college boy, I remember hundreds of bags of potatoes stored on top decks on cattle ships to Europe. The potatoes did not deteriorate then, why should they do so now?

Why, therefore not use every available space of passenger liners and freighters above the waterline for this purpose? This would result in supplying Europe with a better diet and would ease the inflation caused by the purchase of so much wheat for this purpose. It is true that wheat furnishes 1625 calories per pound to the 385 furnished by potatoes. However, I am sure if we start sending potatoes to Europe it will reduce not only the price of wheat but all edible food. The price of all edible food rises and falls in the same ratio as the price of wheat rises and falls.

Grain and Poultry

I am entirely in sympathy with the world need for food and wish to do all I can to help. I raise poultry and sell eggs. If I feed less grain my production will drop almost to zero. The only way I can produce the largest number of eggs per bag of feed is to give the hen all I can coax her to eat. I would use much less grain if I culled out the poorer producers and sold them. Who would buy them? I have tried since August 15 to sell 350 Grade A red hens and have moved a little better than half of them. I have sold only 20 Leghorn hens out of 200 offered. I would like to sell 40 roosters at any fair price.

If the Government would buy all the hens farmers wished to sell at 35 cents per pound, which is not unreasonably high, for a period of 10 days, a tremendous amount of grain would be saved with very little loss in future production. County agricultural agents and teachers of vocational agriculture could put on a culling campaign with FFA boys helping farmers select the best hens to keep.

This poultry meat could be distributed to school cafeterias, sent overseas or even put back on the market at a later date. It wouldn't depress prices any more than it is doing at present.

The poultry industry has done its part during the past several years without regulation or subsidy and is asking no favors at the present time. The above suggestion would only speed up the usual movement. It would increase the efficiency of the poultry industry and would release much needed grain.

"Sham in Korea"

Your editorial of October 5, "Sham in Korea," is an excellent analysis of the issues.

The blunder of dividing Korea into two zones along the thirty-eighth parallel was one of the stupidest and least necessary of the American concessions to Russia at Yalta. The Russian desire to retain control of Korea indefinitely has always been clear, but has been underlined in recent propaganda broadcasts from north Korea.

We should give every advantage of prosperous democratic government to south Korea, and meanwhile should use every legitimate means to force Russian withdrawal from the north. The latter step we have undertaken, in finally presenting the case to the United Nations. But the first part of our obligation we have not yet begun to meet.

Korean prosperity has been set back a full generation by the artifical separation of the industrial north from the agricultural south. No UNRRA aid was provided for Korea, though Yugoslavia got close to 500 million dollars. Korean currency is still kept off the international exchange, though Austrian currency was readmitted many months ago. Korean trade is still limited to barter, and that is so hedged with restrictions that it amounts to almost none at all, though rehabilitation of the south is dependent absolutely upon imports. Eighty per cent of the tangible resources of south Korea—consisting of expropriated Japanese properties—are still held "in trust" for a future Korean government, so that their present development is frozen. A stable economy in 1945 has become inflationary under two years of American control, and that very inflation is used as an argument for continuing the controls.

Politically, Koreans have thus far been denied the democracy that is the only effective barrier against the subsidized, infiltrating communism. Their only official representative body, the Interim Legislature, was half appointed, and the appointed members were deliberately selected to offset the overwhelming victory at the polls of the Nationalist Federation. As civil administrator, the military governor appointed Ahn Jai Hong, only member of the Legislature who voted for trusteeship for Korea.

Even stranger has been the determined effort of American officials in charge of south Korea to impose upon the people a "coalition" control. A year ago Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge named a coalition committee, headed jointly by two former Communists, Lyuh Woon Heung and Kimm Kiu Sic. Now he is still insisting upon keeping this coalition committee in being, and was barely dissuaded from naming the surviving chairman, Kimm Kiu Sic, as unofficial Korean delegate to the United Nations.

Strangest of all has been the attitude of officialdom toward the holding of a south Korean election. An election law was passed by the Interim Legislature on June 30. It was revised and repassed, incorporating military government suggestions, on August 13. It was finally signed by the acting military governor on September 2. But not even yet has a date for the election been set.

The crux of the matter seems to be that the Korean people have over and over again expressed their overwhelming choice for the leadership of Dr. Syngman Rhee. A combine between General Hodge and certain elements in the State Department has apparently decided that Dr. Rhee's determined refusal to accept their dictatorship makes him ineligible. Since the people, of their own choice, will not elect anyone else, they are not permitted to have any election at all.

If a coalition of north and south governments does finally seem to be the only way to get the Russians to withdraw, we should at least make certain that south Korea has the democratic leadership essential to prevent complete Communist control.

Calling Washington

Diplomats Abroad

PARIS, FRANCE.—That ancient fable about the blind men and the elephant applies with singular aptness to the American Foreign Service. The average American traveling abroad is likely to form his general impression from the few individuals he meets in the service.

Thus the traveler may come upon one of the able young men who are now rising in our diplomatic service. He is hard working, knowledgeable, with acute political and intellectual curiosity. He looks at the country in which he is serving, and the world in general, not through any haze of longing for a past that can never be restored but with keen realism.

This young officer—he may be a third secretary of a vice consul—speaks the language of the country, even though it may be a difficult Slavic language. He tries to break outside the diplomatic government to get some idea of the people themselves.

The traveler, if he meets this type of officer, is certain to get a good impression of the service. He comes away feeling that America is ably represented by men who are doing their best under difficult circumstances to obtain all the facts on which our foreign policy must be based.

But the American abroad may not be so fortunate. He may encounter quite another type. This officer, and he may be either young or old, regards himself as very much of a privileged personality—first an American and then a member of the rare and special caste of diplomat.

This superior character feels that the people of the country in which he happens to be living are benighted and hopeless, an attitude he scarcely troubles to conceal. Their plumbing and their manners are abominable and insofar as possible he tries to keep himself from contamination.

THE ONLY "natives" he is likely to know are survivors from the past who have had the benefit of travel in civilized places and who speak a civilized language, preferably English. You will find this type in his leisure time in the salons of the surviving aristocracy, commiserating with them over how the rude new world has brought low those who truly deserve and appreciate the good things of life.

The poor man may, of course, be a victim of one of the worst occupational diseases of diplomacy. That is to say, he may have developed a swish in the hips, a slight lilt in the voice and the habit of wearing his handkerchief up his coat sleeve instead of in his pants pocket. While he is perhaps to be more pitied than blamed, the traveling American does not like to think that such a type represents the United States.

The American businessman who comes in contact with type No. 2, still too common in our foreign service, is likely to go home muttering imprecations on cookie-pushers and fools in striped pants. Such a prejudice is just as wrong and unfair as the favorable prejudice founded on the other type.

The system itself requires a far more thorough overhauling than anyone has yet contemplated if it is to serve as an effective instrument of our foreign policy. To begin with, of course, our embassies and legations are understaffed and our foreign service officers too often given inadequate compensation, not so much in terms of salary as in living allowances.

BUT THE trouble goes deeper than that. The method of operation and organization is sorely afflicted with an aggravated case of bureaucritis, so carefully and completely is each function of each officer in the embassy defined that the individual is left with little or no freedom of movement. He must stay within his narrow sphere, hedged in by bureaucratic tape supplemented by innumerable forms which must be filled out.

Able men resent this confinement. They tend to become impatient and leave the service. While improvements have been made in recent years, they do not go nearly far enough.

Chiefs of missions suffer from the same kind of double or triple burden we put on our Presidents. They must be administrators, political analysts and ceremonial officers. With the flood of Very Important Persons and even Very, Very Important Persons from America, this list is almost a full-time job. In one day Ambassador Jefferson Caffrey made four separate trips to Orly Airfield, 45 minutes from the embassy, to meet VVIPs and escort them to town.

I have heard several visiting Congressmen grumble about the nature of our representation abroad. Now that they have had a first-hand look at it, with its deficiencies and its handicaps, they should not stop at grumbling. A thorough inquiry into our whole system of representation abroad is in order, and a revision based on that inquiry should follow. It has many virtues, as well as faults, just as do the individuals who make up the Foreign Service. The urgent need is to get rid of the weaknesses.

Matter Of Fact

The Danger Of Despair

PARIS.—Here in Paris, the chestnut trees are turning russet and the city glistens every morning in the peculiar silver-golden light of the French autumn. The most beautiful city in the world is in the most beautiful season of its changing year. It is difficult to remember that this surface of shining loveliness conceals a mounting insecurity, an increasing tendency to despair.

Then one passes through a poor quarter and observes that even the horsemeat butcher—his trade announced by a gilded horse's head above his shop front—has no customers because his prices are too high, or, at the other end of the scale, a minister hurriedly breaks an appointment to hasten to an emergency session of the committee to save the franc, composed of Premier Ramadier and his closest coadjutors. These signs, unhappily, disclose the inner reality. Because of insecurity and despair the people of France are being driven to the political extremes which are always the resort of men losing hope.

One extreme is of course the Communist Party. The Communists are still enviably dynamic and effective leaders. Although they have by now spent a good part of the hundreds of millions of dollars they stored in the confusion of the German collapse, they are still formidably well financed.

Their extraordinary peasant propaganda paper, La Terre, advocating private property, the home, the family, high prices and long life for all kulaks, is expensively delivered to the smallest farm communities in France. Their effort in the labor unions is equally costly and efficient. For example, the unions in the small department of Loiret happen to be non-Communist. All the unions in the department can afford to maintain only one paid organizer. Yet in this single department, the Communists have no less than 15 known full-time organizers.

THE COMMUNISTS feed, of course, upon despair and insecurity. Nonetheless, the French workers, who have a long tradition of highly democratic unionization, have had nearly four years of the familiar Communist Party tactics in their unions—fixed union elections, intimidation and dictatorship of the party apparatus. An increasing number of them are thoroughly fed up. The official non-Communist leaders, like the trembling old Jouhaux, are prisoners of their "allies." But new, younger men have taken the lead of an anti-Communist minority which has already made impressive showings within the miners, the postal workers, the railroad workers and several other vital unions. Take away the insecurity and despair which are the chief Communist assets, and they may well end by losing their main base in the labor movement.

Here in France, in fact, perhaps because the Communists made their bid too soon, the drift to the political extremes is currently chiefly manifesting itself in the Gaullist movement. An outsider must of course speak very carefully of this new political organization, which is now a true party and invites the adherence of members of all non-Communist parties. Yet certain points are apparent.

General de Gaulle, founder and leader of the movement, which he calls the "Rally of the French People," is still without doubt among France's few great men. Equally without doubt, he has no totalitarian ambitions and is destined by the sort of men who would most naturally hanker for French fascism—the rich French whom he bitterly offended by nationalizing basic industries and by insisting upon jailing their friends and relatives as collaborators. Nonetheless, he has virtually no labor support. His appeal is to the little men of the center and the right.

AMONG THESE he has made extraordinary progress. Starting not very long ago, his movement is already organized in some fashion in tens of thousands of cities and communes and has between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 paid-up members who have subscribed their 120 francs apiece. The movement is intensely personal, based on De Gaulle's own appeal and openly detested by almost all French political professionals. It is, so to speak, extraconstitutional. De Gaulle advocates scrapping the machinery of the Fourth Republic and writing a new constitution rather on the American model, with a strong executive. Yet there also is something a little mystical about it. Even so brilliant and disillusioned a man as Andre Malraux, now a member of the De Gaulle brain trust, speaks of the need for releasing "a new political dynamism in France."

Furthermore, all the franker Gaullists, among whom are many impressively idealistic younger French people, admit that their hero will only be called to power when all others but the Communists have failed beyond repair. Currently they expect inadequate American aid in France's economic crisis to produce this result.

Under the circumstances, there is no need to make moral judgments—to say that Gaullism is of good or evil intention. For one obvious probability sticks out of the situation like a sore thumb. If insecurity and despair mount high enough in France, most expert observers believe that De Gaulle, rather than the Communists, will come to power. But it is known that the French Communist executive committee voted, in mid-September, to call a general strike in this event. There is a pretty good chance, therefore, that whatever General de Gaulle's intentions may be, the outcome would be the outbreak of civil conflict and the emergence of a pattern grimly reminiscent of that in Spain. That is not a pleasant prospect for the future of France, for the future of Europe, for the future.

Migrants' Condition Improved By Efforts of N. Y. Committee

(Fifth of a Series)

By Agnes E. Meyer

In 1945 the New York State Interdepartmental Committee recommended that the vehicle and traffic law be amended as to transportation of persons by truck.

A crew leader bringing migrant workers into New York State is obliged to register his vehicles at the nearest traffic bureau. This makes listing of all crew leaders and workers possible, and therefore better control of their movements.

Interstate control would be greatly improved if there were a law requiring licensing of all crew-leaders either with the Department of Agriculture or with the Department of Labor.

The law now requires that seats for two thirds of the passengers must be provided in every vehicle and that it be closed at the end by a high endgate. The police have done an excellent job of enforcing these requirements. None of the serious accidents which used to be frequent, has occurred in New York in the past two years.

Improvements Achieved

Here are some of the major results which the Interdepartmental Committee has achieved within the camps. The water supply is safe and adequate, as is the sewage disposal. The quality of housing has improved everywhere. Covered receptacles are mandatory for garbage disposal. Toilet facilities, usually privies, are good, many camps using flush toilets.

Showers have hot and cold running water. Ventilation has been improved and overcrowding reduced. Bad physical conditions still exist, especially in some of the private camps, as infringements of the law are difficult to establish, and moral persuasion is a slow process.

Public health nurses visit each camp at least once a week to check all newcomers for communicable diseases, to hold health clinics for children at the nursery schools and for prenatal cases, and give service to tuberculosis and V. D. patients.

Physicians and nurses make a complete physical examination of all children in the child care centers. They also render first aid, conduct an immunization program for children and arrange for T. B. chest pictures as well as for hospitalization when necessary. Health education programs, including moving pictures, lectures, posters and leaflets, are given at intervals in every camp. All of this work for adults has to be done in the evening when the workers are in camp.

Health Safeguarded

In the three counties of Madison, Oneida and Herkimer, for example, there are six full-time nurses for 3000 migrants. These counties, in addition to the usual services, have a bus V. D. clinic that goes to camps where local facilities are inadequate. In the regular community programs there is but one public health nurse for every 5000 inhabitants. Thus the State Department of Health, through its district offices, is now providing better health services to migrant workers than are available to the year-round population.

The 19 child nursery projects, with a total enrollment of 850, are located sometimes within the camp, sometimes at strategic points where they can serve five or six different camps. With the exception of the Brant Center, operated by the Catholic Charities of Buffalo for 125 children, the Centers are financed jointly by the State Youth Commission, which pays 85 per cent of the cost, and the State Federation of Canners and Growers, which pays 11 per cent.

Parents pay $1.50 per week for the child's food, or about 4 per cent. In addition to a substantial hot lunch, the children get fruit juices and cod liver oil daily. Licensing and inspection of the child care centers is under the State Department of Social Welfare.

They are not used as much as they might be, which is not surprising. The children from 6 to 14 are seldom there. Nor have most of these nurseries a suitable program for these older boys and girls. In one camp where there were 80 children under 12, only 28 were enrolled in the nursery. The others were picking beans.

Protection For Children

"Is it not better that the 12 and 13 year old boys and girls be out in the fields working with their parents than fooling around the camps and getting into mischiefs?" asked many a worried official.

As it will be impossible to keep the youngsters of this age, needed as they are for the support of the family, out of the fields, it is a moot question whether the minimum age for agricultural work should not be lowered to 12 or 13.

Farmers, State officials and social workers agree that such a law could be strictly enforced, thus giving real protection to the very young children who are now putting in long hours of arduous labor from Texas to Maine and from New York to California.

As I saw hominy grits and bacon sizzling on most of the cook stoves in the migrant worker camps, the nutritional instructions given the mothers by the nursery school teachers is of great value, as well as the education in general care.

The poverty of equipment in some of the nurseries makes one wonder why the nearby communities could not help out with sand boxes and other needed facilities.

Here is an obvious service for local welfare agencies or women's clubs, but the only indication of friendliness I encountered in New York State was a not wholly disinterested picnic given the migrant workers in two counties by the local merchants.

(Tomorrow Mrs. Meyer tells where the migrant problem should be attacked.)

The Gallup Poll

Voters Ready to Match Soviet In Increasing Research Funds

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., October 9.—Americans are willing to match the Russians in expenditures for scientific research.

Not only does a huge mjority approve doubling this Nation's scientific research budget but a majority of those with opinions express a willingness to pay higher taxes to make the expanded program possible.

Representative voters in a coast-to-coast survey were asked:

It has been suggested that the United States spend two billion dollars a year for various kinds of scientific and military research. Do you think this is a good idea or a poor idea?

The response:

Good idea	76%
Poor	13
No opinion	11

The enlarged research program was drafted by a presidential advisory board, which advised the Government to double expenditures in this field by 1957. The issue enters the international arena, since the board points out that Russia this year is spending 100 million dollars more than the United States on scientific development. In terms of Soviet national income this means that their expenditures are relatively far higher than this country's.

Of the persons interviewed those with most education tend to give much stronger approval than those with less formal training. Professional and business people give above-average support, while manual workers and farmers are the least enthusiastic. Younger voters like the idea more than their elders.

"Would you be willing to pay more taxes to make this (the increased expenditure) possible?"

Yes	50%
No	38
No opinion	12

Of the 76 per cent who favored spending the two billion dollars in the first question 63 per cent indicated a willingness to pay more taxes.

Further analysis of the answers reveals that people who most strongly favor higher taxes for this purpose are already in the higher income tax brackets.

By occupations the results were:

	Willing to pay more taxes	Not willing	No opin.
Professional and White collar
Business	60%	32%	8%
Workers	55	36	9
Farmers	54	32	14
Manual workers	43	42	15

Americans have been past masters in applying basic discoveries of foreign scientists to practical purposes. The broader research activity now recommended is designed in part to increase this Nation's fund of basic scientific knowledge so that we shall no longer be dependent on other countries.

The United States is now spending about $1,160,000,000 for scientific research, or half of 1 per cent of the national income. Leading scientists believe this should be increased to $2,240,000,000 within the next decade, if the United States is to stay in the race for scientific supremacy.

Under the recommendations military development would receive slightly more money, while nonmilitary research would be more than doubled. Expenditures for basic, as contrasted with applied, research would be tripled as would be the funds allotted to research in the health fields.

A drive goal of $35,00 has been set in the 1947 Christmas Seal Sale Campaign of the Arlington County Tuberculosis Association, R. W. Baker, sale chairman, announced yesterday. He pointed out that funds are used in case-finding, health education and clinic services to tubercular patients.

20 Turkish Generals, Admirals Make Tour of Naval Academy

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—Gen. Salih Omurtak, chief of the Turkish general staff, and 19 other ranking army, navy and air force officers viewed the naval academy today at the start of a Nation-wide tour to help Turkey make the most of 100 million dollars in United States aid.

For the next month Turkish officers will inspect many of this country's key military installations and industrial plants. In this manner, General Omurtak said, they will gain wider knowledge of United States training procedures and equipment.

He told academy officers at a luncheon that Americans could have faith in Turkey "for the furtherance of their own ideals in that part of the world." He said his country was "ready to defend" its culture and soil.

A 17-gun salute and four ruffles and flourishes by the Academy band greeted Gen. Omurtak and his staff on their arrival this morning. Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent, welcomed them.

They inspected the ordnance-gunnery and marine engineering departments, saw historic pieces in the Academy museum ,then visited the naval communications station, air facility and engineering experiment station.

General Omurtak was reviewing officer for a parade of the Midshipmen's brigade at 3:30 p. m.

Officers accompanying the Turkish party from Washington said that next week separate groups would leave on journeys to 26 army installatoins, 18 naval bases and 20 air force stations.

11:00—Gov. Robert Kerr, Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma and others.

12:00—General Thomas Holcomb, U. S. Minister to South Africa.

New Hungarian Envoy Admits Soviet Influence on Country

Russian influence in Hungary is strong, but the country still retains its independence, Dr. Fustem Vambery, new Hungarian minister to the United States, said yesterday.

"Hungary is squeezed between Slavis countries," he pointed out at a press conference at the Hungarian Legation, "and the presence an (Russian) army of occupation had its influence on the mind of the country."

To say that Hungary is under complete control of Russia, however, is not true, he said, the Russians "don't interfere directly with the internal affairs of the country."

Influence Admitted

"There is, of course, a strong influence in the coalition government," he said, pointing out that the Communist Party had received more than 25 per cent of the votes in the last election and was the strongest single party in the government.

Asked if he thought the Communists came to power through fair methods, he said he "would admit there were abuses" in the last election, but that he thought the overall effect on he results was negligible.

Asked about the recent revival of the Comintern during a September conference in Poland of Communist leaders from nine eastern countries including Hungary, Dr. Vambery said he knew nothing about it.

As for himself, he said, he is representing a coalition government and is not a member of the Communist or any other party.

Once Fled to United States

Dr. Vambery, who fled Hungary during the nazification program in 1938 and took refuge in the United States, has just returned from a 10-day visit to his native land.

He said he found his homeland "a poor country downtrodden by two wars," exploited by the Germans, with the Russian occupation army using much of what was left over.

"We are not a big power," he said, "we are something like nine million people left over from two wars. We need very much the support of all the big powers.

"Hungary should not be used as a baseball," he said, "between the Yankees and the Dodgers."

Fire Chief Probe Findings Due Soon

Investigation of charges made against Fire Chief Clement Murphy by Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy will be completed "sometime next week," Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West revealed yesterday.

The probe began four months ago after Captain Conroy, while testifying before a House District Appropriations Subcommittee accused Chief Murphy of "demoralizing" the Fire Department. The Commissioners subsequently ordered the city legal staff to make an investigation of the charges.

Vandenberg and Wife Are Hospital Patients

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 9 (AP).—Senator Vandenberg, (R., Mich.), President pro-tem of the Senate, and Mrs. Vandenberg were in Butterworth Hospital today, the Senator undergoing "a routine checkup," and his wife recuperating from a second operation for teratment of a gall bladder ailment.

Arthur H. Vandenberg, jr., the Senator's son and secretary, said his father was "taking a rest", and that his mother was "resting satisfactorily after a second operation to conclude surgical treatment necessary in her case."

Hitler Death Is Described By High Nazi

Nuernberg, Germany, Oct. 9 (AP). Hitler's suicide and funeral pyre were described vividly for United States investigators today by a German who apparently was the only high Nazi to survive the Fuehrer's death watch.

Axmann

Arthur Axmann, leader of the HitlerYouth after Baldur von Schirach became Gauleiter of Vienna, told his story to Walter Rapp, chief of the evidence division.

Axmann spoke intensely, often forgetfully leaning forward on his stump of an arm—he was wounded on the Russian front.

This is his story, as made available by the officers to whom it was told:

Axmann was in Hitler's Berlin headquarters from April 22, 1945, onward, under the Fuehrer's orders.

On April 30 everybody in the bunker knew Hitler had decided upon suicide. Apparently recalling Mussolini's ignominious death, he ordered that his body and that of Eva Braun be burned.

Late that night—or it might have been early May 1—Paul Joseph Goebbels told Axmann "the Fuehrer is dead." He led Axmann into the death chamber.

Hitler was sitting upright on the divan. He had shot himself through the mouth, and there was blood on his temples from the concussion. Eva evidently had taken poison. Her head rested on the Fuehrer's shoulder. There was some indication that Hitler, too, had taken poison first, as a double assurance he would not fall alive into Russian hands.

Goebbels and Axmann threw blankets over them. Eric Kempka, Hitler's chauffeur, was told to carry the bodies into the courtyard.

Almost 50 gallons of gasoline was poured over the two bodies. A match was thrown and the bodies burst into flame. When the bodies were burned, several S. S. men dumped what was left in a shell crater. Dirt was smoothed over the crater, to conceal the grave.

Alumni to Gather

Front Royal, Va., Oct. 9 (Spl.).—More than 200 alumni are expected to be present here Saturday for Randolph-Macon Academy's annual homecoming celebration, Col. John C. Boggs announced. Program includes an alumni luncheon, football game, business session of the alumni association, and a dance.

Henry County Man Indicted for Murder

Martinsville, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—The Henry County Circuit Court is scheduled to hear the trial of Ivory Manns, indicted for the murder of Abraham Varner today.

In addition to the murder charge Manns will also face charges of malicious wounding in connection with the shooting of Louise Patterson on August 17, the same night Varner was killed.

The Henry County Court yesterday sentenced Paul H. Daniel, 23, of Bassett, to serve 18 years in the State penitentiary. The jury found him guilty of second-degree murder in the death of William Grady on July 20.

300 Doctors and Wives Gather at Convention

Easton, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—About 300 physicians and their wives gathered in Easton today for the semiannual convention of the Medical and Chirurgical faculty of Maryland.

At a business session they heard Dr. Richard E. Kieffer, medical director of Maryland's Blue Cross, discuss the prepayment medical program and ask for the cooperation of private physicians.

Meantime, the physicians' wives were entertained at a tea and took in historic sites and other spots of interest near Easton.

EXTRA-FAST—here is an epoch-making achievement in air travel! You fly swiftly from Washington to Miami non-stop by Eastern Air Lines. There you board "THE INTER AMERICAN." Speeding over the routes of Pan American and Panagra, you reach Buenos Aires, relaxed and refreshed, after a good night's sleep in a spacious berth. From Miami it is only 20½ hours. If you're going only as far as Balboa you can be there in 4½ hours, or Lima in 10¾ hours, or Santiago in 17¼ hours!

EXTRA-FINE—"THE INTER AMERICAN" features new DC-6 airliners...air-conditioned and sound-conditioned to make swift travel at high altitudes extra comfortable. Feather-soft reclining chairs and large bed-size berths bring a new luxury to travel between the Americas. Delicious meals, large full-vista windows and spacious lounge rooms add to the enjoyment of your trip.

Princess' Farewell

AS a friendly gesture before leaving for home, Princess Achraf Pahlavi, twin sister of the Shah of Iran, entertained at a reception on Tuesday at the Iran Embassy. Coming to the United States to observe the working methods of the American Red Cross, the Princess spent six weeks studying social welfare systems. When the camera caught her at her party, she had stopped for a few minutes' conversation with J. H. Van Gelder, who was here from New York

And Another in Mind!

Mrs. Keyes Contributes Two Books to Fall List

By Marie McNair

NOT ONE, but two books will roll off the presses this month, bearing the author's name, "Frances Parkinson Keyes." And the author, in Washington for a few days' stay, has another story already etched in her mind.

As the wife of the Senator from New Hampshire, Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes started years ago to do her writing on the side. At that time the duties of a senatorial wife and three spirited young sons left her little time for her budding literary leanings.

Over a span of more than 20 years, Frances Keyes has turned out 23 books—or is it 24?—and most of them have been best sellers. Along with her novels have been hundreds of magazine articles and between times she has made several trips to Europe, visited South America, managed frequent trips to her farms in New Hampshire and Vermont and restored five old houses. Whew!

Writes for Teen-Agers

When "Once on Esplanade," a story for teen-agers, comes out on October 20, and "Came a Cavalier" three days later, Mrs. Keyes will be back in New Orleans where she lives at historic Beauregard House, one of the dwellings which she has so carefully restored. A house at Crowley, La., and the cottage on River Road—the name given to her last book—are all fine examples of restoration. So, too, is Tradition in Alexandria, Va., where the author lived until she sold the house a year or two ago.

Living in France nine months produced "Came a Cavalier," but Mrs. Keyes admits that the second of her most recent books was more than three years in the writing.

Frances Parkinson Keyes returned to this country in February, took off almost immediately for Santiago, Chile, and with her went the family heirloom christening robe for John Parkinson Keyes' first born. Back again in August, the author and the christening robe were called to Vermont for the baptismal ceremony of another grand child, David Johnson Keyes, youngest in the Peter Keyes family, who was named for the first owner of Mrs. Keyes' ancestral home in Newbury.

Publisher to Be Guest

In New Orleans Mrs. Keyes will meet her British publisher, Douglas Gerald, who is on his first visit to Louisiana, will introduce him to the locale of many of her books. She'll take in the famous rice festival at Crowley before starting off on an "autographing tour" which will take her to Dallas, Detroit, Milwaukee, Chicago and Cleveland.

At the Sulgrave Club during her Washington visit, Mrs. Keyes will entertain at luncheon there today for 20 of her friends. She also gave a dinner for 16 at the club Tuesday evening.

WHEN Elizabeth Howry went up to visit Mrs. Thomas Dugan at Jamestown, R. I., she was enchanted with an old house she found on the island and promptly bought it. Now she can't wait for spring to come when she will start to remodel.

On the northern tip of the island, with 32 acres surrounding it and a long stretch of private beach, the house, Elizabeth says, was the first on the island, was built in 1650 by a Scotsman named Kerr.

Fire destroyed the greater part of it some years ago, so that only one side of the original building remains.

Because she loves old houses, loves even more to remodel and redecorate them, Miss Howry has moved half a dozen times since she became a resident of Georgetown. First she buys a little house with the view of making it her home. Then the result is so charming that she can't refuse an offer to sell.

Miss Howry is planning a party for young people a week from Sunday, for Miss Cathleen Rowe, debutante daughter of Mrs. Thomas Dugan, wife of Captain Dugan, USN. Miss Rowe will be presented to society at a tea in December at the 1925 F Street Club.

For Food Saving

Citizens' Food Group Suggests Dinner Menu

By Lucia Brown

Curried fish is suggested as the principal dish for dinner tonight by the Citizens' Food Committee.

In issuing a recipe for this dish, the committee pointed out that you can use any kind of fish—fresh, frozen, or canned—to make it. Curry can be omitted from the recipe if you like.

To serve with the fish, the committee suggests baked potato and a green vegetable, with baked apple for dessert.

The recipe, as prepared by the committee in cooperation with home economists of the Department of Agriculture and Fish and Wildlife Service, follows:

Curried Fish

1½ to 2 pounds fresh or frozen fish
1 small onion
1 tablespoon green pepper, choppe
¼ cup celery, chopped
3 tablespons flour
1 teaspoon curry powder (or less, to suit family taste.)
Milk (optional)
A little fat.

If fish is fresh or frozen, place in 2 cups boiling salted water and simmer 10 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Drain cooked or canned fish and separate into flakes. Save liquid and add water or milk to make two cups. Cook chopped vegetables in a little fat, add flour, curry and liquid. Cook slowly until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour sauce over fish. Garnish with parsley. Serves 4 to 5.

GOOD AS IT LOOKS—As refreshing as it's attractive is this dessert ring made of gelatin, fruits, and whipped cream. Use strawberry flavored gelatin and surround it with whole canned apricots and purple plums, chilled in the refrigerator. If you haven't a ring mold, don't let that worry you. Put a small bowl in the center of a round basin. Or, mold clear gelatin in a square. Unmold and edge with fruit on a chop plate. Heap a spreading of frosting-like whipped cream on top of the gelatin

Farm Wife Tells Europe's Need

Jacksons Mill, W. Va., Oct. 9 (AP). Food is "the most important political weapon for peace," an Iowa farmer's wife who returned to this country earlier this week after her election as international president of Associated Countrywomen of the World asserted here today.

Mrs. Raymond Sayre added that she had her own answers "to some congressional visitors to Europe who reported they found no underfed people there."

Now attending the annual meeting of the National Home Demonstration Council here, Mrs. Sayre told a reporter that "people can be awfully hungry and still not look it. You can see this hunger as much in their outlook on life as in their desire for enough food."

The woman who took time out from her own housework, a 600-acre farm in southern Iowa and her four children to become the first American ever elected head of the international organization at the recent convention in Amsterdam, Holland, added:

"The price of peace is action right now. Assistance from the United States in the form of food may not be the perfect answer, but we've got to take the chance. It's the only opportunity we have, even if it doesn't work out 100 per cent."

She added that assistance to Europe is not "as much a matter of giving food directly, or even giving money, as it is helping the people there to rehabilitate themselves."

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

I have a pale aqua, rayon shantung dress piped with red rayon crepe, which washed beautifully, but after it dried and I sprinkled and rolled it up before ironing, the red ran on the aqua. Could you recommend something to take the stain out without hurting the color or fabric?
J. A. L.

Any bleach which would take out the red would also affect the aqua, I'm afraid. One way to restore this dress to usefulness would be to have it redyed another color.

Could you advise treatment for a sweater which was sent to the cleaners and returned badly shrunken? Could I wash and stretch it? It has been too long to return it to the cleaners.
D. C.

You can probably do much to increase the size of your sweater by wetting and stretching it. If you have another sweater the size of the shrunken sweater before it was cleaned, lay it on a large paper and draw around it for a pattern. Now, wet the shrunken sweater and lay it on the pattern, stretching it gently to the pattern size. Allow to dry flat on the pattern.

Will you please print in The Washington Post how to clean oil paintings? They look like they need a coat of varnish again, but I wondered if the old varnish could be taken off first. They are about 60 years of age.
R. S. C.

Since your oil paintings are old, they are no doubt valued family heirlooms and should be treated with care. Removing the varnish on an oil painting is a delicate job and should only be undertaken by an experienced craftsman. I suggest you take them to an art shop to have the old varnish removed and the new varnish applied.

What cake recipe requires egg yolks only? When I bake an angel food cake, I am left with yolks on hand and would like to use them in a cake. H. D. O.

How about a "Golden Sponge Cake"? The recipe follows:
2 cup sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
9 egg yolks
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup boiling water

Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks until thick and light colored. Gradually add sugar, beating until very thick and light colored. Then beat in orange rind, lemon juice and boiling water. Fold in flour and turn into ungreased tube pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Invert pan 1 hour, or until cold, before removing cake. Yield: 1 large cake.

Third Day of Diet Ordeal

Father Has a Choice—Fish or Fish

THERE'S a little free will for father included in today's diet.

The main dish is fish, of course, but he has a choice—or maybe it's you, when you do the marketing—among several different denizens of the deep.

An average serving of a variety of fish—trout, mackerel, halibut, rockfish, and bluefish, for instance—packs about 100 calories, provided it's broiled with little fat and served with lemon garnish. No fried fish, though, and no tartar sauce!

The calories in ½ cup of scallops or shrimps also add up to a total of 100, if you serve 'em steamed, with tomato sauce or lemon (and maybe one drop of melted butter.)

How to Wear Your Orchid

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 9 (AP).—Got your orchid on right, lady?

Many women wear them upside down, the North Carolina Florists Association was told at its convention today by Miss Irma Smith, representative of a large New Jersey grower.

"Wear an orchid like God grew it, looking up toward the sky," was her advice.

ALSO: "Don't pierce the stem with a pin. It prevents moisture from feeding the flower."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 19, Wed to European Man, 34, Expects First Child Soon; The Problem Is Her Dragon Mother, Who Wants to Be Center of Her Life

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My mother, 51, has been widowed 11 years. I am her only child. I am 19 and have been married nearly two years to a man, 34, who is all alone here, having left all his family in Europe. We are expecting our first child next month.

Mother is our problem. She is such a dependent person, unable to do a thing for herself; an unpleasant character, who can't get along with people. My husband wins friends very easily and is kindness itself to me. I want a peaceful, happy home for our child—but how to manage it?

Mother lives separately from us but spends all her days with me, in our one-room apartment, and we give her an allowance. She thinks she ought to be the center of our lives. Where we go, she must go. What we discuss, she must know about. There must be no secrets from her.

Girl Is Meek; Mother Hovers

Why? "Because," she says, "I suffered so much to raise my little girl; and I have no one else in the world to keep me company." It's true she takes no other interest in life and never was one to seek outside company. When I was in school she stayed home all day, and when I came home we would go for a walk or maybe a visit, after I'd told the events of my day.

I am the meek type and easily adjust to what is required of me; and until I became engaged I didn't know any other life. During courtship I had to tell her where we went, exactly what was said, whether Claude kissed me and what his actions were. She said she had to know these things to be sure of my welfare.

My engagement wasn't the romantic experience that girls dream about. Many times I wanted to break it, not because I didn't think Claude wonderful—he is,—but because I was afraid that some day he might say I married the first man who wanted me and came to him without a thing of my own.

Marriage Cramped By Jealous Duenna

HE GAVE me many clothes and other things he thought I would need, always considering me first, as he still does—when I would have liked to be rich, provide these these things myself, and be his equal. We might have broken off if he hadn't been so sympathetic about my feelings, and if mother hadn't defended the engagement as often as I spoke of breaking it.

Meanwhile, mother and Claude had frequent quarrels, though rather restrained. Now I am very much in love with him and he with me, but mother makes life a misery all the time she is here. If things go on as they are I am afraid I might do something silly or desperate and then regret it.

Soon we are leaving for another country, taking mother with us. There she will be even more bound to us, as we will have no friends on arrival. What is the answer to this frightening problem? I know you can help me. Please answer quickly. E. B.

Couple Should Stand Together

DEAR E. B.: In view of your husband's continental background, doubtless he is steeped in knowledge of the dragon-mother type. Add to this his fairly mature age and paternalistic devotion to you, and I think we've found the person well able to cope with your mother—if allowed a free hand.

Thus, instead of trying to conceal from him the full text of her disagreeable character and "mom"-tactics, also the helpless panic you feel in her octopus embrace—tell him the whole truth as you've told it to me, in many more pages than I could print.

You're no match for her; you're not constituted to be; and your attempts to be a buffer between her and Claude probably persuade him that her companionship is dear to you—that you wouldn't want things other than they are now.

So out with the truth, thereby strengthening bonds of mutual understanding and common cause, and let him spearhead a campaign to clear ground for a more peaceful happy marriage, without duenna.

Strecker's Book Deals With Type

AT 51, your mother has a substantial life-expectancy yet; probably another quarter century. And you, with a husband and offspring to consider can't afford to carry her on your shoulders that long.

Moreover, it wouldn't be kindness to do so. It would be simply encouraging her to shrivel into something scarcely more alive than a mummy. Far better for her health of mind and body to have to forage for a normal variety of social interests to fill her time.

So get that through your head, and when your husband launches a home-defense plan, don't let her raging lamentations cause you to sabotage it. In the meantime, read Dr. Edward Strecker's book, "Their Mothers' Sons"—to be forewarned and forearmed against the ruthless bag of tricks she's sure to spring, once the struggle to plant her on her own feet begins.

M. H.

A foolish mother, trying to live her child's life, gets some advice on mending her ways in Miss Haworth's next column. Read it in The Washington Post Sunday.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

The Bright Kennedys

Uncle Sam's Lady Marvels Can Take Bow

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

SO MUCH HAS been said about the male whizzes who are doing such wonders for our Government it's about time a few feminine marvels were spotlighted. Take Eunice Kennedy, for instance. She's one of former-Ambassador-to-Great-Britain Joe Kennedy's pretty daughters and a sister of Jack Kennedy, Massachusetts' youngest Congressman. Eunice works down in the Justice Department under Attorney General Clark. Her lengthy title is Executive Secretary of the National Conference on Control of Juvenile Delinquency.

Eunice became interested some 18 months ago when the Attorney General called a conference of 800 experts in the juvenile delinquency field. They made up a series of panel reports which have been sent all over the country to stimulate state and community action in preventing juvenile delinquency.

Much of Eunice's time is spent working on Attorney General Clark's own projects. The first is a scholarship plan for reform school boys and girls to enable them to continue their education once they're released, either in regular or vocational schools.

The second project was a roundup of sports writers and broadcasters who prepared a sports program designed to stimulate planned recreation for the young. The program was sent to every broadcaster and there's been an extraordinary response in getting kids together, directing sports, making them more interesting.

Lately Eunice has been visiting women's reformatories. Many of the women are there on first offenses and just need a break. She's trying to get luckier women interested in them, work out some kind of "adoption" arrangement whereby each woman would be visited, helped and encouraged by someone like you or me until she's on her feet again.

Eunice Kennedy, by the way, is well equipped for her job—she majored in sociology and political sciences at Manhattanville and at Leland Stanford Colleges.

Mrs. Mellon-to-Be

UP FROM MIDDLEBURG comes the news that Paul Mellon will soon remarry. Paul is son of the late Andrew Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, and a brother of Mrs. Ailsa Mellon Bruce. Though Paul hails from Pittsburgh, has a winter residence in Hobe Sound, he's most at home on his de luxe Virginia farm. His first wife, who died two years ago as the result of an over strenuous afternoon of riding, was the former Mary Conover Brown, once a big shot in New York's public relations field.

The new Mrs. Mellon-to-be is pretty, vivacious "Bunny" Lambert Lloyd. "Bunny," who's real name is Rachel, is one of the Lambert clan whose yachts and other agreeable trinkets are financed via a famous antiseptic.

Her first husband, Stacy Lloyd, is a most attractive gent who's in and out of all kinds of stimulating enterprises. Some years ago he took over editorship of The Chronicle, the breeding, hunting, racing, farming journal published in Middleburg and transformed it into a readable, up-to-date gazette. He's into oil financing down Texas way, too.

During the war both Stacy and Paul were in the OSS, stationed in the same sector. Mrs. L. and Mr. M. have known each other well for years. Incidentally, Paul's father is responsible for one of Washington's greatest cultural attractions—the National Art Gallery—which was so magnanimously endowed with Mellon millions.

Hillcrest's Open House Today Will Celebrate 132d Anniversary

Home's Lady Managers Will Be Hostesses In Van Ness Cottage

By Bessie Hackett

Mrs. Arthur Wallace Dunn, acting first directress, and the 16 other lady managers of Hillcrest, the Washington City Orphan Asylum, will act as hostesses this afternoon at the "open house" celebrating the institution's 132d anniversary. They will receive in Van Ness Cottage and, weather permitting, refreshments will be served on the lawn.

Any one interested in the welfare of unfortunate children is invited to visit Hillcrest between the hours of 4 and 6. Guests will be shown through the dormitories, dining rooms, workshop, little museum, and over the grounds. The children's routine will not be interrupted by the open house and youngsters will set their tables, have supper at 5:30 and clear up the dishes as usual.

Punch will be served to guests under the direction of Mrs. Preston Delano, a member of the board, who will be assisted by Mrs. C. Clinton James, Mrs. Frank Stetson, Mrs. James C. Wilkes and Mrs. Barnum L. Colton, wives of trustees; Mrs. Corrin Strong, Miss Rose Greeley, Miss Julia Feiberger and Mrs. Slocum Kingsbury, past members of the board. Mrs. Grant Boss will have charge of the sale of handicraft made by the children.

Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, who resigned as first directress last spring to accompany her husband on a tour of the Pacific, has come down from her home at Martha's Vineyard to attend the celebration.

THIS Rembrandt Peele portrait of Marcia Van Ness, founder of Hillcrest, the Washington City Orphan Asylum, will greet visitors at the open house this afternoon celebrating the orphanage's 132d anniversary. The little girl at Mrs. Van Ness' knee was her only child, Ann Elbertina. The portrait hangs in Van Ness cottage, residence of the older girls

Board Names in History

Many of the 17 women who comprise the board of lady managers bear names woven into the history of Washington and can trace their family association with Hillcrest back to the third and fourth generation.

Founder of the orphanage in 1815 was Washington-born Marcia Burns Van Ness, whose father, a prosperous farmer, sold part of his property to the Government at the request of George Washington to help make up the 10 square miles selected for the site of the new Capital city. Educated in Georgetown and Baltimore, Marcia made her debut at the famous Georgetown Ball with Nellie Custis and, in 1802, married a Congressman from New York, John Peter Van Ness. To care for children orphaned and abandoned as a result of the war of 1812, Mrs. Van Ness called a meeting of "well placed and elegant ladies" to organize the Washington City Orphan Asylum. The move was backed by Dolly Madison, wife of the President, who was elected first directress of the ladies' board.

A member of the present board, Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall, is a great-great-great-great-niece of Peter Van Ness, father-in-law of Marcia. Elected to the board in 1937, Mrs. Aspinwall (then Mrs. Wilson Lee) and her children made their home with her father-in-law, the late Senator Blair Lee, who was a trustee of Hillcrest for over 45 years. His mother, Mrs. Samuel Phillips Lee, nee Elizabeth Blair, became a member of the board in 1852 and was first directress from 1862 until her death in 1906.

Blair Family Represented

The Blair family is represented on the board today by Mrs. Lee's great-niece, Mrs. B. Lowndes Jackson, the former Ellen Blair, who is treasurer.

Miss Katherine Gideon Colt, senior member of the board, has followed in the footsteps of her mother, Mrs. William D. Colt, and grandmother, Mrs. George Saile Gideon.

The recording secretary, Miss Sally Bradley, daughter of Charles H. Bradley, is a great-great-great-niece of Mrs. Phinias Bradley, who was on the board in 1938. She is also the great-great-niece of Mrs. Joseph Bradley, who served in 1862 and was the last member of the Bradley family to live on the farm which is now the Chevy Chase Club. Her grandmother, Mrs. Andrew Bradley, was one of the lady managers from 1912 to 1930.

Two generations of the Kauffmann family are represented on the board—Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Godfrey Kauffmann. Miss Portia Oberly, founder and curator of Hillcrest's Little Museum, succeeded her sister, Mrs. B. M. Echols.

The acting first directress, Mrs. Dunn, is the former Virginia McKenney, daughter of Frederic D. McKenney and granddaughter of James Hall McKenney, chief clerk of the United States Supreme Court.

Other lady managers are Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., Mrs. C. Rogers Arundell, Mrs. Frederick Connolly, Mrs. Preston Delano, Mrs. Grant Boss and Mrs. Wilfred L. Goodwyn, jr.

Daughter to Oakes

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Oakes of New York, formerly of Washington, announce the birth of their second daughter, Alison Hartman Oakes, on September 11 in New York. Mrs. Oakes is the former Miss Margery Caroline Hartman, daughter of Mrs. Emanuel M. Hartman and the late Mr. Hartman of Hartford, Conn.

Glimpses of Book On White House Given to Club

Wednesday, Merriman Smith gave members of the Women's Auxiliary of the D. C. Medical Society a few advance glimpses of his new book, "A President Is Many Men," scheduled for publication next spring.

The White House correspondent for the United Press—author of the best-selling "Thank You, Mr. President"—was guest speaker at the Auxiliary's luncheon meeting in lieu of Lyle C. Wilson, manager of the Washington UP Bureau, who was called out of town unexpectedly.

Mr. Merriman's talk consisted mostly of smatterings of new White House history he has been compiling for publication. Among them was the story of the recent discovery in the mansion's basement of a stone trough that is believed to have carried water to the White House from Franklin Park until the time of modern plumbing.

Goodby to Youth

There is a certain time in life . . . When youth must disappear . . . And what is left of it is just a dream of yesteryear . . . The thought of it is lonely and . . . The heart is a little sad . . . Because of all the pleasures and . . . The friendliness it had . . . But that is how the flow of life . . . Is poured into our cup . . . And we must taste and swallow it . . . As we are growing up . . . We gaze into the future and . . . We wonder what we want . . . While memories surround us and . . . Invade our every haunt . . . We wish that we could walk again . . . The old, familiar way . . . But only phantoms ever find . . . The road to yesterday.

Only One Bid Is Submitted On School Job

Only one construction firm submitted a bid for building a $119,000 third floor addition to the District Training School's hospital and administration building near Laurel, Md., Chief Engineer Clerk P. M. Lumpkins revealed yesterday.

Sole bidder, he said, was John Tester & Son, Inc., of 418 Florida ave. ne., who offered to do the job for $118,260.

Municipal Architect Merril A. Coe said work would begin "very soon" after a contract is awarded. Eight months will be required to complete the addition, he stated. The "bids" were opened Tuesday.

Lumpkins also announced that bids were opened yesterday for installing resilient floor covering in the cafeteria and kitchen of Western High School and for building a service sewer on 3d st. se., between Atlantic st. and Livingston terrace.

Lowest of four bidders for the Western High School project was Southeastern Floor Co., 4313 Hamilton st., Hyattsville, Md., with estimates totaling $2107, he said.

Leo Butler Co., 8416 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., outbid three competitors by submitting estimates of $6478 for the sewer installation. Sanitary Engineer Harold Kemp said the sewer would serve new apartment houses in the Southeast area. Work will begin as soon as a contract is awarded and the job will be completed about January 1, 1948, he said.

Tremors Continue

Athens, Greece, Oct. 9 (U.P.)—Press dispatches today reported that three more strong earth tremors were felt last night at Kalamai, where three persons were killed in a shock Tuesday.

Taft-Hartley Act Problems Worry U. S. Mediation Service

Two unexpected reactions to the Taft-Hartley Act have raised problems which are mildly worrying the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, it was learned yesterday.

One is an undue eagerness by some employers to draw the service into every labor dispute, however small and unimportant. The other is an opposite reaction by some unions—to avoid contact with the service under any conditions.

Neither manifestation has reached the proportions of a definite or dangerous trend. But officials of the mediation agency are watching the situation. They hope that it will not build up to a serious level.

The new FMCS is the successor of the former Conciliation Service of the Labor Department. Its new legal authority stems from Title Two of the Taft-Hartley law.

Reasoning of Employers

Reports to the FMCS from the field suggest that some employers believe that there would be some legal significance, with respect to other titles of the law, in the intercession of the mediation agency.

Acting on this notion, a few employers have insisted on calling in the agency, even though State conciliation organizations were available, and even though the dispute in which they were engaged had little if any effect on interstate commerce.

These employers, the reports indicate, were faced with union demands which they believed were illegal under Title One (the amended National Labor Relations Act) of the new law. The employers apparently felt that if the Conciliation Service interceded, such action would thereby demonstrate that the case had a Federal aspect. Thus it would automatically come under the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board.

Officials Assail Reasoning

The employers could then contend that they and the union were subject to NLRB rules, and that the new law was applicable to the dispute. The law bans certain labor demands, such as the closed shop.

According to Conciliation Service officials, this notion is completely unwarranted. The service's intercession or nonintercession in a dispute, they declare, has no relevance on whether the case is under NLRB jurisdiction, or whether other titles of the Taft-Hartley Act apply to it.

Meanwhile, the service has discovered, some unions which have resolved to have no contact whatsoever with the NLRB and the Labor Relations Act as it is now amended are including the FMCS in their boycott.

They apparently feel that they can no longer use the agency because it was reconstituted by the law that they abhor.

Some unions, in fact, appear to think that if they permit a Federal conciliator to sit in on a dispute, they thereby are committing themselves to use the processes of the new law.

The FMCS, however, takes the position that it has nothing to do with the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act to which the unions really object. Federal officials believe that unions will harm themselves by blocking the intercession of the service just because they object to entirely unrelated sections of the new law.

On Lend-Lease

Morgenthau Says Truman Failed Allies

Henry Morgenthau, jr., wartime Secretary of the Treasury, said yesterday the Truman Administration wrecked President Roosevelt's plans for speedy postwar recovery in Europe when it "brutally terminated" the Lend-Lease Act in August, 1945.

Writing in Collier's magazine, Morgenthau declared:

"If Lend-Lease had survived ... the world today might be on the long road to abundance and we would not be searching for a Marshall Plan to put us back on the road to recovery."

Instead, he said, the scrapping of Lend-Lease "without warning" four months after President Roosevelt's death had the effect of "cutting our allies adrift when they were still maimed and crippled by war."

Morgenthau wrote that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, meeting at Quebec in September, 1944, agreed on a program for continued United States aid to Britain after V-E Day. In the first year of this postwar "phase II of Lend-Lease," as Morgenthau termed it, the United States was to lend Britain about $5,500,000,000.

Morgenthau reported that Churchill, eloquently pleading Britain's case, told Mr. Roosevelt that his country "had expended its economic reserves, its very lifeblood, in the war against the common enemy, and abrupt termination of American aid would leave Britain without the resources to reprime its economy."

President Roosevelt remained "obstinately noncommittal for a long time" in the face of this plea, Morgenthau said, and Churchill once asked impatiently:

"What do you want me to do? Get on my hind legs and beg like Fala?"

Morgenthau said it was finally decided to work out an agreement for postwar help and "Churchill had tears in his eyes when he thanked the President."

Czechs See Possible Accord With France

Prague, Oct. 9 (U.P.)—A Czech foreign ministry spokesman said today that military alliance negotiations between France and Czechoslovakia could be resumed when the foreign ministers of both countries had returned from the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

He denied London press reports that the conversations had been broken off on orders from Moscow coincident with the rebirth of the Communist International.

Theft Victim Revenged But Loses His Shotgun

Atlanta, Oct. 9 (AP).—Atlanta police chronicled today the sad tale of a victim robbed twice in one night by the same trio of thieves.

The victim was relieved of $60 in a holdup. Vowing vengeance, he rushed home, grabbed an automatic shotgun, returned in time to take three shots at the robbers as they counted their loot under a street light. Unimpressed, the trio took the shotgun, too.

He found the Three Sons while he was running New York's Piccadilly Hotel. He dug up the Ink Spots as a good turn for the manager of a Binghamton, N. Y., hotel who needed some entertainers. They worked for $35 a week apiece and their board and rooms. Trouble with Mr. Bruen is that he's not self-seeking. He simply didn't bother to cut himself a slice of either the Spots or Sons. At present, Manager Bruen thinks highly of his new Dubonnaires—George Berg, Lee Potter and Hank Bryant—is planning to promote them on the air waves.

Nazi Loot to Help Victims of Hitler

40-Car 'Gold Train' and Stolen Goods Will Furnish Funds Under IRO Program

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Nazi murderers' loot is being converted into means for helping surviving victims of Hitler oppression into a new life.

The job, undertaken by the Preparatory Commission of the International Refugee Organization, has its ghoulish aspects. But the result will provide a few million dollars to aid in the resettlement and rehabilitation of displaced persons.

The story of the work was told yesterday by Hyman Smollar of Washington, an IRO official who has just completed a three months' job as reparations field supervisor in Frankfurt, Germany. His task was to appraise the pitiful valuables in the form of trinkets, dental fillings and wedding rings—stripped from concentration camp victims just before or just after they were killed.

The Washington Post
HYMAN SMOLLAR
Reads inventory of loot

By international agreement, that booty, plus other "nonmonetary" Nazi loot, is turned over to the IRO to be used in its program of aiding in the resettlement of DP's.

"Gold Train" Helps

According to Smollar, there were two principle sources of the material. One, the most valuable, came from a 40-car Hungarian "gold train" which the Nazis sent out of Hungary just before the Russians entered that country.

The train ran directly into the path of advancing American troops. They captured it, and its cargo, valued at about three million dollars, is now in warehouses in Salzburg, Austria.

For the most part, it is "store loot," the inventories of Hungarian shops ransacked by the Germans. It consists of furs (badly deteriorated), rugs, jewels and jewelry, fine porcelain and other luxury items.

The second cache of material which the IRO has received is "personal loot," the stuff disgorged by the concentration camps.

Part of it came from Buchenwald itself; the rest from the famous Merkes salt mines, where it was stored along with the Reichsbank gold. It derived originally from Osweicim (Auschwitz) and possibly other concentration camps. At least nine tenths of it was the property of slaughtered Jews.

What does it consist of?

Materials Itemized

Smollar can answer the question precisely. He has a large volume in which material is itemized.

A flip through the inventory pages shows such items as a quarter of a million wedding rings, carton after carton of dental crowns of gold, even more crates of teeth with the fillings still affixed, endless odd lots of silver and metal knives and forks, thousands of pieces of not-too-valuable jewelry—necklaces, earrings, bracelets, a few hundred coins from small numismatic collections, thousands upon thousands of rotting leather wallets.

There were also gold nuggets—dental fillings which the Nazis had already smelted down.

It was this material which Smollar and a small staff were obliged to appraise as they took it over for IRO from the Army.

"The first week," he said yesterday, "was pretty rough. After that, the only objective was to get it over with as fast as possible.

Trinkets Are Convincers

"I got so I could stand almost anything but the teeth, and the knives and forks with food still on them, and the children's trinkets. There were thousands of them—little necklaces and lockets and bracelets, and tiny rings.

"These things are the real convincers, if anyone needs to be convinced, of the enormity of the Nazi crime.

"The boxes smelled of Buchenwald. On the wallets, for example, there was the unmistakable smell of the institutional dust of the camp. Even the vault in the Reichsbank at Frankfurt, where the Army had stored the material, had a different stench."

Conversion of the articles into money for use in the DP resettlement program will be handled in different ways, Smollar said.

Nonprofit Operation

The gold will be smelted down in Germany, refined and sold in bars either in England or the United States. The diamonds will soon be flown to this country, where they will be sold by merchants who will make no profit from the transaction.

The IRO hopes to make similar arrangements, possibly with a group of large department stores, to dispose of the other material—china and silverware, rugs, collector's coins, jewelry, etc.—on a nonprofit basis. It will arrive at the Staten Island free port next month, via an IRO ship.

The IRO believes that people will be willing to buy the items, because their money will go toward helping the DP's. No particular sales resistance is anticipated on grounds of the material's ghastly history.

Smollar himself, however, admits he would have none of the stuff.

"I wanted at one time to take a little metal locket, which was valueless," he said. "It was a child's trinket, with an inscription of a girl's first name on the back. I wanted it just to be able to show to those . . . who say there weren't any artrocities, or who try to minimize them. But then I found I didn't have the stomach to take it."

Amount Trifling

Useful as the receipts from the sale of the lot will be, Smollar pointed out, the amounts will be trifling. Trifling in respect both to the monetary needs of the DP resettlement program and to the actual amounts which the Nazis looted from their victims.

For the concentration camp treasures were only what the prisoners were able to take along with them—a few valuables which they put into their pockets at the last minute. The real booty, the big theft, from those who were murdered, was the confiscation by the Germans of all the rest of their property.

U. S. Hearts Key to Peace

Harry F. Byrd, jr. of Winchester, Va., said yesterday there must exist in the hearts of Americans the will that the world will never again be plunged into war.

Byrd, editor of the Winchester Star and publisher of the Harrisonburg News Record, spoke at a farewell luncheon of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce at the Burlington Hotel for another Winchester man, Marshall L. Farmer.

Farmer who has been serving as national director of the board is leaving to become executive secretary of the Spring Valley, N. Y., Chamber of Commerce.

Byrd, speaking on "World Problems of Today," said American security lies along two roads—maintaining economic strength at home and striving for peace through the United Nations.

They will send 17 gift boxes including dolls, cut-out books, scissors, costume jewelry, candy and other items

Hite Nursery Faces Another Investigation

A new investigation of Hite Nursery School, near Rockville, loomed yesterday after it was disclosed the school was operating without a required Montgomery County license.

"If that is the case," said President Brooke Johns of the county board of commissioners, "we will close the school up."

Maryland State Department of Public Welfare officials previously disclosed the school's owner, Mrs. Maude C. Hite, lacked the State permit required by law.

The disclosure of lack of a county permit was contained in an official police report of an investigation of the school made last week by police and a physician, Dr. William A. Linthicum, of Rockville, after parents had complained of inadequate care.

The report was released by State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson.

Detective Chief Theodore F. Vollten, who prepared the report, charged Mrs. Hite "deliberately falsified" in a statement to him, regarding a child tied to his crib.

Captain Vollten said he was told by Mrs. Hite the child was tied with a bed harness, allowing freedom of movement. He said police who accompanied the parents to the school, reported the child was tied with a piece of cloth fastened to his pajamas.

In his report, Vollten said food supplies, at the time of inspection, were "inadequate" and the supply of bed linen was "totally inadequate."

Mrs. Hite yesterday again defended the school's operation and said both State and County permit applications were pending.

J. Milton Patterson, State Welfare Director, and Ernest Hawkins, clerk of the county commissioners, however, both said no applications had been received in their offices.

Wheeling Jury Indicts 25 In Drive Against Gambling

Wheling, W. Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—The Ohio County grand jury, condemning the "system" by which the city of Wheeling fines "certain lawbreakers," indicted 25 persons today as part of a campaign against gambling in this Ohio River Valley city.

The jury's report came after a four-day study of vice conditions and one day after Ohio County Sheriff Thomas Padden ordered all gambling within the city to cease. Padden's ban included church-sponsored bingo games.

Among others, the indictments charged William G. Lias, president of the Wheeling Downs race track and night club operator, with gambling and City Police Sergt. John P. Murphy with attempted extortion.

Condemns System

The report said that "we (the jurors) severely condemn the system by which the city . . . fine certain lawbreakers. It is a virtual licensing method, contrary to law in which even fictitious names are used and recognized as an alias."

The city council and city manager were urged to "institute a prompt investigation which should lead to correction."

The jury took note of Sheriff Padden's action with the comment that "we presume all known places of law infraction are now closed and will so remain . . . We know the type of city which Wheeling has been recognized as for many years past. We hope that never again the name of our fair city shall be ridiculed . . ."

Last night, a group of young women who said they represented a commercial bingo operating firm, formed a picket line around the offices of the Wheeling Intelligencer and the Wheeling News Register, which have conducted an editorial campaign against gambling.

Padden said he had received an "avalanche" of telephone calls at his home from bingo patrons protesting closure of these establishments, and added that he had asked the attorney general in Charleston for an opinion on the legality of bingo games.

Method of Teaching Literature Changed

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 8 (AP).—The teaching of English literature by the chronological method is being abandoned in high schools, a University of Virgina professor says, and the subject is now being taught according to content or type.

Writing in the current issue of the English Journal, Dr. Richard A. Meade states that "people read for content." He says that "wide-awake secondary school pupils . . . find themselves faced with material which few adults chose to read."

CONFERENCE SECRETS

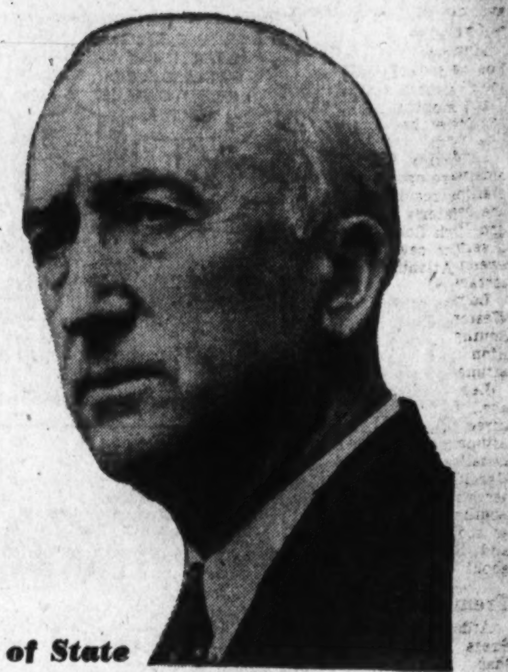
At Last . . .



The INSIDE STORY of what took place at the Roosevelt-Stalin-Churchill Yalta meeting and the Potsdam, London, Moscow, Paris and New York conferences . . . . . .

by former Secretary of State

JAMES F. BYRNES

20 articles, starting WEDNESDAY, in

The Washington Post

Now you can learn the whole truth of what went on at the Yalta meetings between President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill, and the Truman-Attlee-Stalin talks at Potsdam. James F. Byrnes, "assistant president" and later Secretary of State, attended these meetings. He took down the Yalta conversations in the shorthand he learned as a youthful court reporter. At the other conferences he took extensive notes. His story, "Speaking Frankly," answers such questions as these:

Is it true that Stalin brushed aside the Pope's view on peace by sneering, "How many divisions does he have?"

What did Churchill and Roosevelt say about Poland's new boundaries and the Soviet-sponsored Polish government?

What did Stalin and Churchill say to each other about the big-power veto in the proposed United Nations?

Why did Roosevelt consent to 3 United Nations votes for Russia through admission of White Russia and the Ukraine?

What secret agreements were made at Yalta? How did Russia get the Kurile Islands north of Japan?

Is it true that U. S.-Soviet relations became strained only after the death of President Roosevelt?

What government fell when Vishinsky slammed a door?

What Churchill charges did Stalin dismiss as "fairy tales?"

What happened to British foreign policy when Churchill and Eden were replaced by Attlee and Bevin?

After the death of President Roosevelt, Mr. Byrnes was asked to become Secretary of State. His articles tell frankly why his coming appointment was kept secret for months, why he refused to attend the San Francisco conference, and what went on at the first Council of Foreign Ministers. Here is the complete story of the Wallace resignation from the Cabinet, including the actual teletype message to President Truman which Secretary Byrnes sent from Paris. Here is Mr. Byrnes' frank opinion of Stalin and Molotov, of Soviet aspirations and what we should do about them, of the Truman doctrine and the Marshall Plan.

James F. Byrnes served in all three branches of our government: as Representative and Senator, as Supreme Court Justice, and as Director of Economic Stabilization, Director of War Mobilization and Secretary of State. His interpretation of the events he saw, the conversations he heard and the incidents in which he played a part makes tremendously interesting reading. You will want to read and clip every installment. There will be 20 in all, starting Wednesday in The Washington Post. Be sure to get a copy at your newsstand. Or phone for home delivery.

Fishy Smell Hovers Over Our Problem, Says Lloyd

I think we're being kidded. Lloyd B. Harrison, jr., of 121 Burns st., Sussex-at-Hampton, Va., writes:

"We certainly enjoyed your fish problem. I'm not much of a mathematician, but down here we have an unlimited quantity of fish, so we're solving the problem that way.

"However, we find that things are now beginning to smell somewhat. Will you please advise whether the answer comes out in just plain fish, or in fresh fish?"

Lloyd, for the good of the neighborhood maybe you ought to forget the whole thing and try the bridge problem instead.

DISCOVERY

Patricia Anne O'Rourke of 1818 Monroe st. nw. is on the publicity committee of the Sacred Heart Junior Social Club. She wonders if we can find room for this item:

"This club is a canteen for Catholic high school students and it is held every second and fourth Friday in the Sacred Heart School gym, at 1625 Park rd. nw., from 8 to 11 o'clock. We have ping-pong, dancing, and refreshments; the admission is 15 cents."

We certainly will find room for your item, Patricia. It's a pleasure to discover something else that can be bought with 15 cents.

Heretofore the only thing I could find for 15 cents was a nickel cigar.

NO ROOM, NO BOARD

William F. Popham of Edgewater, Md., wonders about those Capital Transit buses which carry signs saying "No Boarding."

"Does this mean," muses Bill, "that they don't serve meals aboard, like on the airlines?"

It's either that or they're trying to spare our feelings by not making us look at additional signs that say "No Vacancy."

I'VE GOT ENOUGH TROUBLE

G. W. B., 3rd, of 1865 Monroe st. nw. wants to know:

"What kind of gentleman is Dixie Dugan's boy friend? On October 2 you showed him walking down the street with Dixie, and SHE was on the side closest to the curb. Is he so stricken with love that he's forgotten his manners?"

Am I my neighbor's keeper?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Part Doberman, part bulldog; 2½ years old, good watchdog." (RAndolph 6672.)

STREET SCENE

I suppose you've heard the story about the guy who met his psychiatrist on the street. Their conversation went like this:

"Hi, doc. How are you today?"

"Oh, I'm fine."

"That's good. And how am I?"

INFORMATION PLEASE

Dee Zirkle of 6114 42d ave., Hyattsville, Md., poses an interesting question:

"There is a certain main highway that runs between Washington and Baltimore. In the three years I've lived here, I've always heard it called 'Baltimore Blvd.'

"But the other day I noticed that a jewelry store on one side of the street lists its address as 'Baltimore ave.' and the Peoples Drug Store on the other side of the street calls it 'Maryland ave.'

"And if you ask anybody in Baltimore, they'll swear it's 'Washington blvd.' So—does anybody know the correct name?"

ADD SIGNS

P. A. W. of 2912 Ft. Baker dr. se. reports that he saw this one along the roadside in New England last summer:

"Eat Here and Get Gas."

WRONG PEW

Lee Harrigan of 1520 N. Quantico st., Falls Church, Va., thinks it's simply terrible the way rents have gone up lately.

Under the classification "Furnished Apartments," Lee spotted this ad:

"ARLINGTON—Private, new home, 3 front rooms, electric grill, $6500."

Somebody obviously made a mistake and put the ad in the wrong classification.

French Expert Tells Tale for Taber

NEW YORK.—In Washington last week Representative John Taber of New York, who recently returned from a tour of Europe, met Herve Alphand, the French diplomat and economic expert who had helped prepare the 16-nation report on the Marshall Plan. Alphand attended all the Big Four conferences in recent years and, although he is only 40, is considered one of the ablest men at the Big League sessions . . . Representative Taber said that in his tour of Europe he didn't see any starving people—that the Europeans seemed well fed. "That's like a man sitting comfortably in front of a window on the tenth floor," said Alphand. "Another man leaps from the fortieth floor of the same building. And as his body hurtles to sure death, his face is glimpsed by the man on the tenth floor—who later said: "I saw him a few seconds ago. He looked fine!"

Greta Garbo will return to the screen in a movie written by Salka Viertel, directed by George Cukor and produced by Laurence Olivier. The movie will be made in France, and will be financed in francs, sterling and dollars. Peter Cusick arranged the deal.

Walter Howey, the famed newspaper editor, has been working for Hearst since 1903—without a contract. Saturday night Howey signed his first contract. It's for 5 years.

Anne Morgan's butler is suing Doubleday, Doran, the book publishers, because of the two references to him in the Elizabeth Janeway novel, "Daisy Kenyon." The butler deems it an invasion of his privacy.

Happy Chandler was asked one night about Leo Durocher's status. "In the light of what's happened in the World Series," Chandler replied, "Durocher and Rickey now can start looking at each other, instead of at me."

George White, now planning a revival of his "Scandals," says that this production always costs him 4550 enemies each time. "Five thousand girls show up for our chorus call," White explains, "and we can hire only 50."

Aldous Huxley will write the screen adaptation of his book, "Point Counter Point." Zoltan Korda will make the picture.

John Garfield, now in New York for the opening of "Body and Soul," heard that Warner Bros. may reissue his first movie, "Four Daughters." Mrs. Garfield said that she has no objections to the reissue, but would like the title changed from "Four Daughters" to "One Son-in-law."

The stay-up-late Tallulah Bankhead, who was rushed to a hospital last week, told the doctor that she was tired because "I've been up all day."

Mayor O'Dwyer, in behalf of the N. Y. C. Fire Department, will present a fire engine to the Tel Aviv Fire Brigade. The delivery will be to E. A. Norman, head of the American Fund for Palestinian Institutions.

Eli Culbertson will make a flying bridge-tour around the world. He'll be gone eight months.

One of New York's most publicized labor lawyers soon will lose some lucrative union clients because of the revelation that he has more than a lawyer's interest in Communist court-fights.

When John Gunther's fourth Inside book, "Inside USA," became a best-seller, Dorothy Parker told him, "John, you're in a rut."

40-Hr. Week Under Attack In Agencies

By Jerry Kluttz

An attack within Government is being made on the 40-hour work week and the law for overtime pay beyond it.

Kluttz

The agitation is certain to lead to a broad study both by the Administration and the Congress with a view toward exempting certain classes of employes from those laws. The present work and pay system is under fire from these agencies among others:

TREASURY: It recently proposed that its Internal Revenue, Secret Service and Customs investigators all be exempted from the 40-hour and overtime laws. Instead, it suggests that these employes be given a flat 8 per cent raise.

COAST GUARD: It wants to give its lighthouse keepers a 10 per cent pay raise in lieu of overtime pay and longer hours when necessary.

JUSTICE: It hasn't officially recommended a change, but Atty. Gen. Tom Clark is on record for higher salaries for his FBI Immigration and Naturalization agents if they can be exempted from the two laws.

ARMY: It wants its laborers and other classes of employes placed on the same overtime pay standards as private employes.

Exemptions for certain classes of hospital employes in Army, Navy, Veterans' Administration, and Public Health also have been discussed informally—all proposals would provide a higher basic salary in return for longer hours of work.

In the case of Federal investigators, it's generally conceded that the 40-hour and overtime laws are "winked at." Most investigators are called on to work longer hours but few of them are paid at the overtime rates. Only the FBI has its investigators on a 48-hour week. And many of them work more than 48 hours without additional pay.

In proposing an 8 per cent increase in pay for longer hours by its investigators, Treasury explains that its plan would follow the system now used by the District's firemen and policemen. Also, that Capitol Hill employes whose hours are irregular, are given 10 per cent additional in lieu of overtime pay.

However, both Civil Service and the Budget Bureau refused to okay any one of the specific plans proposed to them by the agencies. They point out that whatever change is made must cover all employes who work irregular hours and who are on call at a moment's notice. This would require a joint Civil Service and Budget Bureau study of all Federal jobs and it's slated to be ordered within a short time. Tens of thousands of Federal jobs require irregular hours.

FSA: Alan Willcox is to be promoted to general counsel of the Federal Security Agency to succeed Jack Tate who will join the legal staff at State. He's assistant to Tate and he was Tate's own candidate for the post. Tate planned to transfer to State before Oscar Ewing became the FSA boss.

INTERIOR: Arthur "Tex" Goldschmidt has been appointed executive vice chairman of the Interdepartmental Technical Committee. That committee will plan for the coming international scientific conference on the conservation and utilization of natural resources. Walton Seymour has succeeded Goldschmidt as director of the power division.

VA: The cost of living soon will shoot upward for employes of Veterans hospitals. VA will charge these employes 33 per cent more for the meals they eat beginning October 19. The higher meal costs will raise VA revenues by an estimated three million dollars a year. The Budget Bureau approved the new rates after making an inquiry.

NAVY: A group of its employes have appealed to the chairman of the House and Senate District Committees against the growing restrictions against all-day parking in the area around the Navy building.

NOTES: George L. Prichard has been appointed director of the fats and oils branch at Agriculture. He succeeds Omer W. Herrmann who is the assistant administrator of the Agricultural Research Administration . . . David C. Elliott, chief of RFC's research and statistics, has resigned to join the Cleveland Trust Co. . . . Walter Reed Hospital needs hospital attendants, clerk-typists, and stenographers. Make application to Guy Bennett, the personnel officer.

LOYALTY: That "leak" of information from Civil Service's loyalty reference file did not come from within the Civil Service Commission. This assurance came yesterday from Chairman Hoffman of the House Executive Expenditures Committee, who was given confidential information taken from the files which involved himself and other members of Congress.

Meantime, Hoffman called on President Truman to order the commission to open its files to inspection of his committee. The President can be expected to deny the request.

The commission yesterday had no comment on a statement by Hoffman that the name of a Civil Service commissioner also appeared in the files.

1003 Drivers Lose Permits In September

Month's Revocations Highest in History Of Traffic Board

September revocations and suspensions of drivers' permits or privileges were the highest in history.

Mary A. Silver, secretary of the Board of Revocation and Restoration of Operator's Permits, yesterday said they totaled 1003.

Previous high was set last January, when 939 revocations and suspensions were recorded, she said.

The number included 381 nonresident motorists, who lost driving privileges here. Bulk of non-District offenders were from Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York, she revealed.

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp attributed the record number of cases to the "postwar" increase in the volume of traffic."

The high number of out-of-town offenders was due to a large boost in tourists visiting Washington and the increasing number of nearby Maryland and Virginia residents who drive in the District, he declared.

"Counts at our traffic checking stations throughout the city indicate that traffic volume is up about 5.2 per cent over 1941," he said.

In most cases, he explained, out-of-town drivers who lose privileges here may still drive in their home States.

Reciprocal agreements with "most States," however, would result in loss of privileges in home States if the motorists were involved here in any of the four following charges: (1) Driving while drunk. (2) Hit and run cases where injury results fro mthe accident. (3) Reckless driving involving personal injury. (4) Failure to satisfy judgment in civil suits resulting from traffic accidents.

Teacher Pay Hike Depends On Budget

Alexandria May Pay Highest Va. Salaries If Council Approves

If the Alexandria City Council approves the School Board's 1948 budget, Alexandria teachers will receive the highest minimum and maximum wages of those in any Virginia city.

A $325 increase in the maximum annual salary was approved by the board Wednesday and sent on to the council for final action. This would raise to $3375 the salary of teachers with 13 years experience and tops the present maximum paid by any other city in the State.

The minimum figure of $2400 remains unchanged. Last reports showed that Alexandria already leads Virginia cities in this category.

Alexandria teachers already have received raises totaling $450 during the past year. Of this, $200 was authorized in last year's budget. The State furnished $250.

The board ordered a letter sent to the joint board-council committee on school sites to learn what progress has been made in acquiring sites for new schools.

First on the priority list, said Supt. T. C. Williams, is an elementary school in northeast Alexandria. Most of this site has been purchased, and condemnation of the rest has been authorized but not yet began, said City Manager Joseph M. Pancoast.

Omitted from the budget was any provision for free text books. Present objections to a change from the rental system were (1) the added burden of $10,000 on the city, and (2) the fact that the city would have to accept a list of State-authorized books.

Board Chairman Edward D. Reed said this would mean a wide revision in school texts. Students now rent books for $1.25 to $1.50 annually.

Civic Federation In Montgomery To Start 23d Year

The Montgomery County Civic Federation, composed of 61 member organizations, will open its twenty-third year of activity Monday night with its first fall meeting in the Bethesda Elementary School, Wilson lane, at 8 o'clock.

Among items scheduled for action this year are possible revision of the present zoning ordinance; traffic channelization plans for Silver Spring and Bethesda, and improved civil service regulations for the office of chief of police. The group will hear reports on the school construction program, the new teachers' salaries and changes in the Federal Housing Act.

New committee chairmen announced by President Rhees Burket are George P. Schultze, membership; James A. Cosgrove, constitution and bylaws; Walter H. McClennon, legislation and legal action; Samuel Stonebreaker, public utilities; Washington I. Cleveland, roads, streets and bridges; Frank J. Duane, public safety; Allen B. mands. There was more of a tendency to warn the Commissioners against budget extremes. That is a healthy attitude."

Both General Young and Mason voiced strong interest in the suggestion of Maj. Gen. David McCoach, jr. that the public hearings be held only after the Commissioners have a chance to boil down the department estimates into a tentative budget. The two Youngs made clear, however, they would not favor censoring the estimates of department heads.

Figures Called Absurd

As the hearing started, Commissioner John Russell Young killed any doubt that the budget estimates are in for a whopping cut.

"I suggest that we do not waste our time arguing against the estimates submitted by department heads," said Young. "The total is absurd on the face of it. We could not raise that much money in a year. If we could raise it we could not spend it."

Compared with the 144-million-dollar proposals, this year's budget is about 95 million dollars.

Young said the practical problem facing the Commissioners is "How can we stretch the revenues of the general fund to meet unavoidable annual costs and also do the absolute minimum of capital improvements?"

Trade Board's Position

First witness to talk about this problem was General McCoach, a former District Commissioner.

Said General McCoach:

"We recommend that the Commissioners keep the budget within the total estimated revenue under present taxes, even though this might permit capital appropriations only sufficient to continue important improvements already authorized and for which partial appropriations have been made."

General McCoach said his organization favors a sales tax for the District to replace the present personal income tax law which he said is "not equitable."

Kenneth P. Armstrong presented these budget recommendations for the Federation of Citizens Associations:

1. Until Congress gives Washington home rule, city agency heads should discuss their estimates with a representative group of citizens before submitting them to the Commissioners.

2. The Commissioners should ask Congress to let the city make its own budget, subject only to congressional review of spending limits and the size of the Federal payment.

3. The 1949 budget should be kept within existing revenue to avoid more taxes.

4. A long-range program for capital improvements and their financing should be submitted to Congress for special legislation.

John A. Upshur of the Federation of Civic Associations urged a "sound tax program" but gave no blueprint for it. He urged an increased Federal payment to the District and economy in city administration.

Joining the line-up against a budget that would result in higher taxes were these witnesses: J. Garrett Beitzell, Washington Real Estate Board; Harry N. Stull, National Home and Property Owners

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

SURPRISE VISITOR—Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) (right), discusses Washington's revenue program with Kenneth P. Armstrong, an official of the Federation of Citizens Association, at yesterday's hearing on the city's budget estimates for 1949. Cain, chairman of the Senate District Subcommittee on Fiscal Affairs, said he "just popped in" to see what was going on Foundation; Charles J. Bauer, speaking for Rufus S. Lusk as representative of the Washington Taxpayers Association and the Washington building Owners and Managers Association; Milton S. Kronheim, Washington liquor wholesaler; C. D. Wagner of the Benning Citizens Association, who indorsed the federation's views, and Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell, Metropolis View Citizens Association.

Miss Etta Taggart of the Washingtonians said the city's revenue problems could be solved with a public lottery. "The principle is no different from giving prizes at a card party, or playing the stock market," she said. "It's all a gamble."

When reporters asked Cain about this proposal he commented, "If the time ever comes in America when we can only finance essential services by gambling we might as well throw up our hands and quit."

W. A. Eisenhart of the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens urged economy but said his group would be willing to consider new revenue plans if necessary, as long as they did not include property tax boosts.

A highlight of demands for increased school, welfare and health budgets was the proposal for an immediate $500 cost-of-living bonus for Washington public school teachers, presented by Mrs. Beatrice M. Reed of the CIO teachers union.

Spokesmen for welfare organizations generally urged approval of the Board of Public Welfare Budget estimates, although some witnesses protested that the estimates were too low, and some said there will be need this year for an additional welfare appropriation.

Senator Cain said he had learned something new from the testimony of Benjamin W. Thoron, treasurer of the Family Service Association. Thoron said that yearly failure to approve the District appropriation bill in time had meant delays in sending out relief checks. He urged some plan to prevent similar delays in the future. Cain said "it is incumbent on us not to wreck the efficiency of city departments."

Seek Welfare Increase

Among those who favored a bigger budget for welfare were Manuel Kaufman, District Chapter, American Association of Social Workers; the Rev. Leonard S. Edmonds, director of social welfare for the Washington Federation of Churches; Mrs. George Tobias of the Potomac District, American Association of Medical Social Workers; Mrs. Gertrude Evans, executive secretary of the Washington Industrial Union Council, CIO, and Mrs. Irene Koenigsberger of the Jewish Social Service Agency.

Mrs. Dawn of the League of Women Voters, indorsed school and hospital building proposals, and called for a "generous" welfare appropriation. Dr. Laurence F. Schmeckebier of the Washington Housing Association, urged an increase in Health Department funds for sanitary work in areas of crowded housing.

On the other side of the welfare picture, Jerome B. McKee of the District Retail Liquor Dealers Association, called on the Commissioners to make a study of the residence requirements for relief in other States.

"Is this city becoming a socialized area?" McKee asked. "Is it attracting people from States that have greater residence requirements for relief? Without a study of this question you will continue to attract indigents to Washington."

The District requires one-year residence.

Neighborhood Pleas

Following are spokesmen for neighborhood groups and the projects they urged:

Mrs. Jennie E. Clark, Brightwood Citizens Association, called for a branch library to be built on the north side of the old Emery estate at Georgia and Missouri aves. nw.

Mrs. Oscar Kuldell, Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown, urged improvements at Western High School, and called for general improvement of school services throughout the city.

A. H. Bacas called for a new Hine Junior High School. He spoke for the Hine P-TA, and for business and civic groups in Southeast Washington.

Harry C. Grove of the Connecticut Avenue Citizens Association and Mrs. W. W. Coblentz, representing a Cleveland Park community committee, urged funds to build a branch library at Connecticut ave. and Macomb st. nw.

Mrs. Arliss A. Davis, of the River Terrace Citizens Association, asked funds to start construction of a grade school in the River Terrace community of Northeast Washington.

W. D. Nixon of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, Inc., said a new firehouse was needed at 49th and East Capitol sts., but protested plans to staff it with Negro firemen as a move which would further race segregation.

As the hearing closed, Mrs. B. G. McIlwee, 507 Quackenbos st. nw., protested to officials that she had asked for a chance to testify and had not been called. She said she wanted to indorse the health department budget, and to ask that funds for the school girl cadets be dropped.

Press Warned On Messages By Barrett

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday reminded reporters that he can stop them from receiving police teletype reports if he so desires.

A reporter asked Major Barrett the meaning of a teletyped directive sent to all commanding officers concerning records on telephone complaints.

"You weren't supposed to receive that," snapped the police chief.

"Why?" he was asked.

"We sent out one like that the week before," said Barrett, "and I cut off the press teletype. This one should have been kept off the press room teletype, too."

He added that he didn't care particularly whether the directive was used but didn't see why it should be. He said he would be inclined to "push the pedal down" on other messages in the future if it was used.

Nothing Startling

The directive, sent out over the signature of Inspector Walter H. Thomas, assistant superintendent, was not of a startling nature. It read:

"To all commanding officers. Important. You will have a record of all telephone complaints received at your precinct or bureau between the hours of 6 p. m. Friday, October 10, and 6 a. m. Monday, October 13, and also between 6 p. m. October 17 and 6 a. m. October 20. These records are to include all reports of crime and complaints of any nature that are received at your precinct or bureau by telephone. Only the number of complaints received will be recorded. No names or other information will be required. These records must be accurate. These records shall be kept in such a manner as to show the number received each hour during the above mentioned periods. You will forward these reports to headquarters not later than 9 a. m. October 13 and 9 a. m. October 20."

"Police Matter" Only

Major Barrett insisted the directive did not concern reporters and was a "police matter."

Later in the day, the police superintendent told The Washington Post reporter that the message shouldn't have been carried on the teletype but as long as it had been he was not going to request that it not be published. Presumably, the information was desired to assist police in setting up its new system of crime complaint reporting recommended by the FBI.

$28 Holdup At Laundry Is Polite One

Thief Tells Branch Manager He Pulled Similar Thefts; Jewel Loss Reported

Another laundry and dry cleaning branch was held up here yesterday afternoon.

The victim was the Rose Cleaning and Pressing establishment at 1631 17th st. nw., where the holdup man got $28.

Other thefts reported to police yesterday included $800 in jewelry, taken from the apartment of Mrs. Alice K. Towsley, 2601 Calvert st. nw., late Wednesday night.

Mrs. Jean Drury, 1721 Rhode Island ave. nw., reported yesterday that on Tuesday she lost a ring set with three diamonds, which was valued at $10,000.

Police also were looking for two Negroes who have been preying on Washington cab drivers.

The pair robbed two drivers Wednesday night. The victims were Joseph Brodsky, 37, of 1237 Raum st. ne., and George C. Hughes, 43, of Seat Pleasant, Md.

Both robberies took place in the Southeast section. Brodsky was robbed of his cab, a watch and $13. Hughes' cab and $55 were taken from him. Police later recovered both cabs abandoned.

Police still admitted they had no definite clews to the identity of thieves reportedly stole $25,000 in jewelry from the Mayflower Hotel room of a California cosmetics manufacturer. Detectives said they are working on the possibility that Mrs. Merle Norman, owner of the jewels, may have lost or mistakenly packed them in baggage she had already shipped.

Polite as Could Be

The laundry thief, whom Loretta L. Mitchell, branch manager, described as "polite as he could be," held his hand in his pocket and forced Mrs. Mitchell to stand behind a curtain while he took the money from the cash register. According to Mrs. Mitchell, 1811 Adams Mill rd. nw., the man, who was Negro and "very neat," told her, "I'm the same guy who's been holding up all these other places, and I'm going to get all I can, because when they catch me, they'll send me down the river."

probably the same one who robbed

Police state that the man is the Aristo branch store at 1454 P st. nw., Tuesday of $25.

Mrs. Towsley told police she arrived home late Wednesday night in time to prevent a ransacking of her apartment, but not in time to save the jewelry.

The burglars had stuffed the lock on her first floor apartment with toothpicks, she said, to give them time to escape should someone try to enter. They had taken a suitcase belonging to Mrs. Towsley and laid it open on the bed, presumably to cart off their loot.

Mrs. Towsley thinks the burglars were forced to leave by a rear window when she tried to unlock the door. They apparently had time only to take the jewelry they could stuff in their pockets.

Mrs. Towsley reported that insurance on the jewelry had lapsed six months ago and had not been renewed.

Included in the stolen items were three small 14-karat gold pins, one pair of gold and pearl ear rings, and one pair of gold ear-rings.

Chronic Diseases Held Costly in Manpower

Baltimore, Oct. 9 (AP).—Chronic diseases, afflicting some 25 million Americans, are costing this country "a total disability of six billion man-days," Dr. Theodore G. Klumpp said today.

The president of Winthrop-Stearns, Inc., told the Maryland Pharmaceutical Association that more research and money are needed to combat such diseases as acute rheumatic fever and hardening of the arteries.

Berryville Votes Water Rate Hike

Berryville, Va., Oct. 9 (Spl.).—An ordinance increasing water and sewer rates here was voted by the Town Council Tuesday at its monthly meeting. Effective January 1, 1948, rates for commercial meter users will increase from a flat rate of 15 cents per 1000 gallons to 40 cents per 1000 for the first 10,000 gallons, 30 cents for the next 15,000, 25 cents for the next 25,000, and 20 cents per 1000 gallons for all over 50,000.

Students to Meet

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Sixty student journalists from most of Virginia's colleges and universities will attend the first postwar conference of Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association at the University of Richmond tomorrow and Saturday.

Boy, 7, Accuses

Mother of 4 Is Convicted In Slapping

A mother of four children was convicted yesterday of slapping a neighbor's 7-year-old son.

"He just doesn't call my daughter names like funny-face and stinkpot," the mother testified, "he pushes her off her tricycle."

A Municipal Court jury of eight men and four women deliberated but 15 minutes to bring in a guilty verdict and a recommendation for leniency.

Sentence Suspended

The defendant, Mrs. Herman R. Seibold, of 219 O st. sw., was given a suspended sentence of $25 or 30 days and six months' probation on the assault conviction. Mrs. Seibold, a Parent-Teacher Association member and den-mother of a Cub Scout troop, denied the charge, brought on behalf of William Herman Fixsen, 215 O st. sw.

The Washington Post

WILLIAM H. FIXSEN

"I was home ironing," she told the jury. "My little girl, Jean Marie (aged 5) came in crying. Herman just doesn't call her names like funny face. He calls her stinkpot. He pushes her off her tricycle.

"I told Bobby (another Seibold child, 7) he would have to hit Herman."

She testified Bobby returned home a short time later with a "badly swollen eye."

Denies Slapping

"I rushed back to the playground to see how it happened and I met Herman coming home. I raised my hand and told him 'I want you to stay away from Jean Marie.'

"Then I went back to my ironing."

Her conviction was based largely on testimony of 11-year-old Terrance Pendergast of 205 P st., who said he saw Mrs. Seibold slap the Fixsen boy on the back of the head. "Then she turned him around and hit him. He went home crying."

Two other witnesses, Kathleen Carson, 625 Maine ave. sw., director of the Hoover Playground where the incident occurred, and Mrs. Joseph Jenkins, 104 O st. sw., corroborated the Pendergast boy's testimony.

Appeal Received On Va. Film Ban

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—An appeal from the State Board of Motion Picture Censors' ban on "The Burning Cross," a film dealing with the Ku Klux Klan, reached Richmond Circuit Court today.

The appeal action was initiated several days ago by Robert T. Barton, jr., counsel for Screen Guild Productions, Inc., producers of the film. The board early this month declined to rescind its ban on grounds that the movie would tend to revive "animosities, dislikes and enmities."

Md. Oystermen Call Meeting

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—Talbot County oystermen will begin formation of a committee to aid in conservation and boost the interests of watermen at a meeting in St. Michael's tomorrow.

The committee will be similar to those being organized in other tidewater counties with the guidance of the Maryland Commercial Fishermen's Association. Additional members will be chosen at a second gathering in Tilghman's October 17, and the chairman will serve on a State group.

Dorchester County oystermen will meet at Cambridge October 20 to name their committee.

Teen-Age Program To Start on Monday

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—Teen-age recreation will move from the planning stage to reality next Monday in Annapolis, when the Teen Council starts its program of games and entertainment at the USO Club.

The Teen Council, composed of seven teen-aged groups, will put into action there its first project—including ping pong, badminton, shuffleboard, volleyball and dancing. The Teen Club will meet at the USO on Monday and Wednesday from 3 to 5:15 p. m. under the first program.

Area News In Brief

Rush Hour Bus Service To Be Ended

Rush hour bus service on Bladensburg rd., B-2 bus route, will be discontinued Monday, the Public Utilities Commission announced yesterday.

PUC said the action was taken at the request of Capital Transit Co. "because the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation has moved from the National Guard Armory, and the number of Government employes occupying temporary buildings X and Y has been greatly reduced."

At the same time, PUC authorized Capital Transit Co. to set up a "feeder" bus line between 14th and E. Capitol sts. and 17th st and Pennslyvania ave. se., "to provide service to and from the National Guard Armory" when special events at the armory warrant extra transportation in that area.

Man Held for Jury

A 44-year-old electrician was held here yesterday under $3000 bond on seven charges of possession and sale of narcotics.

He is Richard A. Ragan, whose address was on police records as 725 Quackenbos st. nw. He was charged before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage and held for action of the grand jury.

Ragan was arrested at 13th and H sts. nw., late Wednesday. Police said he had 10 "decks" of heroin in his possession at the time. A "deck" sells for $11, it was said.

Annapolis Lilac Blooms

The craziest white lilac bush in Annapolis is at it again—blooming a second time this year. Mrs. E. A. McGovern, owner of the bush, bought it seven years ago from a mail order house, says it is in the habit of blooming in spring and fall.

"It usually blooms in November," she said. "It's a little early this year. That bush must be crazy."

Fire Fighting for Scouts

Kensington Boy Scouts will be treated to a fire fighting demonstration today at 8 p. m. in the Kensington firehouse. The demonstration is in conjunction with the department's sponsorship of safety poster contests in Kensington schools in celebration of national fire prevention week.

Too Quiet for Her

It's been "silent night" at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth L. Murphy, 405 6th st. nw., for the past three years, she told District Court yesterday in a suit for divorce from her husband, James.

Her spouse, the suit alleged, moved into a separate room in the house in 1944 and has spoken to her only once since then. This one bit of conversation, the suit alleged, was of an argumentative nature and a "large knot" was raised on Mrs. Murphy's head as a result, it was alleged.

Ashes in His Beer

Was a retired sea captain drunk or merely "listing" because of physical disabilities received during the war?

That was the question pondered by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board last night following a hearing of charges that beer was served to an intoxicated person at Georgetown Grill, 1329 Wisconsin ave. nw.

The retired Navy captain maintained he wasn't intoxicated but had a "peculiar" walk because of his injuries, ABC officials reported. He said he used strong language to an ABC inspector because the inspector dropped cigar ashes in his beer, they said.

ABC took the charges under advisement. The tavern is owned by George and Constantine Karafas and Mrs. Irene Saffos, ABC officials said.

About $3,500,000 worth of war surplus property has been obtained for Maryland schools in the past five months, the State Board of Education was told yesterday in Baltimore.

The large store of equipment was secured—mostly through Federal donation—since surplus procurement was centralized under direction of James L. Reid of the State Department of Education.

The board approved a revised scale of teachers' pensions which will create a $400 annual minimum, provide a 30 per cent increase for retired teachers who are drawing between $305 and $600 and 20 per cent hikes for teachers whose pensions amount to $600-$1200. The boost was provided for in Governor Lane's supplemental budget.

Sex Education In D. C. Schools Is Foreseen

The District Social Hygiene Society yesterday predicted that sex education may be returned to the District public high school curriculum this winter.

Public school officials denied, however, that the question of sex education in the schools had been discussed at any recent time.

Ray Everett, executive secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, declared: "I have had several indications that something will be done about sex education in the schools this winter." He said he was unwilling at this time to name the persons with whom he had discussed the question.

Matter "Not Discussed"

Norman J. Nelson, first assistant superintendent of schools in charge of white senior high schools, stated:

"As far as I know, school officials have not discussed the matter since as far back as last spring. I know of no plans to submit such a proposal to the Board of Education."

He said the questio nmight be brought before the board by a board member, however, although he had heard of no such plan.

Everett made his prediction while reporting on the first meeting of the society's board of directors for this season. The board reaffirmed its approval that schools teach the same impersonal scientific knowledge about syphilis and gonorrhea as about tuberculosis and polio, he said.

Approve Change in Law

The board approved the proposed change in the sex laws to make sex offenses felonies instead of misdemeanors, thus calling for stiffer penalties for offenders.

At the same time, the board stressed its attitude that heavier penalties alone will not solve the problem and urged that the courts be given adequate psychiatric and social service as an aid in administering the law.

Everett was directed to inform the District Commissioners and the House and Senate District Committees of the board's attitude, he said.

The board also approved in principle a merger of the Council of Social Agencies and the Community Chest Federation for a trial period.

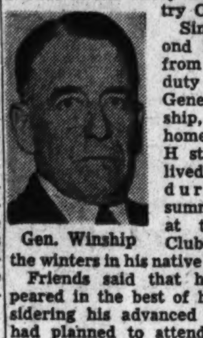
Gen. Blanton Winship Dies Of Heart Attack at Club

Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, 77, died unexpectedly yesterday of a heart attack while conversing with friends at the Chevy Chase Country Club.



Gen. Winship

Since his second retirement from active duty in 1944 General Winship, whose home is at 1718 H st. nw., had lived mostly during the summer months at the Chevy Club, spending the winters in his native Macon, Ga.

Friends said that he had appeared in the best of health, considering his advanced years, and had planned to attend a private dinner party last night.

Had Long Career

His military career extended from the Spanish-American War through World War II. Gen. Winship served as Judge Advocate General of the Army, co-ordinator of the Inter-American Defense Board in World War II as military aide to President Coolidge, and as an aide to General Funston at Vera Cruz.

During his retirement from 1933 to 1942 he spent eight months in Liberia on a special mission for the State Department and served as Governor of Puerto Rico for five and half pears. He also was a member of the special War Department Board which tried the eight Nazi saboteurs who were captured on the Atlantic Coast early in World War II.

A graduate of Mercer University, he received his law degree from the University of Georgia in 1893, later being awarded a doctorate of laws from Mercer in 1932.

He was appointed a captain of the 1st Georgia Volunteers in May, 1898 in the Spanish-American War and was mustered out in November. He was appointed first lieutentant of the 29th U. S. Infanrty Volunteers in 1899 and saw service in the Philippine Insurrection. He was again mustered out in June, 1901, and appointed a second lieutenant in the Regular Army in August.

Saw Action in France

In World War I he saw action in the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Champagne-Marne engagements. He was leter appointed director general of service for settlement of claims in Europe arising out of U. S. military operations, settling over 100,000 claims in one year. He was also judge advocate of the Army of Occupation, and served on different committees of the Reparations Commission for execution of peace treaties.

From 1928 to 1930 he was legal adviser to the Governor General of the Philippines and in 1930 represented the United States at the unveiling of a statue of Henry Clay in Venezuela.

General Winship was appointed Judge Advocate General of the Army in 1931 and at the conclusion of this duty in 1933 retired from active duty. He was recalled in 1942 to head the Inter-American Defense Board until 1944 when he again resumed inactive status.

General Winship received the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Service Medal and Silver Star during his world War I service.

A bachelor, he was the last survivor of a large family. One of his brothers, Lieut. Comdr. Emory Winship, a naval hero of the Spanish-American War, was awarded a gold sword at the close of hostilities for gallantry in action. General Winship was a descendant of Capt. John Alexander, holder of the original grant which includes the city of Alexandria and Arlington County, Va., and for whom Alexandria is named.

Saturday, Oct. 11—Double Feature
"PINOCCHIO"
"MAKE MINE MUSIC"

Counting Pennies with Carolyn

October's "bright blue weather" makes a trip to Shirlington particularly pleasant, whether you live near or far. Rain or shine, it's enjoyable to shop there. Parking is so easy, right in the center of the shopping area and just a step from every store. Shops are so conveniently planned, and there are well-trained sales people eager to help you.

Speaking of rain, don't "let a smile be your umbrella" when you can buy yourself a beautiful new one of the 16-rib variety at A. S. Beck for only $2.99. Take your choice of colors in handsome plaid rayon taffeta and of smart plastic handles. Fall's smartest bags are alligator. You'll be right in fashion, on a budget, with Beck's polished simulated alligator bags. At $1.99, plus tax, choose one each in black, brown and red, for all your handbag needs. You'll see what wonderful values these bags are.

This week's big Shirlington news concerns the Juvenile Bootery's new, larger and very fine quarters. Mothers count on this shop to fit their little ones' feet with expert care. It specializes exclusively in Dr. Posner's children's shoes, and had to move to take care of the many more shoes now coming in and to have more room for customers. The youngsters will be tickled with the new shop's decorations, especially the panels of children's paper set off by tomato red walls.

This seems to be a good week for children at Shirlington. The Shirlington Theater is putting on a fine program of Walt Disney full-length features for them tomorrow. "Make Mine Music" shares honors with Pinocchio, beloved story of the naughty puppet. If you like suspense films, "Cry Wolf" with Barbara Stanwyck and Errol Flynn gives a weird twist to a psychological melodrama. This tense pulse-raiser is playing at Shirlington Theater today, Friday, Oct. 10.

At last you can have tailoring repairs done right in Shirlington at Aristo. Mrs. Betty Mares, who learned to sew at her mother's knee and whose husband is a tailor, really knows her stitches. She can take your last season's suits and dresses, lengthen the skirts, take a tuck here, add width there, and you have a costume with the coveted new look at little expense. When it comes to shortening trousers and repairing their cuffs, fixing pockets, relining coats, mending buttonholes, darning holes with threads of the fabric, and dozens of other jobs beyond the skill of amateurs, Mrs. Mares is there to help you out.

According to Harper's Bazaar, blouses and skirts are extremely chic for evening. John Simon, Shirlington shop which specializes in Fifth Avenue Hats and Accessories, has just received some beautiful new evening and cocktail blouses. They all seem to sparkle, with sequins, beads, or rhinestones. There are peplumed overblouses fired with rhinestones, jewel-neckline blouses with a Chinese motif in beads, blouses with little boy collars and cuffs embroidered with beads, short sleeved blouses with dazzling sequinned sprays. Of excellent rayon crepe blouses come in white, black and brown, are priced from $10.95 up.

Has summer wear and tear been hard on your glass and china? The Shirlington Woolworth has a fine china and glassware department. You're wise to invest in a set of this attractive, modestly priced tableware for everyday needs and save your good things.

Gunman Shot in Ohio Church

Findlay, Ohio, Oct. 9 (AP).—A fugitive gunman was wounded by rifle fire in Trinity Episcopal Church today by a State highway patrol rifleman after he held the rector as hostage for an hour.

The gunman, pressing a pistol against the miinster's head, had warned police who closed in about the church:

"I'll kill him if you try and capture me."

Patrolman R. C. Vanderveen, in his stocking feet, crept into the church while the Rev. John Evans Knox argued with the gunman at the baptismal font.

In the church vestiblue was Police Chief Leo J. Larkins, "preaching the best sermon of my life," and pleading with the fugitive:

"Boy, you haven't done anything too serious. Come out now, and don't hurt this man of God who has been near death several times recently."

"Yah! Yah!" the gunman snarled. "You haven't got much on me. Just carrying concealed weapons, stealing a car, and so forth."

Suddenly the gunman's attention was distracted.

Patrolman Vanderveen, fearful of hitting the minister, missed with the first shot. Mr. Knox grappled with the gunman, but he broke away. The patrolman fired again, and the gunman dropped near the church door.

He was identified by Chief Harkins as Leonard Johnson, 29, of Detroit.

"You can't smoke in here," Knox cried.

Cigarettes Put Away

The gunman put his cigarettes away.

The 34-year-old rector, who has been seriously ill since returning from duty as a naval chaplain, received a black eye.

Johnson and a companion, Lindell Brown, 29, of Granville, Ky., were arrested on suspicion of auto theft this morning. While they were being searched at the station, Johnson drew a gun and shouted:

"I'm getting out of here."

Johnson's condition was not regarded as serious at the hospital.

Physically handicapped when placed in suitable jobs are an asset and not a liability.

Father, 88, Expects 3d Child Since '45

Des Moines, Oct. 9 (AP).—Eighty-eight year old Luis Carrizales will become a father again early in December, his 23-year-old wife said today.

The new arrival will be the third child since their marriage in January, 1945. Sandra Kay, 2, and Frederick Luis, 1. Both have the black hair and olive skin of their father who is half Cherokee Indian and half Spanish.

At the time of his latest marriage, when he was 86, Carrizales said he kept fit by chopping wood and chinning himself 40 times a day. He is employed by a farm equipment factory here.

Carrizales also is the father of seven other children by two previous marriages.

Test Tube Makes Father Also a Grandfather

Stockholm, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Royal Medical Board reported today a Swedish man had become simultaneously a grandfather and a father.

The board told of 132 cases of artificial insemination in Sweden since July 1, 1945. In one case sperm was taken from a man for insemination of his son's wife.

The method is used when the husband cannot attain fatherhood.

The news was broken at a roundtable meeting of publishers and pulp and paper makers, being conducted by a special House Committee on Newsprint headed by Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio). The prediction George H. Mead of Mead Corp., Dayton, Ohio.

Sen. Ferguson Will Move Up Act Two of Hughes Inquiry

By The Associated Press

The second-act curtain in the Senate investigation of Howard Hughes' 40-million-dollar wartime plane contracts will go up before the previously scheduled November 17 date, it was announced yesterday by Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.).

Hughes

Ferguson is chairman of the Senate War Investigating Subcommittee which figured in last summer's Hollywood-like extravaganza involving Hughes, Elliott Roosevelt and Hughes' free-spending publicit yagent, Johnny Meyer, among others.

Ferguson told newsmen he has not yet fixed a definite date for the renewed public hearings, but said he had decided to advance the schedule because he wants to attend a Senate Appropriations Committee meeting on European aid problems, November 18.

Indications that the forthcoming hearings may rival if not surpass the summertime "Act I," which drew jam-packed audiences throughout its two-week run on Capitol Hill, arose with reports that procurement officers of the Army Air Force are now being secretly questioned in connection with war contracts.

"All I can say is that the Hughes case is a procurement case," Ferguson said.

A person close to the subcommittee said the Senate group, meeting behind closed doors, recently heard testimony concerning an Air Force officer who was said to be the undercover owner of an electrical firm which obtained war contracts.

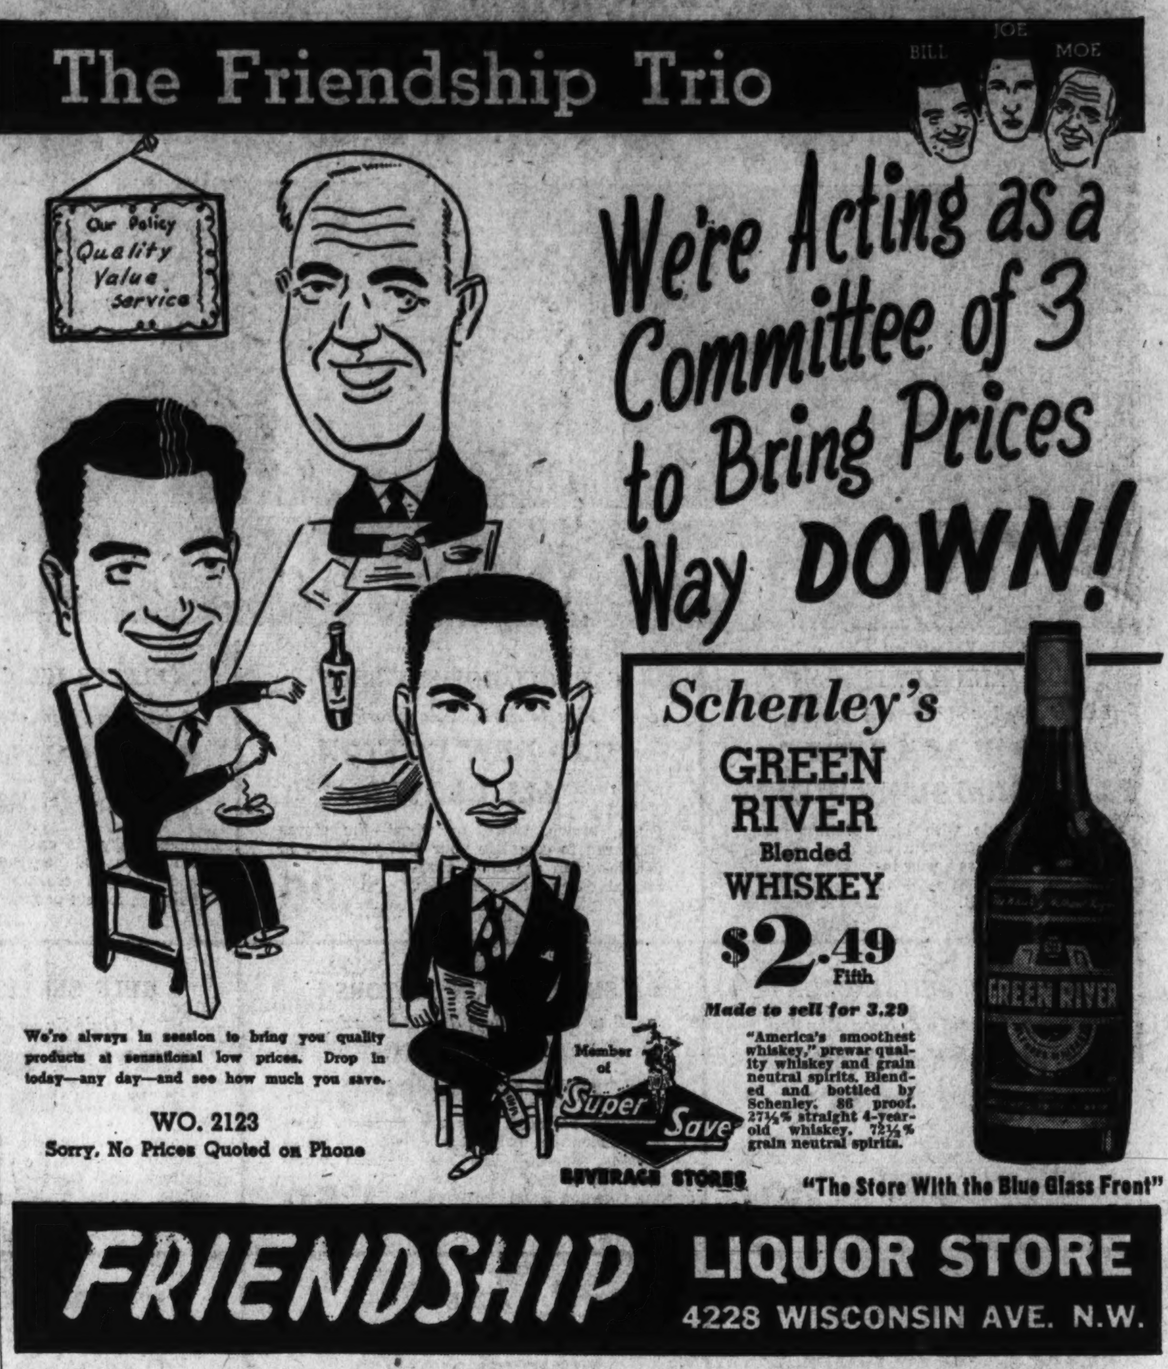
One Striker Fined, Two Acquitted in Hagerstown Row

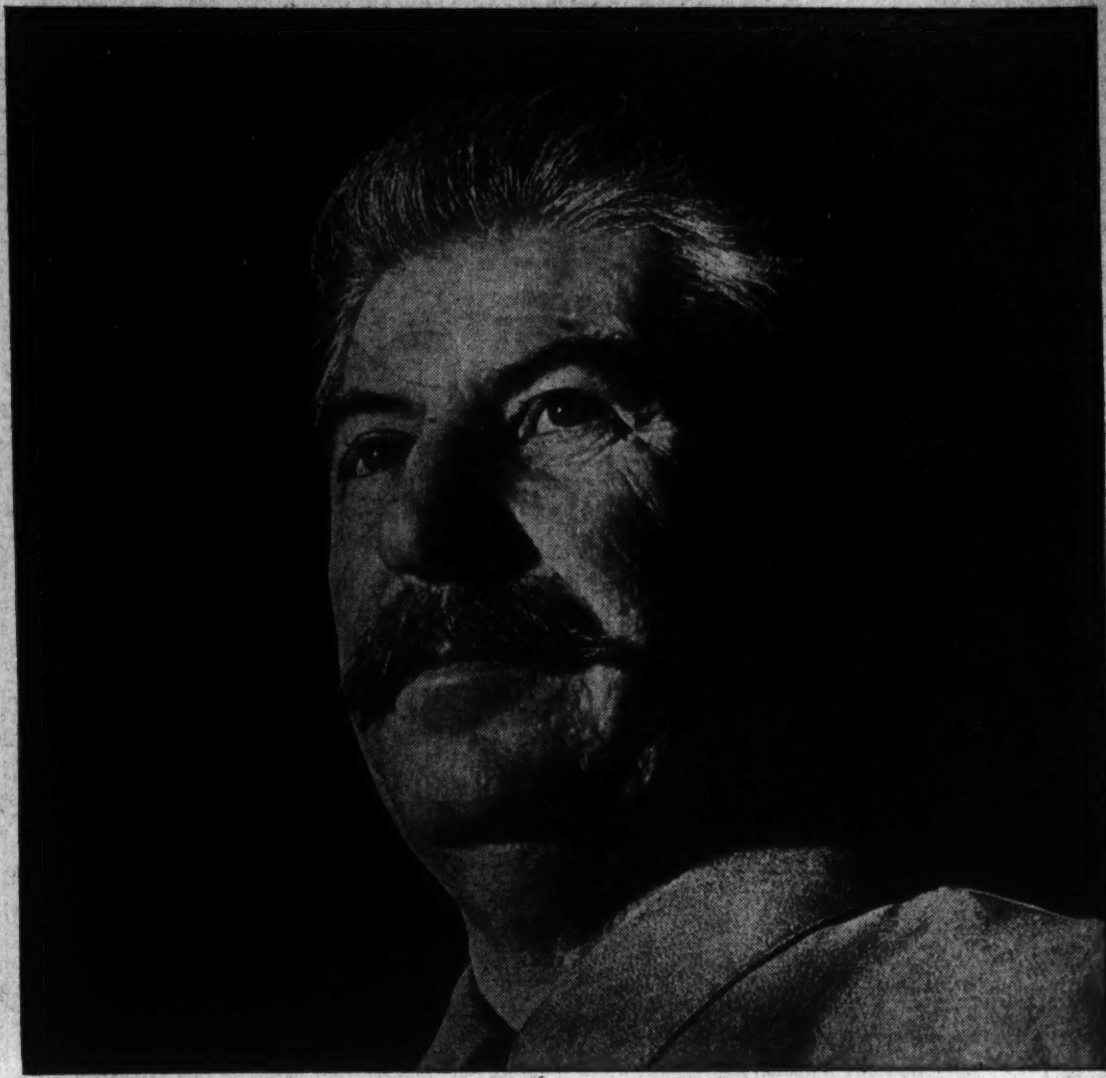
Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—One striker was fined $25 and two others were acquitted when they were arraigned before Magistrate Harry E. Snyder today on assault charges brought by nonstriking employes of the Colonial Hardwood Flooring Plant.

Approximately 100 members of Local 472, United Furniture Workers (CIO) walked off their jobs six days ago in protest against the firing of a worker.

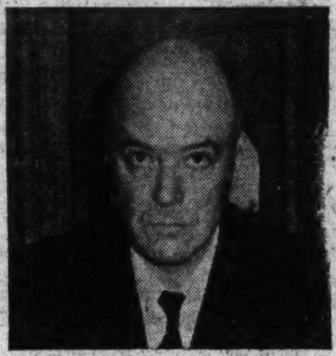
Carl G. Robison, 22, was convicted of attempting to drag L. W. Henry from an automobile as the latter was leaving the strikebound plant. Acquitted were Mayor C. Bennett, 33, and Jesse O'Hull, 33, accused of similar charges by Robert T. McKimy and Robert K. Miller.

With the comment that he "would rather close the plant than let the union run it," William A. Danzer, president of the firm, said that 17 strikers had returned to their jobs.





"CAN CHINA BE KEPT OUT OF THE HANDS OF STALIN?"



William C. Bullitt, former U. S. Ambassador to Russia and France, visited China before the war as President Roosevelt's personal representative. Returning to China this year as a reporter for LIFE, he spent two months gathering material for his report, which is published in LIFE this week (Oct. 13 issue).

Are we forging a 22-billion-dollar bar to Communism for our front door—Europe—and leaving the back door—China—wide open?

We opened that door ourselves at the Yalta Conference, when we sold out the Chinese in favor of Russian claims. Should the U.S. now leave the Chinese to stew in their own juice . . . over a Russian flame?

Is Soviet imperialism using the Chinese communists as instruments of Soviet power politics?

William C. Bullitt, former Ambassador to Russia, recently returned from China, knows both sides of this pressing question. And he gives his answer in: China—A Report To The American People, appearing in the October 13 issue of LIFE.

Writes Mr. Bullitt:

"In our own self defense, therefore, we must act to prevent Soviet domination of China. Not merely the territorial integrity of China, but her very independence is at stake."

And he concludes:

"If China falls into the hands of Stalin, all Asia, including Japan, sooner or later will fall into his hands. The manpower and resources of Asia will be mobilized against us. The independence of the U.S. will not live a generation longer than the independence of China."

But CAN we keep China out of Stalin's hands? How and when and where should we act? What will it cost an America already facing a multi-billion-dollar effort to save Democracy in Europe?

Mr. Bullitt explains the "vicious circle" that prevents inflation-ridden China from winning her war against the Communists. Tells how he thinks the U.S. could break that circle at a total cost to us of $1,350,000,000—less than $1 per year per Chinese.

What of Chiang Kai-shek? Mr. Bullitt reports that even those Chinese who are most critical of their Government concede that "there is no one who could replace him." And Mr. Bullitt names General MacArthur as the American with the military knowledge, political skill, and personal magnitude to best organize a co-operative U.S.-China victory over Communism and economic chaos.

The facts in William C. Bullitt's report—startling as they may be to the American people—are known to our Government. For the Government sent General Wedemeyer to survey the situation . . . and he has returned.

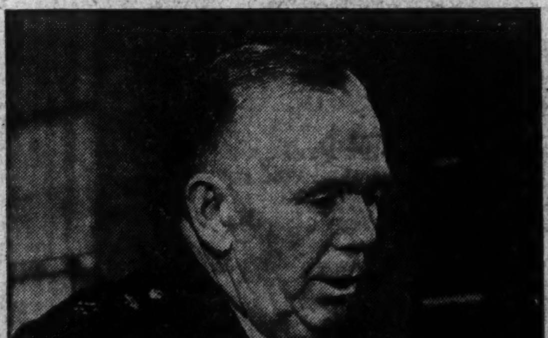
But the Wedemeyer Report is still an official secret in official Washington.

The Bullitt Report comes from a thoroughly qualified observer. Mr. Bullitt has had access to the same people, the same facts, the same documents that must form the basis for the yet-to-be-released Wedemeyer Report.

And this is the kind of report—timely, dramatic, problem-solving—that 26,000,000 Americans have learned to expect from LIFE each week.

LIFE

NOW 26 MILLION READERS . . .
GUARANTEED CIRCULATION: 5,200,000



"The Soviet Government's objectives were not those of General Marshall," writes Mr. Bullitt. He tells how the Russians used the armistice arranged by General Marshall to transfer Chinese Communist troops to Manchuria, and there arm them with captured Japanese equipment.

Some Chinese divisions were equipped with American artillery, machine guns, and rifles. But, as Mr. Bullitt explains, the U.S. then held up export licenses for munitions so that these Nationalist divisions were in actuality unarmed and useless against the well-armed Communists.

"The Communists are attempting to bring down the Government . . . by wrecking the economic life of the country," says former Ambassador Bullitt. And he describes how the Communists burn towns and villages, smash the machines in factories and blow up industrial installations.

The Chinese desperately need an airforce in North China and Manchuria. Mr. Bullitt points out that we have thousands of obsolete planes and millions of spare parts that would be invaluable to China, and could be turned over to them at the cost of nothing but a bookkeeping entry.

Woodward's Will Review Finance Plan

By S. Oliver Goodman

Officials of Woodward & Lothrop announced yesterday they "would give further thought" to the company's plan to retire its 7 per cent preferred stock.

The announcement was made following a 1½-hour meeting with a committee of three representing a group of Washington investment firms who underwrote the sale of 27,500 shares of Woodward & Lothrop stock in 1943.

All top officials of the department store were present. The formal statement, issued by the company, said:

"This morning, the executives of Woodward & Lothrop held an informal meeting with a group of underwriters at which the underwriters discussed certain features of the proposed plan of exchange of the preferred stock. The company stated it would give further thought to the plan in the light of the discussion."

The original plan called for retirement of 20,000 shares of outstanding 7 per cent preferred stock by issuing 25,000 shares of new 4 per cent preferred. Each old share would receive one and one-quarter shares of new stock. The refinancing under this plan would result in the transfer of $500,000 from surplus to capital account.

Opposition was voiced by certain common stockholders who pointed out that the 7 per cent preferred stock is callable at $105 a share on 30 days notice. The stockholders carried their protest to local investment firms.

Representatives of 15 investment firms then appointed a committee of three to explore the plan further with Woodward officials and yesterday's informal meeting resulted. The underwriters at the meeting were Y. E. Booker of Alex Brown & Sons, James M. Johnston of Johnson, Lemon & Co., and William W. Mackall of Mackall & Coe.

BANKERS TO MEET. Addresses by Eugene Meyer and M. S. Szymczak will highlight the fall meeting of District of Columbia Bankers Association on October 20 in Mayflower Hotel, President Richard A. Norris announced yesterday. Meyer is chairman of board of The Washington Post and Szymczak is a member of board of governors of Federal Reserve System.

Motors, Steels Lead Recovery In Stock List

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Motors, steels and a wide assortment of special issues got the stock market back on its feet today after Wednesday's first stumble in nine sessions.

Buying, brokers reported, was mostly in the hands of professionals who felt that the business outlook was sufficiently bright to warrant an extension of the recent upswing.

Liquors held their own despite the probable two-months' holiday in this field to preserve grains. Most distillers were expected to benefit through sizable supplies of potables on hand and profits from grain holdings transferred to the Government. Rails still were more or less indifferent to the interim freight rate hoist and a jump in car loadings to a 17-year high.

Missouri Pacific Hearings Set Here

By The Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday called for further hearings beginning November 18 in Washington on proposed reorganization of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co.

The ICC acted after the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Paul, Minn., directed a reexamination of the plan.

Representatives of some Missouri Pacific stockholders asked the court for a further review, contending the plan approved by the ICC in 1944 "erred in finding there was no equity for preferred and common stockholders" in the proposed reorganization.

They said the plan was outdated by a substantial increase in Missouri Pacific earnings and cash holdings.

At the new hearing, the ICC will seek further evidence on the current financial position of the railroad.

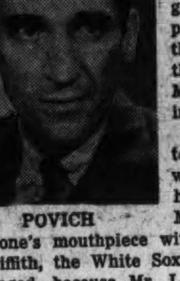
Magician Kuhel Tries Hand as Pilot of Nats

The Washington Post Sports
••• Friday, October 10, 1947 7B

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich



POVICH

WHEN JOE KUHEL signed a contract to manage the Washington club yesterday, it wasn't quite the promotion he was anticipating a week ago. His eyes sweeping the picture gallery of American presidents and baseball notables in Clark Griffith's office, he said, "This doesn't look like Muskegon, Mich., to me."

That's where Kuhel thought he was headed—Muskegon. It was going to be a step up for him in the White Sox organization. "They thought I had done a pretty good job managing Hot Springs in the Cotton States League last season, and they said they were moving me up—to Muskegon. That's a more important spot in the White Sox farm system."

And then, last Saturday, Clark Griffith telephoned him from New York—Did he want to manage the Washington club? Did he? You bet. Muskegon could have Muskegon. Kuhel all but shattered the phone's mouthpiece with his eager acceptance. Sure, he told Griffith, the White Sox would release him. That could be arranged, because Mr. Leslie O'Connor, general manager of the White Sox, was a good friend of his.

GRIFFITH revealed yesterday that long ago he had tabbed Kuhel as managerial timber. "I knew he'd made somebody a good manager some day, and I always imagined he might end up with us again. As a ball player, he reminded me of Bucky Harris and Joe Cronin—always doing something for the club, and fighting hard all the way.

"Kuhel, as I was saying, was always doing things. He'd steal a base for you, and put on the hit-and-run. He was always trying something different. He was a long ball hitter, but he could bunt, too, and he did. The other ball players respected him for the things he could do, and that's a big start for a manager. He was the big reason we won the pennant in 1933. He was batting sixth and hitting .330. No other sixth-place hitter ever did that."

Griffith remembered when he bought Kuhel from Kansas City in 1930. "Joe Engel told me he couldn't be had for less than $65,000, and I paid it. That's not a lot of money these days, but in 1930 $65,000 was like a million dollars to a club that didn't have a lot of money. It was one of the best buys I ever made. I didn't have a first base worry for seven years."

KUHEL DIDN'T make good right away with the Nats. The late Walter Johnson was manager in 1930, and he had a preference for the veteran Joe Judge. In 1931 Kuhel was farmer to Baltimore. "That was one of the best things the Washington club did," said Kuhel yesterday, "farming me to Baltimore, and here's why:

"Baltimore was up against it for a first baseman. Joe Hauser had a bad leg and they needed somebody quickly. Because Mr. Griffith let them have me, the Nats got the first option on Monte Weaver. They bought Weaver for $25,000 and he won 20 games in his first year in the majors. He helped us win the pennant in '33."

Kuhel's stay at Baltimore was short. He played only six games before he was recalled. Joe Judge came down with an emergency appendectomy in Boston, and the Nats regained Kuhel on a hurry call. Judge never did regain his first base job with the Nats. Kuhel blossomed as the finest fielding first sacker in the American League.

FOR SEVEN YEARS, Clark Griffith rued the trade that sent Kuhel to the White Sox in 1938 in an even swap for Zeke Bonura. Griffith was charmed by Bonura's batting potential, and was desperate to add more hitting to his club. From his first glimpse of Bonura in spring training, Griffith realized his mistake.

So did the Washington fans when the season opened with Bonura on first base. For two decades, Washington fans had seen Joe Judge and Kuhel give the Nats the best defensive play in the league at first base. They were spoiled, and when they watched the bunglesome Bonura let ordinary ground balls go on either side of him for hits, they were shocked.

There was the day when Bonura let one get away for a single to right that Kuhel would have had easily. The runner turned toward second, thought better, returned to first just ahead of the right fielder's throw to Zeke. A lady fan in Griffith's box applauded. "What are you cheering about? Bonura should have had that hit," said Griffith, testily. "But he got it nicely, coming back," she said.

Joe Signed For 1 Year At $18,000

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

President Clark Griffith of the Nats yesterday invoked the aid of a magician—Joe Kuhel—in an effort to improve the lot of his seventh-place ball club. He named Kuhel, his former first baseman, as manager of the team for 1948.

The 41-year-old Kuhel, amateur sleight-of-hand artist who holds membership in the American Society of Magicians, replaces Ossie Bluege who earlier in the week was elevated to supervision of the club's farm system.

Griffith thus observed custom by installing one of his former ball players as manager, a custom from which he has not deviated in the eight managerial appointments he has made since buying control of the team in 1920.

Kuhel's contract is of one-year duration and reportedly calls for a salary of $18,000.

Griffith revealed that he had approached Kuehl concerning the job as Washington manager only six days ago, by long-distance telephone from New York where he was attending the World Series.

His Third Job Here

"I don't believe in this magic stuff," grinned the Washington owner. "I always though Kuhel was manager material when he played hard, sensible baseball for us."

Kuhel is making his third return to the Nats, who bought him originally from the Kansas City club in 1930 for $65,000, highest price ever paid for a player by the Washington team. During the 1946 season he gained managerial experience with the Hot Springs, Ark., farm team of the Cotton States League in the White Sox chain.

Kuhel declared that he would spend the next three days in Washington with Griffith sizing up the roster of Washington players.

"As I understand it, we need a shortstop who can hit, another outfielder and a catcher," said Kuhel. "Mr. Griffith is now trying to outline some trades that will bring us the men we need. He started negotiations with several clubs during the World Series, he tells me."

An Anniversary Present

Kuhel's appointment took place on his seventeenth wedding anniversary. He plans to move Mrs. Kuhel and their 12-year-old son, Joe, jr., to Washington at the earliest opportunity.

The Nats' owner revealed that Kuhel was his second choice as manager after his determination to move Bluege into the front office. "I tried to get Lou Boudreau, who would fill the shortstop job as well as manage the club, but when that failed, I considered Kuhel ahead of all other candidates," he said.

Both Griffith and Kuhel indicated that Rick Ferrell and Sammy West, both of whom were menioned as candidates for the managerial job, would remain with the club as coaches.

Kuhel was Washington's first baseman for a seven-year stretch ending in 1938, when he was traded to the White Sox for Zeke Bonura. Griffith reclaimed Kuhel from Chicago on waivers in 1944, and resold him to the White Sox in 1946 when Mickey Vernon took over the first base job with the Nats.

After 19 Victories In Row

'Babe' Zaharias in Tears After Losing to 'Unknown'

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 9 (AP).—Tiny Bettye Mims White of Dallas exploded one of the year's biggest links upsets in the face of Mrs. Babe Zaharias here today, eliminating the world's top feminine player in the Texas Women's Open quarterfinals, 1 up.

The straight-shooting little Dallas amateur climaxed her startling trimuph on the 18th green in a thrill-paced struggle.

Mrs. White, a 106-pounder, clinched her victory by calmly stroking in a six-foot birdie putt while 500 spectators ringed the green in absolute quiet.

She qualified for a semifinals match tomorrow with Carol Diringer, Tiffin, Ohio, who defeated Polly Riley, Fort Worth, 1 up.

Peggy Kirk, Findlay, Ohio, fired one of the day's hottest rounds in ousting another pro and former National Champion, Patty Berg, Minneapolis, 4—2.

Miss Jameson Wins

Miss Kirk will oppose Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., former national titlist, in tomorrow's other semifinals scuffle. Miss Jameson ousted youthful Betty Rawls, Austin, Tex., 4—2.

Suffering from a heavy cold and with a temperature of 101, Babe found herself two down when Betty won hole three with a birdie four. Babe bounced back to even the match on nine, however, winning six and nine with a par and birdie.

B—'s Putter Erratic

Mrs. White quickly regained her lead after the turn, winning 10 and 12 for a two-hole advantage that she never relinquished. She took both holes with pars as the Babe struggled with an erratic putter.

Babe took 13, but the tenacious Texan won the following hole. Bettye turned on the heat after Babe had won 16 to go 1 down, sinking a 10-foot birdie putt. Babe responded with another birdie, sending the match to the final green.

It was Bettye who faced the lion on the final carpet. Babe sunk a 10-foot putt that required a companion—or the match would go to extra holes. Mrs. White, six feet away on a downhill lie, came through with a firm tap that put the Babe down for the first time in 19 tournaments.

Tears were streaming down her ch..ks.

Ailing Taylor May Play for 'Skins Sunday

The Redskins' star end, Rookie Hugh Taylor, was recovering last night from an attack of the flu, which kept him out of yesterday's practice session at Catholic University.

Whether or not Taylor will be available for Sunday's game here against the New York Giants depends on his improvement. Before rallying yesterday, his temperature had soared to 102.

The huge wingman, in his first year of pro ball, leads the Eastern Division, National Football League scorers with 24 points in two games. His four touchdowns were all on passes from Sammy Baugh. In addition he has snagged 7 nonscoring passes for a total gain of 291 yards.

Meanwhile Coach Turk Edwards was building a defense against two important Giants, Passer Jerry Niles and Runner Gene Roberts, replacing Frank Filchock in the New Yorkers' aerial scheme of things, took sixth place among Eastern passers while the Giants were losing one game and tying another. The former Iowa ace has completed 11 of 34 attempts for 184 yards and one touchdown.

Roberts, called "Choo Choo" because he once starred at the University of Chattanooga and because of his locomotive-like ball carrying, is being touted as a possible ground gaining champion. He's a rookie and was the second highest collegiate scorer last season.

Jarboe Wins Trophy As Most Valuable

Dick Jarboe, third baseman of the Boys Club Unlimited League champion Merrick Boys Club baseball team, was presented the most valuable player trophy at a team banquet at the club last night. All members of the team received sweaters for winning the title.

Haight Wants to Know How Many Hens Lay Egg Shampoo

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

I don't mind Lucia Brown's "For Men Only" diet but I'm a little sore about her writing the rules as she goes along.

Just as I was beginning to get an idea with some fun in it, along she comes with a lot of don'ts about drinking.

Game as I am, I not only couldn't eat myself even, but under the latest instructions I couldn't even drink myself even.

When I weighed in for bed last night, I thought I had lost a couple of ounces but before I could celebrate I discovered I had left off my glasses.

But I guess the diet is doing me some good anyway. I tried that leaning over test. With my legs stiff, I could touch my knees.

P. S.: Ask Lucia Brown how many calories are in an egg shampoo, she's so smart.

Dixie League Quits for '47

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Thomas A. Hanes, president of the Dixie Profesisonal Football League, said today "we will not attempt to operate this year, but it is definite that the league will operate next year."

Hanes' announcement came at the conclusion of a meeting attended by representatives of the Portsmouth Pirates, Norfolk Shamrocks and Charlotte (N. C.) Clippers.

The meeting was called for the purpose of deciding a course of action to be taken as a result of the Richmond Rebels' departure from the loop to enter the American Football League under a franchise purchased from the Long Island Indians.

Terps, Hoyas Favored To Win Again Tonight

G. U. Seeks 2d Straight At Expense of St. Louis

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

With a new backfield array, Georgetown goes after its second straight victory at Griffith Stadium tonight against the St. Louis Billikens.

Babe Baraonowski, who has yielded the starting call to Elmer Raba a tquarterback for the past two weeks, will open for the Hoyas as will Sophomore Tom Graham, a special merchant who won his spurs in last week's rout of Fordham.

The Hoyas will need all the speed they can muster against the Bills. The Missourians, shaded by Marquette in a thriller last week, will sport a massive line, averaging 225 pounds, which they hope will give adequate protection to their ace passer, Quarterback Jack Rooney.

Operating with Graham, who scored twice and set up a third tally against Fordham, and Baranowski will be Lew Miller, at the other halfback spot, and Fullback Connie O'Doherty.

Coach Jack Hagerty is convinced that this unit is his best and the quartet will be kept in the game all the way, if necessary.

The Bills dropped a 19-0 clash to Missouri, swamped Missouri Mines and then saw a four-point lead wiped out in the last minute against Marquette. They're larger than the Hoyas in the line and backfield, but the Hilltoppers will try to offset this with speed and passes.

The probable starting lineups:

Georgetown		St. Louis
Sarashevits	L. E.	Weisner
Dolan	L. T.	Nagel
Werder	G.	Jackstadt
Kelly	Center	Stallman
Oberto	R. G.	Pappas
Robustelli	R. T.	Otto
Desmond	R. E.	Sortal
Baranowski	Q. B.	Rooney
Graham	L. H.	Alberts
Miller	R. H.	Donohue
O'Doherty	F. B.	Wismann

'No Card Tricks'

Catholic Has No Fancy Stuff in Mind

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

COACH GENE AUGUSTERFER of Catholic University leaned forward as he lit a big cigar, then settled back and puffed contentedly.

Augusterfer, who left St. John's Prep to become coach of the first Catholic U. team since football was abolished at the school in 1940, is part owner of a downtown restaurant, where he can be found any evening.

Himself a star at Catholic on the 1932, 1933 and 1934 Cardinal elevens, Augusterfer is happy to be back at his alma mater, but realizes the difficulties he must face in his first season.

"It's a funny set-up," he remarked. "There isn't what you would call an experienced man on our squad of 43 players.

"THE BOYS that had high school or service experience haven't played for a couple of years since, so even that football background must be written off.

"With a green squad such as mine, one must go slowly or the boys will be over their heads. So we are concentrating on fundamentals and leaving the fancy stuff for later.

"One thing we have out at C.U. is plenty of smart boys. Sometimes I'd almost trade some of that brainpower for a little more beef.

"As for this season, it's hard to tell. After all, when the boys have no experience, one doesn't know how they'll do under fire. We have a tough opener in Western Maryland, but after my kids get a couple of games under their belts, they'll do all right.

"Don't forget this—none of these kids has an athletic schol arship. Every one of them is out there because he loves to play football. And every one of them is having a lot of fun."

And There Stood Our Stonewall—On a Rented Horse

Eighteen-year-old Stonewall Jackson, who fights Joe DiMartino at Turner's Arena Monday night, staged a parade in his own behalf on U st. yesterday.

Followed by an official escort of 40 of his fellow students from Phelps High School, Jackson toured the section astride a rented mount, secured for the occasion by publicity men who thought an automobile would not be in keeping with the best traditions of anyone with the name of "Stonewall."

Jackson, according to a gleeful announcement from publicity men, was later "arrested" for parading without a permit. The publicity battery denied there was any connection between their earlier visit to No. 13 Precinct and Jackson's short stay in the bastille. But, one of them said, "it's not a bad stunt at that."

Maryland Remembers Richmond's 1946 Victory

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Maryland and the University of Richmond, the team that humbled the Terps, 33-7, in the second game of the season last year, have another go at each other at College Park tonight with another lop-sided contest a distinct possibility.

This time, however, the Terp colors are expected to fly high. Victors over South Carolina and Delaware while the Spiders were losing to Washington and Lee and Rollins and winning from Randolph Macon, Coach Jim Tatum's hopped-up Old Liners shouldn't have too much trouble thrashing Richmond to post their third straight success.

Scouts on Hand

While the Terps will be pounding away every moment, they aren't likely to cut loose with the full bag of tricks as the standing room crowd of 16,000 will include several scouts from Duke, Maryland's opponent next Saturday in Durham, N. C.

Quarterback Vic Turyn, a holdover from last year's team who has been alternating with Sophomore Joe Tucker, favored an injured side this week and will be used sparingly, if at all.

Idzik Will Start

The only real change in the Terp lineup will be at left halfback where Freshman Johnny Idzik will start in the place of Hugh Werner, suffering from tonsilitis.

Otherwise, the backfield is set with Tony Gambino, the high scoring Baltimorean, at the other halfback spot and Harry Bonk, tonight's captain, at fullback.

The Spiders, coached by Johnny Fenlon, former G. W. great, rest their hopes on Fullback Sugar Ralston, and Quarterback Joe LaLuna, the pair who wrecked the Terps last year.

The probable starting lineups:

Armed Wins, Becomes Top Money Winner

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Calumet Farm's Armed became the world's leading money winner of the turf today when the 6-year-old brown gelding beat With Pleasure by a length and a half in the $25,000-added Sysonby mile before 20,611 fans at Belmont Park.

Ensueno finished third, 15 lengths behind the winner, in the three-horse race.

Armed picked up $18,600 for his triumph and now has earned $761,500, compared with Stymie's $754,710. Stymie, however, will have a chance to regain the money-winning lead on Saturday when he goes after the $100,000 New York Handicap at 2¼ miles.

Snider Rides Winner

Perfectly ridden by Albert Snider, Armed covered the mile in the sparkling time of 1:36 with 126 pounds on his back.

The odds-on son of Bull Lea—Armful by Chance Shot returned $2.70. There was no place or show wagering.

Armed and With Pleasure, Oscar E. Breault's 4-year-old son of Me Did—Seldina by Insco, shot out of the starting gate simultaneously, with the latter taking a lead of a head for a few fleeting moments. Armed then pulled even and the two sailed along head and head until turning into the stretch, with Armed saving ground all the way along the inside.

As the two Western horses straightened out after the turn for home, Jockey Snider hit Armed twice with the whip and the champion responded. Jackie Westrope, aboard With Pleasure, also applied the whip, but Snider had made his move first and there was no catching Calumet's gelding.

The race marked the resumption of a duel that started in Chicago where Armed and With Pleasure raced six times during the summer, each scoring three victories. However, today was the first time that Armed tacked it on With Pleasure over the mile distance.

With Pleasure, 9 to 5 second choice, also carried 126 pounds, as did the South American Ensueno, 8.75-to-1 chance. The latter, owned by Nelson Seabra of Brazil, never was in serious contention.

Ice Lions Sign Wingman Mair

Barrie, Ontario, Oct. 9.—Scotty Mair, high scoring wingman who announced his retirement from the Tulsa Oilers last week, will join the Washington Lions ice hockey squad for its opener against the Philadelphia Rockets at Uline Arena, Tuesday night, Coach Jack Riley announced here today.

Mair is the first catch of the Lions' current talent search through Canada. Riley was exultant over his signing but claims he is still badly in need of a big name goalie and two seasoned defensemen.

Illini Have Class and Depth to End Army's String

Sooners Can't Stop Texas Air Attack

New York, Oct. 9 (AP).—Off on another spin through the weekly football forecast, batting .812 on 108 correct predictions and 25 misses for two previous trips on the jerky merry-go-round:

Illinois vs. Army—Seems a shame, but that Army string can't go on forever. The Illini have one of the country's best backs in Perry Moss as well as superior depth. The Cadets' string of games without defeat stands at 30, and in newspaper language that means "the end." Illinois.

Oklahoma vs. Texas—It was the Sooners who took some of the starch out of the Texas sails a year ago. The Oklahoma line might give the Longhorns trouble on the ground, but how are you going to stop Bobby Layne when he takes to the air? Texas.

Notre Dame vs. Purdue—After upsetting Ohio State, Purdue might make a game of it if Bob De Moss gets his throwing arm in shape. Cast the usual ballot for Notre Dame.

Mississippi vs. Vanderbilt—Here are two of the season's surprises. A Vanderbilt team that tripped Northwestern and Alabama appears good enough to top Ole Miss, with wins over Kentucky, Florida and South Carolina. Despite that Conerly-Poole combination, the call is Vandy.

Yale vs. Columbia—With Yale's Levi Jackson and John Roderick scheduled to sit this one out and the Columbia cripples on the mend, it looks like the Lions have the edge. One shaky vote for Columbia.

California vs. Wisconsin—In their first season under Lynn Waldorf, the Bears already have won more games than they took all last year. Waldorf isn't returning to his old neigborhood just to visit. California.

Oregon vs. UCLA—Catching UCLA on the week after the Bruins' hopes for another all-victorious season were dashed by Northwestern is an unfortunate break for Oregon.

Georgia vs. Kentucky—By slugging Louisiana State last week, the Bulldogs suggested that the loss to North Carolina was all a mistake. They're on their way to another Southeastern title. Georgia.

Indiana vs. Iowa—You can overlook Indiana's 7-7 tie with Wisconsin. The Hoosiers piled up plenty of yardage. Indiana.

Duke vs. Navy—Up to now, the Middies look like a carbon copy of last year's much-beaten outfit. No other choice here. Duke.

Pittsburgh vs. Michigan—Another romp for the Wolverines who are pushing Notre Dame for top national recognition.

Wake Forest vs. North Carolina—If the Tarheels can't bounce back here, they'd better call the dogs and put out the fire. North Carolina.

Grey Steel Easy Winner in Monument Feature at Laurel

DEAR FOLKS:

This track has installed another new feature. Fred Hopkins, a Washingtonian and one of the Nation's top trainers, is in charge of a check-up on jockeys. Hopkins, who developed the great Equipoise is not a policeman. He watches the races and when he sees a jockey do something unusual or something he shouldn't do, he takes note. He then gets the rider or riders together for a look at the movies of the race. This idea, conceived by President Harry A. Parr, 3d, is not so much for disciplinary purposes as it is to aid them in avoiding a repetition of their mistakes.

Henry Clark is being congratulated on his appointment as trainer for the Christiana Stable horses. By the way, don't forget the Marlboro Fair. There's a carnival and all the trimmings, plus a horse show Sunday. Friend Humphrey Finney reminds horsemen that entries for the sales of the Maryland Horse Breeders Association close on Saturday. The sales will be held November 3 and 4 at Pimlico and Timonium. Favorites here are batting .430—24 winners in 56 races. See you on the rail. BILL.

March Chick 2d, Ahead of Pied Piper

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 9.—Grey Steel, an 8-year-old son of Forty Winks, was wide awake today and ran off with the Monument, the Thursday feature race. The big gray gelding coasted into the finish line in the colors of Mrs. J. B. Iselin. In second position came H. L. Straus' March Chick, the other half of the Trainer F. A. Bonzel entry. H. H. Hecht's Pied Piper was third in the field of six going a 1 1/16-mile.

Backers of the entry collected $4 to win after watching Grey Steel, a graduate of the minor tracks, step the distance in 1:45 3/5 over a fast racing strip. Jockey Johnny Breen was in the saddle.

The race was a two-horse affair most of the way. Pied Piper had a slight lead over Grey Steel as the pair battled head and head from the break to the stretch. At this point, Breen increased the cadence of his riding and Grey Steel answered, pulling away from his rival.

March Chick, never far out of it, came to the outside to gain contention approaching the stretch but weakened under Jockey Carson Kirk's urging in the final drive. Pied Piper was a tired third.

For Grey Steel it was his third victory of the year in 11 outings and sent his winnings over the $10,000 mark.

Jockey Don Padgett, leading rider at the meeting, rode his thirteenth winner in the fifth race aboard the Nydrie Stable's Monogamy. Padgett brought the filly from far back to win going away from Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Aviation. Third money went to W. L. Brann's Laurina in the field of eight juvenile fillies. Monogamy paid $7.40 and was clocked in 1:14 1/5 for the 6 furlongs.

Out Fishing

By Jack Bell

THOUSANDS of persons have for the past week been fishing Chesapeake Bay from South River to Breezy Point.

It is a beautiful sight to see the large number of closely grouped white charter boats, each criss-crossing about trying to locate the schools of striped bass.

Large catches are spotty because of the movement of the boas, which tended to keep the fish down.

Reports and records of charter boat captains prove that the big catches and large fish are caught during weekdays when there are fewer boats moving about, and the stripers are frequently seen breaking and gulls more active over schools of feeding fish.

Many fishermen have reported hooking heavy fish while trolling for stripers, only to lose heavies. From the number of big weakfish caught by bottom fishermen it appears that trollers are losing large tide-runner weakfish (trout).

Such fish are soon lost because of the soft and membranous mouth. More of them would be caught by trollers if the boat captain would stop his boat and give the angler a chance to carefully play his fish.

Reports from the Patuxent are that trolling anywhere in the mouth of the river and as far up as Point Patience is producing catches of 50 to 100 stripers weighing from 1 to 4 pounds. Small white bucktails and feathered lures are the best.

Western Out To Hand Tech First Defeat

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Interhigh football's free-for-all scramble for first place, now held jointly by Eastern, Central and McKinley Tech, will be blasted wide open today.

The race will be reduced to at least a two-team affair when Central's Vikings and Eastern's Ramblers crash head on in the feature game at Central. Tech's Trainers plan at Western and Roosevelt's Rough Riders are at Anacostia in the other loop contests.

The Rambler-Viking game should be a hum-dinger. Eastern has flashed more attacking power, having rolled up 38 points in beating Coolidge and Western, while Central has needed only 38 to lick Anacostia and Coolidge.

Central has the edge defensively though, having held its opponents scoreless so far. Eastern, on the other hand, has yielded 19 points, most of these through the air.

Central will answer with Hal Sponsler and Bill Tucker at ends, Bud Karousatos and Bob Douglas at tackles, Bob Petrillo and Ed Cadeaux at guards, and Moon Million at center.

Whereas the Vikings strike both from the T and box, the Ramblers have been sticking to the T exclusively this year for the first time. In Quarterback Sal DeGiorgi, Coach Mentzer has come up with one of the best ball handlers and fiel dleaders that the schoolboy ranks have produced here. The Ramblers also have two fine line crackers in juniors Charl'e Carhart and Leo Kerschbaum. Fullback Ed Smith, a stellar blocker, rounds out the backfield.

Central has Ross Keith, Jim Panor, Bill Giglio, and Jim Pantos if he has recovered from last ern's pass defense plenty of trouweek's ankle injury, to give Eastble. In addition, Jim Johnson, Jack Wert, Bob Sasko and Billy Denikos give Central lots of strength in the running department.

'Foxes' Has Every Magnolia Cliche

By Richard L. Coe

HARROWING is the word for "The Foxes of Harrow." This cliche-ridden hokum is currently strutting across the Palace screen.

No, thank heavens, having read Frank Yerby's book, we are in no position to tell you how faithfully the best-selling adventures have been transcribed. However, a literate acquaintance informs us that some sequences of the book have been omitted, rather a teasing observation, for Yerby must be indeed a profound writer to have conceived more situations than the film affords.

In it you find:

An illegitimate birth; eighteenth century Ireland and nineteenth century New Orleans; a hot-blooded male; an icily beautiful female; a Mississippi steamboat; a gentleman gambler; an all-or-nothing card game; a pistol duel; aristocracy at play; a rundown plantation; the building of a great house; voodoo; a wedding night quarrel; a deformed child; a stock market crash; harvesting the crops before a storm; a Belle Watling type; kindliness 'neath the selfish heart; a drunken pal; a supercilious blueblood; a slave who wants to be free; a child's grave as the setting for final reconciliation.

Twentieth Century has given all this expansive treatment which somehow manages to appear shoddy. Elegant costumes and far-flung settings curiously suggest a stock company production of "The Old Homestead" at the turn of the century.

"THE FOXES OF HARROW." Twentieth Century-Fox release produced by William A. Bacher. Screenplay by Wanda Tuchock from the novel by Frank Yerby. Directed by John M. Stahl. At the Palace.

Miss Maureen O'Ham

Nor does the cast ever seem to show much life. Maureen O'Hara, as beautiful as ever, has some of the hammiest scenes one can imagine and does them to a horrible crisp. Rex Harrison, who certainly is a fine player, is the gambling man who wants to start a family line. He looks as ill at ease as a Man of Distinction.

The rest of the company is chock full of familiar names running through pat paces. Best of them are Victor McLaglen, still a dynamic screen actor, and Helen Crozier, curiously effective as a Negro woman who drowns herself rather than live as a slave.

It's perfectly possible that you will find this less of a crashing bore than these words suggest. The ingredients are certainly there for a good picture and, used less wholeheartedly, they'll make a good picture again in the future.

THE BARTER THEATER will be giving its first performance in this Capital Monday evening at Western High School. "Twelfth Night" is the play and you can get tickets now from the Snow agency at Campbell's, 1108 G st. This is something of an occasion. Until the performance was announced, the Nation's Capital was the only stop the Barter would be missing this year on a tour which will take it into 48 States. Congratulations are in order, then, to the D. C. Recreation Department and the Washington Art Center Association for making the visit possible. And particularly to J. G. Frain, whose original efforts to interest sponsors were a lesson in dogged determination.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY'S fine arts department is offering an interesting film tonight in Jean Epstein's "The Fall of the House of Usher," from Poe's macabre masterpiece. Also on the program is Pare Lorentz's "The River." The time is 8 o'clock, the place Watkins Gallery, on the campus. For reservations call the department, WOodley 6800, extension 33.

THAT RODEO show over at Uline's is doing fine—adding two performances Saturday and Sunday at noon both days.

CAROLE LOMBARD again is decorating the Little screen with her witty charm. She and Robert Montgomery in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" have been added to the "Mayerling" bill. This is the comedy Alfred Hitchcock directed in 1941, shortly before Miss Lombard's death.

"FOREVER AMBER" is set to open at the Palace on the 23d. Already nearly 3000 theaters in the United States and Canada have booked 20th Century's widely publicized treatment of Kathleen Winsor's little tome.

IMOGENE COCA, that delightful clown of the intimate revues, is in town appearing at the 400 before getting into rehearsals for another of those "New Faces" charades. She's certainly a fine comic and we're hoping the umpteenth "New Faces" will do her justice.

TOMORROW: Lucille Ball as a Scotland Yard detective! Richard L. Coe reviews "Lured," the Capitol's new mystery-comedy.

LUCILLE BALL in action as an American chorus gal helping Scotland Yard in a tough fix on the Capitol screen's "Lured." Charles Coburn and George Sanders also are involved

Bidault Seeks to Heal U. S.-Russian Breach

By Drew Pearson

There was a day when a visit of a high French official caused the Capital of the United States to turn handsprings—as, for instance, the pilgrimage of the late Pierre Laval, then Prime Minister of France.

Bidault

When Laval was entertained by Herbert Hoover back in the good old days when foreign visitors were a novelty, white ties and cutaways were trotted out, ornate state dinners were thrown, and the Capital stopped most of its other work to welcome the Premier of France.

Last week, however, the Capital bestirred itself hardly at all when Georges Bidault, Foreign Minister of France, arrived for a far more important visit. For today France is the pivotal country in western Europe in combating communism. As France goes, so goes the rest of Europe. And the rosy-cheeked, slightly worried, energetic little man who visited Truman in the White House can help swing the balance in French politics.

No communiques were issued after Bidault's visit, as was the case after the Laval-Hoover conferences. Nevertheless, it can be revealed that Bidault made one particularly significant suggestion to the President; namely, that France might act as mediator in the ever-widening dispute between Washington and Moscow. Bidault warned that the battle between Russia and the United States is hurting world recovery, suggested that France might be able to ease the tension.

Bidault also turned down Secretary of State Marshall's proposal that France join its German occupation zone with those of the United States and Great Britain. The United States is anxious to operate all three zones as one economic unit, letting the Russians go their own way in their own zone.

Bidault, however, declined to cooperate. He argued that if France agreed to unite its occupation zone with the British and Americans now, it would only increase the tension between the capitalistic West and the communistic East.

What he also had in mind unquestionably was that such a merger would raise political hob for him just before the November elections. The Communists would yell their heads off and might win votes as the result of such a merger.

Note—Bidault's strongest plea to Truman was to obtain a few million pounds of flour in order to raise the French bread ration to 300 grams before election day. Assurances were given that France would get the flour.

Under the Dome

Anxious to be nonpartisan, the Citizens Food Committee telephoned Albany, N. Y., to tell Governor Dewey about its proposed voluntary food-rationing program. Dewey, however, was not available. Committee members asked if they could reach him the next day, but a subordinate replied that Dewey could not be reached—period. Food committeemen got the impression the careful GOP politico was ducking. . . . Speaker Joe Martin, reached by telephone in San Francisco, approved the food program but declined an invitation to go on the radio with President Truman.

Farm Leader Spurs Truman

Albert S. Goss, master of the National Grange, the Nation's biggest farm organization, called on President Truman the other day and urged drastic steps to deal with the food crisis.

The grange leader showed Truman a colored slide of a picture of one week's food rations in the American occupation zone in Germany, taken when Goss was in Frankfort during a European tour last spring. It was enough to cover a good-sized dinner plate, plus a small loaf of bread—a full week's supply for one person.

"That's typical of the countries now asking us for help," explained Goss. "Let me remind you that this picture was taken last spring. The people over there will get even less next spring unless we do something.

"You know what that means, Mr. President. Unless we meet our responsibility, the door will be opened to Communist insurrections and a Red sweep of Europe."

Truman said he was fully aware of this. He looked hard for some time at the colored slide and the meager amount of food on the plate.

Ann's 'Corpse' Is Liveliest Thing in 'Farce' at Met

By Leo Brady

Dispatches from out of town indicate that when "Out of the Blue" was sneak-previewed in New York, the surprised audience "shook the theater with continuous laughter which often drowned out the dialogue." This strategy was obviously a clever spectator trick springing from the instinct of self-preservation.

Ann Dvorak

At the Metropolitan yesterday, audiences were given the opportunity to hear every desolate word without interruption, and the most that can be said is that the picture is an unsprightly little farce that provides a few chuckles as it snails its way along through the last few reels. By the time humor does rear its long-lost head, you'll find you've been lulled into a pretty fair stupor by a lengthy string of pseudo-whimsicalities that are awkwardly strung together.

Its virtues are that its ambitions are modest and that it hasn't very far to fall—and that somebody had the presence of mind to smuggle Ann Dvorak into the cast. Miss Dvorak, who used to play soulful Latin ladies whose love was unrequited, plays a friendly but perpetual inebriate who spends her time passing out so thoroughly that she's mistaken time and again for a corpse.

People in whose apartment she collapses keep shuffling her off onto somebody else's premises—and the fun goes on like this for hours. Miss Dvorak does what she can, however, and her corpse is the liveliest thing in the picture.

The film handicaps itself with a deadly beginning in which an unconscionable amount of time is expended setting up situations which are intended to be eventually comic. But it takes so long for everything to get into place that you have to rouse yourself to enjoy the cleverness that is sometimes apparent in Leigh Jason's direction.

The elements the writers have chosen to shake together include George Brent as a timid husband henpecked by Carole Landis, Turhan Bey as an artist who looks like the rich man's Orson Welles, Virginia Mayo as a Philadelphia girl trying to find a suitable mate for her shepherd dog—and Miss Dvorak, who acts like an actress.

After sweating with this ill-assorted combination for a couple of hours, the writers contrive a merry ending, but it's too little too late.

Larry Clinton's New Gimmick Is Top Secret

By Bill Gottlieb

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Either business is picking up or our better-heeled ark leaders are running low on green. At any rate, baton wavers long listed among the missing have left their rockin' chairs. They are hustling around the one-nighter circuit or preparing to do same. Tommy Dorsey and Charlie Barnet were the first to go back to their trade, probably because they have the most alimony to pay. Others reformed or reforming: Shep Fields, Stan Kenton, Woody Herman, Artie Shaw, Ina Ray Hutton, Larry Clinton.

Most mysterious return is Larry Clinton's. He's got some musical gimmick planned that he guarantees is the ultimate. But even his favorite bartender doesn't know what. He and his manager won't breathe a word till next month's unveiling. Band members are pledged to secrecy and are investigated like atom-bomb-plant workers.

To soften Larry up preparatory to worming the secret from him, I took him to meet Betty George, a Copa singer and the gal Earl Wilson places in front of Jane Russell in front. Instead of loosening Clinton's tongue, she made him speechless.

Despite his having nothing concrete to offer and though he hasn't had a permanent band since before the war, the Dipsy Doodler booked himself for six solid months without even the aid of a booking agency. If that doesn't impress you . . . well, think of him together with the guy who sold ice boxes to Eskimos.

FIFTY SECOND ST. JIVE: A famous rhythm man who has won a place in most of the recent magazine polls was lost-week-ending it for three solid months. A Doc who shoveled him up from a sidewalk convinced him to lay off or else. Last week he showed up on The Street all cleaned up. His friends were delighted and rushed to greet him, only to have new doubts set in. He had on a new suit, a shine, a haircut, a shave, and a great big black eye . . . Bebopper Charlie Parker and handsome, warm-throated Billy Eckstine are 52d st's. big draws. But all seven of The Street's clubs combined haven't the crowds Noro Morales is pulling at the Havana-Madrid a block away.

DISC DATA: Recording dates are diminishing because of poor retail business . . . and are increasing because of Petrillo's threat to ban recording by the first of the year . . . Hillbilly platters have been outselling all but the top crooners. According to the American Schools and Colleges Ass'n., 23,000 high school students put Como above Crosby and Sinatra, with Lombardo "ousting" Goodman. Wish I could see the ballots. I'll bet neither Lombardo nor Goodman is the favorite . . . Moe Ash's Disc label still issues the fanciest album packages, from the frame-it-on-the-wall covers by David Stone Martin to the out-of-the-way material inside. Representative recent fare: primitive Haitian music, gospel shouter Ernestibe Washington with near-legendary Bunk Johnson, and a Calypso series. Only commonplace note is Doc Evan's Dixieland Five, which plays all the Dixie bromides like "Tin Roof Blues."

RECORD BRIEFS: Sy Oliver is in his element on "You Can't Tell the Depth of the Well," but sings awkwardly on "Civilization" (MGM) . . . Louis Prima (RCA-Victor), who made the best "Civilization," also beats Sy on the "Well" tune . . . Sinatra sings a thoughtful song, "A Fellow Needs a Girl" from the new show, "Allegro" (Columbia) . . . Dinah's easy voice is made to measure for "Lazy Countryside" (Columbia) . . . The symphonic jazz played by Matty Malneck on "Shangri-La" (Columbia) died 'way back when Matty arranged for Whiteman. Exhuming the stuff doesn't bring it back to life . . . "Hora Staccato," whistlers and Freddie Martin's music are combined on one Victor disc and I don't happen to care for any one of the three . . . Art Lund almost rings the bell on ". . . And Mimi" (MGM) but lets his voice break down in the lower registers about halfway through the side . . . There's never been a song about Los Angeles; so T. D. obliges with a neat tribute, "L-L-L-A" (RCA-Victor) . . . Tony Martin's big voice gives richness to "Julie," "Stanley Steamer" and "Begin the Beguine" (RCA-Victor), though he doesn't equal Nat Cole's classic version of "The Christmas Song" . . . Latest from the Columbia archives is a Beiderbecke-Trumbauer album.

'Dr. X' Still Baffles Police In Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 9 (AP).—Mystery telephone calls from Baltimore's "Dr. X" continued to plague police today.

Their efforts to nab him have been no more successful than his attempts to lure young girls and women into "medical appointments."

The stranger's game has been to call up, pose as a physician, and arrange for a medical checkup at an office which police investigation invariably proved to be a phony address.

Authorities noted an innovation in the pattern of the calls—the introduction of a strange woman.

One of the latest victims of "Dr. X's" campaign, 15-year-old Ida Rae Klaburner, reported to police a woman called her and asked her to see a "Dr. Smith" for a checkup. A car would transport the girl to the "office," the caller promised.

Waiting detectives found no automobile at the Klaburner home, but they did observe a small coupe drive past four or five times. They started a search for its driver, described as a well-dressed young man.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Elizabeth Gherardini, police declared, also received a call from a man who identified himself as a doctor, gave a phony office address, and asked Mrs. Gherardini, a former dental nurse, to "assist him in some dental work."

Mrs. Gherardini refused and notified authorities.

Tuck Dodges Question on Budget Cut

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—Governor Tuck and his budget advisory commission came to Norfolk today, supposedly on an expense-chopping expedition to whittle down a prospective record State budget. No hatchets were brandished, however.

Instead, the Governor smiled on everything he saw and beamed especially on the St. Helena extension of the College of William and Mary.

The Governor was asked where he expected to find the extra 39 million dollars for schools (and some more millions for other purposes the next two years).

"That's the jackpot question," he said, keeping as quiet in Norfolk as he had in Richmond on that subject.

Others in the gubernatorial party were Lieut. Gov. L. Preston Collins, Senator John S. Battle of Charlottesville, chairman of the State Finance Committee; Delegate H. H. Adams of Eastville; J. H. Bradford, budget director; Dr. Harris Hart, State personnel director; Fred Q. Saunders, State institutional engineer; Dr. John Pomfret, president of the College of William and Mary, and Charles J. Duke, bursar of William and Mary. The first four are members of the advisory budget commission.

Later this month the budget group will reconvene in Richmond for the business of bringing proposed appropriations into approximate balance with expected revenues. The results of their work will not be made public until Governor Tuck makes his budget address to the Legislature.

Budget requests for the 1948-49 general fund appropriations are almost double the allotments from this source in the current biennium and special fund proposals also are increased.

Neither the Governor nor his advisers have made any comment as to where cuts might be made or where additional revenue might be derived. Their silence lent weight to the belief held in many quarters that more taxes, either new levies or increases in present ones, would be proposed when the General Assembly meets in January.

There is no official total of the budget requests available at the present time and State Budget Director J. H. Bradford has said it would be several days before all tabulations could be completed. Unofficial estimates indicates that demands from the general fund are nearly double the 106 million dollars appropriated from the general fund for the current biennium.

Sandy Point Ferry Starts Winter Schedule

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—The State-owned Sandy Point-Matapeake ferry system across Chesapeake Bay will inaugurate its winter schedule October 21, with sailings in each direction every hour.

Ferries will leave both sides of the bay on the hour from 5 a. m. until 1 a. m. the next day, with the exception that there will be no 10 p. m. sailings except on Sundays. There will be an additional trip from each side every morning at 7:30.

Eastbound sailings at 7, 9 and 11 a. m. and 1, 3, 5 and 7 p. m., will make direct connections with the ferry operating from Romancoke to Claiborne.

D. C. Sailor Aboard Missing Minesweeper

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 9 (AP).—Three seamen, adrift aboard four lashed-together minesweepers, sent out new radio distress signals today, but the calls were not strong enough for searchers to get a bearing.

The Hawaiian sea frontier said the signals were heard by two aerial searchers southeast of Palmyra. The powerless minesweepers disappeared in that area September 24 after the tug Edward M. Grimm ran out of fuel and had to cut them loose while it crept to Palmyra under an improvised sail. One seaman is William B. Hopkins, jr., radioman of Washington.

Va. Appeals Court to Review Contests From 1943 Election

Richmond, Va., Oct. 9 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today turned back the pages of history for four years and agreed to hear two phases of a 1943 election contest involving a former Dickenson County treasurer and sheriff.

Appeals were granted to former Treasurer W. M. McFall and former Sheriff A. A. Fleming, both of whom lost out in the 1943 general election.

After Charles P. Mullins won a certificate of election to succeed McFall and John Henry Anderson was declared sheriff, an election contest was filed and in August, 1946, Dickenson County Circuit Court threw out all election results because of "fraud and irregularities and improper conduct of the parties holding the election."

Entirely new officers were appointed by the court.

It was then that McFall filed a $26,000 suit against Mullins and his deputies for fees he claimed were due him. Fleming sued Anderson and his deputies for $40,000, both contended they were entitled to fees as "holdovr" officers, and that either Mullins nor Anderson was entitled to the money under the court's 1946 decision.

Judge F. W. Smith of the Dickenson Court dismissed both suits, however, on the grounds that neither McFall nor Fleming had the right to a holdover in his office. It was on that decision that the former sheriff and the former treasurer were granted an appeal by the high court.

The high court today agreed to review the case of a former Baptist Church worker, convicted last year of manslaughter in the death of a Sunday school teacher, on her counsel's petition that Andrew Thomas committed suicide and was not killed.

Mrs. Mary Louise Macon, 48-year-old mother of two, was sentenced to a year in prison by a Southhampton County District Court jury which recommended clemency.

During the trial, Mrs. Macon testified that she and Thomas had been intimate for some time and that on the night of October 14, 1946, as they were standing in the dining room of her home, Thomas had choked her until she became unconscious.

Mrs. Macon's Contentions

Mrs. Macon's counsel contends that a confession, which the Commonwealth introduced, was obtained from her under duress and that Thomas shot and killed himself in the belief that he had killed his sweetheart.

Also granted today was an appeal to Henry Crutchfield, who was sentenced to four years in prison by the Corporation Court of Lynchburg on a charge of maliciously wounding his wife.

The court refused writs of error to:

Herbert Brown, who was sentenced to five years in prison by the Hustings Court of Portsmouth on a charge of rape.

Mary L. Nicol and Frances Nicol McKone on an order from the Alexandria Corporation Court settling a contest over a lien on Alexandria property.

Change Urged In Work, Pay Philosophy

Abandonment of the philosophy of more pay for less work will bring high prices down, said John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade, last night.

He spoke before about 60 members of the Kiwanis Club of Fairlington at Fairlington Methodist Hall, Leesburg pike off Shirley hwy., Fairlington, Va.

The trade board president, who also is president of the Second National Bank here, urged return to the "old-fashioned ideas of those who built this country and made it the greatest." He particularly urged private banking to return to the "Three C's of Credit—Character, Capacity and Capital."

"The standard of living we enjoy in America we owe to our national capacity to produce goods and services in large volume and at low cost," he told the Kiwanians.

"In order to protect and preserve this system, the laboring group should unstintingly produce with the skills which Almighty God has so abundantly endowed them. The philosophy of how little I can do and how much I can get should be abandoned and high prices will decline."

Federal Official Returns To Brittanica Firm

Chicago, Oct. 9 (AP).—William Benton, former assistant secretary of state for public affairs, has returned to the Encyclopaedia Britannica as chairman of the board of directors.

Benton, who was also named chairman of the board of Encyclopaedia Britannica Films, Inc., a subsidiary, resigned in 1945 to enter the State Department. He said that although he had resigned as assistant secretary he would maintain an office in the State Department as a special consultant on the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization.

Soldier in Search Of Food Gets Jail

Ferndale, Md., Oct. 9 (AP).—A Ritchie Highway cruise for "something to eat" put Robert Bloom, Fort Meade soldier, behind the bars of Anne Arundel county jail.

Officer Jack Erbe told magistrate David B. Dunker that Bloom was "zigzagging along the highway at 60 miles an hour" and that when overtaken he was drunk and had no driver's license. Failing to pay $100 fine and $5 costs, Bloom was jailed for reckless and drunken driving.

Spain, Mexico Pact Made

Madrid, Spain, Oct. 9 (U.P.)—Spain and Mexico concluded a financial agreement today designed to stimulate trade between the countries. It was haled as the first step toward cordial relations after 11 years without diplomatic or commercial contact.
